"Why Should I Visit America When the Cinema Has Shown Me All About It?" Asks G. B. Shaw

"Moreover," He Adds "They'd Probably Put Me in Jail for Making the Same Kind of Speeches as Did Mrs. Kate O'Hara."

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.

A WRITER'S style may be the man himself, but from the writings of George Bernard Shaw it is as difficult to discern Shaw, the human being, as it is to make out the man behind an automobile headlight. Nor do you see him any better when he trains the shaft occasionally on himself; then perhaps least of all. The high lights glare; shadows are black; a smile becomes a sardonic grin. Perhaps that is why Shaw has come to be pictured, caricatured and even photographed as Mephisto. From book and picture, therefore, a diabolical light plays about the writer. Of course, Shaw himself has connived at it. It has been both a temptation—is there anyone who doesn't like being thought clever as the devil?—and a joke; and Shaw dearly loves a joke.

To share this one with him you must see Shaw face to face. A genial gentleman with soft white hair, beard and mustache here and there still reddish; blue eyes alight with amusement; a humorous mouth; a long figure neatly clad in brown and impatient of repose as a schoolboy, and for the same reason; his voice light and buoyant, rarely far from a friendly laugh; good-looking hands that look versatile and are expressive—you have to shut your eyes if you want to keep the Satanic myth.

When he has his pen in hand he jabs the steel into men, women and institutions and makes them fry in their own fat. But face to face with his bitterest enemy, I think Shaw would shrink from hurting his feelings—not out of softness, but because of kindness. It is a kindness so fundamental that when necessary he cuts. Only, I imagine, he waits till he is alone with his scalpel. For then it is the folly and knavery of man that he torments without mercy and with gusto, whereas, to say the same thing with voice, look and manner to some particular man or woman is to cut into living nerves—which I think would hurt Shaw almost as much as his victim.

Why He Won't Visit U. S.

When I charged him with abetting the Satanic hoax about himself he grinned.

"It makes it easier for me," he said. "For then if I am only moderately decent to people they say, 'Why, what a charming man that very charming Shaw is!'"

This, however, does not deter him from enjoying the castigating he administers in your presence to the institutions to which you may belong. Only he makes sure first that you are likely to get the good and not the hurt of it. With great spirit, for instance, he told me as an American why he won't visit the United States.

Now, it needed little to show me why he should be loath to leave his home. A stone's throw away is the Strand at Charing Cross, one of those spots of which Kipling said, I think, that everyone in the world must pass there sooner or later; an ideal location for one who is as interested in the human flux as Shaw is. True, the world passes there with a roar of motor busses, a honking of horns and treading on one another's feet, but a wall of buildings cuts off completely the din and the jostle, and Adelphi Terrace, where Shaw lives, is as quiet as the Strand is full of turmoil. The terrace is named after the Adam brothers, who designed the houses there with the same touch they have immortalized in the furniture they created.

Fine View From His Home.

Here, without needing to put on his hat, Shaw can visit at their homes Granville Barker, James M. Barrie, John Galsworthy, Lillah MacCarthy, E. Temple Thurston and several other fellow artists. Two doors away is the Savage Club, the rendezvous of younger writers and painters. On the next corner is the Little Theater, where so many of Shaw's plays made their first bow. From his window he sees the Embankment and the Thames, which is here little more than a show place, with a gardened terrace, Cleopatra's Needle, several bridges, Parliament and, on clear days, the hills of Surrey in the picture. The room where we talked looks out on all this through two great windows; a square, exceedingly cheerful and interesting room. A bright fire; gay, artistic chintzes on comfortable chairs; books aplenty, a bust of Shaw by Rodin, a painting of Shaw by Johns, caricatures of Shaw by Max Beerbohm, photographs of Shaw innumerable, one of them showing him, Chesterton, Barrie and Beerbohm, all in cowboy costume—if Shaw had waved his hand at all this in answer to my question as to why he doesn't pay America a visit, I could have found his answer sufficient.

But he elaborated. First he indulged in a passing touch of vanity by pretending that he was too old a man to travel. He told me his years; I forget the number. When I did not let the question go, he asked in turn, "Why should I visit America?"

"A world you haven't seen," I suggested.

"We over here know more about America than the Americans do," he replied, "just as Englishmen know less of England than visitors who'd been here a week. How many Englishmen, for instance, have been to the Tower of London? We become so absorbed in what is immediately in front of our noses that we don't notice what is about us—until a cataclysm comes along. For example: I don't think you've noticed this room. That's because you're so interested in that fascinating man Shaw. But suppose someone took me up in my chair and threw me out of the window. Then you'd look about and say, 'What an attractive room this is!' You in America are absorbed in what is immediately about you. It takes a foreigner to understand your institutions, simply because he has a perspective on them which you have not. Why then go to America and lose the perspective? To see skyscrapers? If I saw them tomorrow they'd hold no surprise for me. I've seen them 10,000 times, painted, water-colored, impressionized, futurized, photographed and cinematographed from every point of view, including a bird's. The beauties of nature? I've seen Niagara Falls, Yellowstone Park, the Grand Canyon and the Yosemite in the cinema."

"Is a cinema experience enough for you?" I asked.

"The difference which going to America would make isn't enough to warrant the trip. I am abominably unobservant. One tree looks exactly like another to me. In Italy, someone points out to me a magnificent pine. After I've looked at it I can't tell it from a sycamore or any other tree. No, it's people that interest me."

"There are over 100,000,000 of them in the United States," I suggested.

"They'd Put Me in Prison."

"Most of the interesting men and women sooner or later come over here. And they come to see me. As for choice spirits like Eugene Debs and that woman they sent to prison for making the same Socialist speech, she'd been making for 20 years—Kate O'Hare, I think—they're all in prison. If I went over there I'd have to make speeches. Then I'd be clapped in jail, too. For I'd say exactly the things Debs and Kate O'Hare said.

"I've noticed all through the war," he went on "that the further away people were from the firing line, the more bloodthirsty they were. I suppose there's something about actual experience that knocks a lot of the nonsense out of people. You in the United States imposed savage sentences of 20 years at hard labor for men and women who said the very things for which they could find crowded audiences and applause over here. But you didn't sleep any less soundly for the firing, whereas, even those of us who stayed at home knew what it was to hear the guns of Europe; to say nothing of what came down on us from the Zeppelins.

"Of course, we in England knew that our airmen bombarded German towns as brutally as the German did ours. In one case I know that our airmen not only dropped bombs on an unfortified town, but even swooped down and raked the streets with machine guns. Naturally, women and children were killed. And, of course, the Germans made a terrific row about it, exactly as we English did when they did similar things to us. Of course, the Germans said—as we did of them—that our airmen went out of their way to kill women and children. It was nonsense on both sides. Anyone who knows the first thing about bombing knows that an airman can't say, 'Oh, there's a group of women and children! I'll drop a bomb on them!' You have your bomb in a wire basket. There are two spirit levels at right angles to each other. The bubbles have to meet exactly in the middle. You peer through a slit of about half an inch wide. You are driving at a tremendous speed, over 100 miles an hour, when you catch a fleeting glimpse of say, St. Paul's or a German orphan asylum through the narrow slit. You're half a mile away

Unwashed Windows and Tattered Posters on Walls Add to Dreariness of Scene, Made More Depressing by Bony Horses Falling and Starved Dogs Lying in Snow.

The following is another of the series of articles from Lincoln Eyre, staff correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World, who has returned to Paris after a ten weeks' stay in Soviet Russia in which he studied conditions under the Bolshevik dictatorship. Several other articles from him will be printed in the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, March 5.

THE first thing that impressed itself with photographic clarity on my consciousness a few moments after our arrival in Moscow was the sight of Leon Trotzky, People's Commissary for War, racing through the Tverskaja in a big Rolls-Royce limousine. The second was the spectacle of an old woman dragging behind her a diminutive sled, heaped with small logs, falling down on the ice-slippery pavement.

That the old woman should have fallen was of little moment, for she was evidently unhurt, but that of many passers-by not one should have gone to her assistance was a painful phenomenon. In any great city outside Russia a dozen persons would have hurried to help the old dame to her feet.

Now the Moscovites are not less kind or courteous than other folk; it is simply that if they undertook to pick up every woman who slipped down in the snow they would be thus engaged all day long. In Moscow there is too much big distress to make the lesser troubles even noticeable.

Comrade Trotzky and the poor little babooshka (grandmother) tottering along with her sled of logs, were both of the proletariat, therefore both dictators over the erstwhile Empire of the Czars. Yet the difference between them was as broad as that separating Nicholas II from Leon Trotzky three years ago. That is the paradox of proletariat dictatorship—and of Moscow.

Substituting sleighs for taxicabs, snow for asphalt, and sheepskins and furs for tailor-made clothes, the scene that met our eyes as we emerged from the big terminus in the capital of the Soviet Republic differs little from that which one beholds outside the Grand Central Station, New York. There were porters, though their skin was white—or fairly so—and they did not wear red caps. They were well paid for their services.

20 Minutes' Ride Costs $80.

The taxi chauffeurs, or rather the sleigh-driving Isvostchiki, also got paid, and at exorbitant rates. Two thousand rubles one 20-minute drive from the station to the Commissariat of Foreign Affairs cost us. As we still dispensed the rubles at the rate of 25-to-a-dollar, this meant $80.

Officially the Czar ruble is worth no more than the Soviet ruble. One must find a clandestine money-changer to obtain a more advantageous exchange.

One's first reaction to Moscow is confused. The city looks better and worse than one had pictured it. One has a momentary thrill at finding the streets full of people, with sleighs and automobiles scurrying briskly to and fro, instead of that desolate emptiness which somehow has become engraved upon one's imagination.

This feeling of relief soon gives way to intense depression, difficult of analysis, but none the less profound. One would achieve the same sensation, perhaps, by living in a cemetery.

For death is in the air at Moscow. Not the violent death fancied by those to whom a Bolshevik is primarily a murderer, but the intangible death that goes with prolonged suffering and privation. One sees it in the dead-white faces of the people, in their lack-luster eyes, emaciated bodies, slow stumbling gaits. It seems to gaze down upon one from the unpainted facades and unwashed windows of the houses. It clutches one's throat when a skinny horse loses its footing, falls, and does not rise again, or when one passes the carcass of a dog sprawling in the snow banks along the gutter.

I exaggerate, of course. But to drive home the picture of Moscow as I saw it a certain amount of exaggeration is necessary. This I say flatly without exaggeration: Of all the suffering I have witnessed throughout the war on the battlefields, among pitiful refugees of France and Belgium, and in starving, beaten Germany none even approaches the agony endured through months and years by many millions of the Russian people.

Dirtiness Due to Posters.

The dirtiness that one senses rather than sees in Moscow's thoroughfares is chiefly due, I believe, to a rather peculiar factor. Successive Russian governments, the Soviets more than any other, have plastered the walls of buildings all over the city with all sorts of posters, placards and bulletins.

There being no time or labor power sufficient to tear this matter down after it has served its purpose, it remains where it is, growing constantly dirtier and more dog-eared, until some new announcement is pasted over it. Torn and dirty white paper is about the most uncleanly looking thing there is, and every Moscow street is literally lined with it. That which was to me the depressing single ingredient in the composition of the street scenes was the perpetual dragging of sleds laden with food or fuel on the part of virtually the entire population. When one can appreciate the fearful effort required to keep barely alive, these sleds with their pathetic little cargoes became a kind of symbol of the Russians' Calvary.

> One "Square" Meal a Day Served on Mahogany Table in Russia Is Mostly Cabbage
> THE dinner provided for us on the evening of our arrival was typical of the one "square" meal we were thenceforward to receive daily. It consisted of cabbage soup, in which chemical analysis could have discovered a trace of meat, plain boiled cabbage as second course, a glass of tea with one spoonful of sugar, and a couple of slices of black bread, interlarded with straws and other refuse. Sometimes, in lieu of cabbage, we had mashed potatoes, or, oftener still, kasha, a mush-like white cereal that would be appetizing with butter, cream and sugar, but is scarcely palatable without.
> We dined with our fellow lodgers in a vast, somber hall at a mahogany table laid with superb coroneted silver, beautiful porcelain and the finest linen. It was a strange company—three races and nine nationalities were represented. There was an anti-English Hindu professor, an Afghan soldier, a Chinese and Korean Socialist delegate, an Armenian, a Siberian Russian, a Ukrainian, a Finn (our interpreter) and our American selves. A stenographic report of our conversations would have made quaint reading. We were alike in one respect—we all ate our soup quickly and noisily—"a regular jazz band," Kubes called it.—From Lincoln Eyre's description of present-day life in Moscow.

I used to catch myself wondering how far that distinguished-looking white-haired old chap had had to go to get the two loaves of black bread and six small logs tied on his sled, or how long that hollow-eyed little mother carrying her baby in her arms would have to live on the three sickly cabbages and tiny sack of meal her sled bore.

Mostly the streets are silent save for a dull shuffling of feet through the snow (during 10 weeks that I spent in Russia there was always a thick carpet of snow and ice outdoors).

Silence Ripped by Soviet Auto.

Even the sleighs slide along noiselessly, and only an occasional guttural wail will be heard from an Isvostchik signaling to pedestrians that it is coming. Silence is ripped asunder, however, when a Soviet automobile or motor truck puts in an appearance.

Shrieking a frenzied warning on the noisiest variety of siren horns, these machines flash along at a speed that would turn a New York traffic cop's hair gray. Those in the juggernaut's path step wearily aside, inhaling the nauseating benzol fumes it leaves behind, without even a grimace of disgust. Traveling on the people's business, a Soviet car—there are no others—is supposed to go as fast as possible.

I have mentioned the unwashed state of windows and the houses' need of paint. These deficiencies, together with the shabbiness of the people, contribute to the general dreariness of the streets, which incidentally look more crowded than they really are, because folk mostly walk in the roadway because it is kicked up by autos and horses' hoofs and is less slippery than the ice-coated sidewalks.

The only well-dressed beings are the soldiers, whose overcoats and caps are as "smart" as those of any other army. The women are mostly enveloped in heavy fur coats, and wear fur or woolen hats and thick felt or leather knee boots like the men. Rarely does one glimpse a skirt cut to a fashionable Parisian length, or rather, shortness. High-heeled shoes are almost as unusual a sight as silk stockings, and the latter are practically nonexistent.

Most of People Hike to Work.

When we reached Moscow the street cars were still running more or less normally. Successive falls of heavy snow, however, buried the rails a foot deep beneath a glacier-like surface. In February only a few lines were operating for transport of food and other supplies, and none for passengers. The hardship this imposed upon men and women whose homes were far from their work may be imagined. Nobody but speculators and specialists could afford sleighs so practically everybody hiked, in some cases two and three hours daily.

A surprising number of shops were open, considering the tales that have been told about all commerce having been wiped out. Most of them were Soviet stores, to patronize which a prospective purchaser must have a card or special order. Some of these establishments make a brave display with attractively decorated show windows and well-arranged interiors.

The private shops are all of the smaller variety, selling such wares as drugs, groceries, leather goods, millinery, perfumery, books, objets d'art and knick-knacks. At night all save the principal squares and thoroughfares are unlighted, but nevertheless they are thronged with pedestrians until after midnight. Indeed, between 11 and 12 they are more crowded than at most hours of the day, because of home-going theatergoers.

There are far more theaters open and playing to full houses than there were in peace times. Doubtless the very strain of conditions under which they live drives Moscovites to seek temporary forgetfulness in the playhouses, as humanity always does in a stressful period. Of the extraordinarily high level attained by the drama during the revolution I shall have something to say later on.

Many Motion Picture Houses.

There are motion picture shows, too, all Sovietski (nationalized) like the theaters and producing some mighty good films; grand opera, ballets, concerts, both vocal and symphonic, and even a dance hall or two.

From the station we repaired, as I have said, direct to the Foreign Office, which occupies a wing of the former Hotel Metropole, now the Second Soviet House, on the square beneath the Kremlin. We were welcomed in the most cordial fashion by a little Jewish functionary named Kantorovitch, who spoke all languages and was destined to be our principal guide, philosopher and friend.

He was the Secretary Karahan, Chicherin's chief assistant in the administration of foreign affairs, and incidentally the first Hebrew we had encountered among the numerous Soviet officials with whom we had come in contact. Observing that we must be too fatigued from our long journey to want to talk business right away, Kantorovitch forthwith handed us a billeting order, supplied us with an escort to our domicile, and told us to have supper and a good night's rest. We promptly hied us thither to the tune of another 2000 rubles.

The house in which we were lodged was one of two controlled by the Foreign Office, the address being 10 Maly Haretonevski. It was a magnificent mansion, practically a palace, "expropriated" from one of Moscow's merchant princes. Kubes and I shared a huge room adjoining a gorgeous bathroom and fitted with electric lights, delightful furniture and every other comfort—except heat.

House Heated One Day a Week.

During the first three weeks we dwelt there that house was heated only one day a week. The rest of the time the temperature was about one degree higher than outside, or about 10 degrees Fahrenheit. I wore two suits of heavy underwear, two pairs of woolen socks, two sweaters, an army shirt, a heavy suit of clothing, thick boots, a fur overcoat, fur gloves, woolen muffler and a cap that covered my ears. Indoors the only thing I removed was the muffler and cap.

Our house was conducted by a small woman with bobbed hair and a suspicious air, who was referred to as "the Commandant." She had two servants, a "babooshka" who cooked, and a younger maid to look after her dozen boarders. This pair, receiving the lowest Soviet wage of 1200 rubles a month—out of which they had to buy food—toiled as no servants I have ever seen in Europe or America would have done. They were on the job at 8 a. m. and constantly at it until 11 at night. Nor did they ever, as far as I could see, get a day off. Nevertheless, both were good-humored and obliging.

Our first conflict with the "Commandant" arose over a very vital question of a hot bath recommended to us by Kantorovitch. She protested that there was not enough wood to heat the boiler and consequently hot water for bathing purposes was "niet," meaning not.

"Besides," she added, "I must have an order signed by Lenine to give you a bath." This intelligence decided us to do without a bath, necessary though it was. Next day, however, Kantorovitch got an order bearing not Lenine's, but Karahan's signature, and we indulged in some very satisfactory ablutions.

Square Meal Cabbage Mostly.

The dinner provided for us on the evening of our arrival was typical of the one "square" meal we were thenceforward to receive daily. It consisted of cabbage soup, in which chemical analysis could have discovered a trace of meat, plain boiled cabbage as second course, a glass of tea with one spoonful of sugar, and a couple of slices of black bread, interlarded with straws and other refuse. Sometimes in lieu of cabbage we had mashed potatoes or, oftener still, kasha, a mush-like white cereal that would be appetizing with butter, cream and sugar, but is barely palatable without.

For breakfast we had a glass of tea and black bread, for supper another helping of the second course of dinner, whatever that might have been, and tea and bread. Toward the end of our stay, because we had both been ill and were noticeably weak, we were put on "heavy workers' rations," which meant that we got a thimbleful of butter at breakfast and occasionally a bit of meat in the inevitable cabbage soup. Above is a full and faithful record of all the food we drew from Soviet sources at the Maly Haritonevski House.

And being foreigners, and therefore objects of Russian hospitality, we were living on the fat of the land. Only the Red soldiers and possibly the People's Commissaries at the Kremlin fared better than we.

We dined with our fellow lodgers in a vast, somber hall at a mahogany table laid with superb coroneted silver, beautiful porcelain and the finest linen. It was a strange company—three races and nine nationalities were represented. There was an anti-English Hindu professor, an Afghan soldier, a Chinese and Korean Socialist delegate, an Armenian, a Siberian Russian, a Ukrainian, a Finn (our interpreter) and our American selves. A stenographic report of our conversations would make quaint reading. We were alike in one respect—we all ate our soup quickly and noisily—"a regular jazz band," Kubes called it.

Make Your Income Tax Return Accurate for Uncle Sam Can Catch Any Misrepresentation

System of Checks Which Is Expected to Result in Recovery of 2 Billion Withheld by Those Trying to Beat the Government Explained.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,

A Special Correspondent of the Post Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1920.)

WASHINGTON, March 6.

PEOPLE have often wondered whether the United States Government would ever have the time or the staff to examine the millions of income tax sheets which have been filed in the last two years or will be filed in the future. Who does the checking up? And how carefully is it done? What happens if you make an honest mistake? What happens if the Government catches a tax evader?

Every factory, store, wholesale or retail business, every employer, must make out a list of his employes and the wages or salaries they get, provided the sum in each case is above $15 a week. These statements are carefully filed and thousands of Government employes looking to see whether John Smith, whose employer sent in a statement saying the employe had received more than $15 a week throughout the preceding year, actually filed a return of his own to the Government and paid the taxes due.

If the employer doesn't file a return for his employes he will have to pay taxes himself for that sum of money because, when the income tax experts look over his books—and they can do so at any time—they will regard the amount of money eliminated by him as so much profit.

If you received more than $15 a week or $800 a year from any business transaction, whether from the sale of land or securities or property of any kind or any class of services, from teaching nights to working on the side after business hours, the man who paid you more than $800 must tell the Government about it. And a staff of experts works all the time making a list of persons who didn't file returns. And some day a representative of the Government will call on a few hundred thousands of our people and hand them a tax return already made out, which they neglected to do themselves, only the taxes will be much larger because there will be a penalty for non-payment of taxes long overdue.

Allowances for Error.

There is a special division of the Income Tax Bureau which does nothing else but think up penalties on persons who don't file the correct kind of return. Of course, allowance is made for error and for reasonable excuses in case of delayed returns. People who are sick or absent from the country and can make a sworn statement to that effect which is convincing to the Collector of Internal Revenue in their respective districts can be exempted from penalty. But the Government has a staff of experts who can sometimes tell at a glance whether a case looks suspicious and the return sheet is turned over to special investigators who make a careful examination of the case in question.

The Government's aim is to get correct tax returns. If you have paid more than you should, the Government will call your attention to it just as quickly as if you had paid too little. The Secretary of the Treasury and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue are authorized to accept compromise settlements. Where there is plainly no intention to defraud the Government and where the mistake is simply one of computation, compromises are daily being accepted.

Fully 18,000 people are employed by the United States Government to check up income tax returns. Three thousand are in Washington and 2000 in the field. Of the 13,000 others, the majority are engaged throughout the year in the task of getting information about taxpayers. It is an intensive study of each geographical unit of the population in the United States by the most elaborate statistical system ever devised—even more so in some respects than the census. Really, tax dodgers have very little chance.

Income tax inspectors have access to state and county records where business transactions or transfers of all kinds are filed. They have available, if they wish, all brokerage accounts. They can tell by investigation just how much money a man made on the stock market and whether he gave the Government the proper share.

The process is not merely to investigate each man. That would take too long. But each brokerage firm, for instance, must show how much it has paid to individuals in excess of $800. It must show how much individuals have paid to the brokerage firm. The Government tabulators simply collect all the information about John Smith which comes from business firms or individuals in all parts of the country. Information about a taxpayer might come one day from Seattle and the next from Boston. Eventually it is all put together in the file of John Smith, with the exact address of the said John Smith.

"Local Knowledge" of Income.

Of course, deputy collectors are possessed of "local knowledge," which enables them to assist investigators. A man who had enough money to buy a house and lot and automobile and didn't file an income tax return, might find the deputy collector looking up the reason why.

Much information comes from citizens who happen to learn of fraudulent returns. In every case charges must be proved and a taxpayer has the right to appeal to the courts, but first he must pay his taxes, and if the court decides in his favor the Government will refund.

The Government gets its taxes if it takes years to find it out. A few days ago the executors and heirs of a certain estate filed an amended return. They had discovered an error in back returns. It was a partnership case.

"We can't jail a dead man," said one of the Government officials, "but if that partner is still alive and he has filed the same kind of a tax return, he better file another return and pay up taxes due."

Special experts are working with U. S. Attorneys in the prosecution of cases in which tax returns have been falsified. Already there have been indictments and jail sentences. The Government is not publishing all its information but in one rather populous section of the country, it is estimated that at least $100,000,000 in taxes haven't been paid that should have been paid.

The Treasury Department's agents have the authority to subpoena all persons who have records of dividends paid. For instance, the Government can, if it chooses, ask for a man's check book and can get from his bank the amount of his deposits.

$40,000,000 Recovered for U. S.

It took 50 agents of the Government recently nearly three months in the field to audit a big account and something like $40,000,000 was recovered when the job was over.

Non-resident aliens can't escape any more than can aliens who try to leave the United States without paying their taxes. A special machinery has been devised to act in emergencies. Not long ago, a group of foreigners left the country without paying their taxes. The Government began attaching the property they left behind and would have sold it if the individuals in question hadn't voluntarily given themselves up and paid the taxes due. It amounted to several millions of dollars.

Information about every conceivable activity from natural resources to farming, to shipping, to manufacturing—every phase of human endeavor—is recorded by the Government through income tax returns. Access to other Government records is available but nobody else in the Government, no other department or bureau, can get hold of income tax returns. These are carefully guarded from prying eyes. Yet a mass of statistical information of incalculable value will be ready within the next two or three years. Mass figures will be given out some day showing the average cost to run a bakery, a candy shop, a shoe factory, a steel mill, and the profits made in each group and the costs of production in each classification.

In fact, that is one of the ways the Government detects false returns. All the bakers are grouped, all the butchers, all the doctors, all the lawyers, all the farmers; in certain sections of the country, all the cotton growers.

Each has filed a return showing his cost of production and deducting the expenses which he thinks he should be allowed to subtract from the total of his income. Now, of course, it is improbable that all the bakers, for example, acted in a conspiracy to put down exactly how much their costs of production were in any year. Competitors do not engage in conspiracies.

So, on the face of it the Government has a general collection of statistics on each trade, profession or business. And then when somebody comes along and wants to claim that he paid an employe or manager $50,000 a year when nobody in the whole business, wholesale or retail, included any such return, the Government investigator takes the matter in hand.

To be sure, some odd cases have arisen. And some big concerns have been on the carpet here about "excessive" salaries. And the Government has in many cases decided that the allowance for salary was beyond

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Defends J. W. Bailey.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am a regular reader of your Sunday paper and note in last Sunday's issue where you question the eligibility of one Joseph Weldon Bailey to hold the office of Governor of Texas should he be elected.

You have altogether a wrong conception of the ex-Senator's stability. I believe you are publishing a Missouri paper for Missouri people, but I commend you for mentioning Texas politics in your editorial columns. Now, we are all believers in the doctrines that Mr. Bailey preaches, whether we say so or not. First, he is for less taxation and more liberties, more business and less talk, against prohibition and suffrage. There is a great wave of Baileyism sweeping the State of Texas. And you can bet all the money you can borrow, beg or steal that if elected he will sit in the Governor's chair.

Already the "Socialistic Democrats" are losing sleep trying to figure out some way and some man that can beat Bailey. This short period of misrule by the Anti-Saloon League will be the greatest blessing that has ever fallen on the American people. They will then see the hypocrisy of the ones at its head and do away with it. The fact that you are publishing a Missouri paper for Missouri people in most cases would compel me to say that you should confine your influence to that State, but Mr. Bailey's principles concern every people of every State and for that reason you should fight for him and not against him, if you decide to fight at all. The reformers can reform everything they please, but they cannot change human nature, and they always leave a little trail of hatred and discontent among the people behind them. A. D. COVIN.

How Excess Profit Tax Works.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Do you agree that the present high cost of everything has been brought about partly by the Government's method of taxing and that the daily newspapers could correct the misfortune and bring prices down in six months' time if they set out to?

If you will follow me I know you will agree that the above is a fact.

Take, for example, an individual, firm or corporation that bought $100,000 worth of stumpage (timber lands) before the present price inflation. The stumpage may have had a $50,000 mortgage on it, so the net investment was $50,000 and doubtless represents about all the owner is worth and, therefore, this is the figure used to calculate his income taxes on. The value of this stumpage today probably is a million dollars; the owner would be only too glad to cash in by sawing it into lumber or selling it to make wood pulp and willingly would pay a good big tax if allowed to do it, and this is just what the owner should be allowed to do if we are going to get prices down by increased production. Under the present excess profit tax law he (the owner) cannot do this unless he wants to turn over more than half of his good fortune to the Government. This individual, firm or corporation must hold back his timber and just market about one-fifteenth each year in order to pay a fair tax rate under the present excess profit tax law; if he marketed the entire lot of stumpage in one year the Government would take more than one-half of the entire gross amount he received, or over $500,000 tax; if he (the owner) sells nothing and lets the trees grow he pays no tax.

Just think, this one thing—stumpage—increases the price of practically everything; first, the price of lumber and wood pulp, because of this artificial shortage, brought about by the excess profit tax law; this, in turn, raises the price of furniture, cost of building, cost of wagons and freight cars, crates and shipping boxes for food and wearing apparel, etc. This same artificial shortage makes paper and everything requiring paper go up.

You will quickly realize this same thing holds true in all kinds of ore, coal, cattle, etc. You are heavily penalized by your Government and called a profiteerer by the public if you work overtime and increase production which, everyone admits, is the only way to bring prices down.

Is it not plain the only solution is a flat rate of taxation, and not the present excess profit tax? Let it be so much per unit or a certain per cent on the amount of business you do. With a tax like this in force everyone would rush to cash in at the existing high prices, which would naturally bring prices down.

By making a flat rate of taxation like on theater tickets, soda water, etc., you do not penalize the individual, firm or corporation who increases his production and helps reduce prices. He only pays the same tax as the fellow who likes to hold production down so the margin of profit will keep on increasing.

New Orleans. J. S. OTIS.

MR. WILSON'S RESPONSIBILITY.

If, as the latest report from Washington indicates, President Wilson has rejected all overtures to release Democratic Senators for compromise with the Republican majority in the Senate on the reservation to Article 10, he has missed a golden opportunity to crown his work in war and peace with an act of wisdom and true greatness.

He has missed the opportunity to complete in sufficiently large measure to make it invaluable to mankind the great work of peace which he himself accomplished and has sacrificed his health and almost his life to finish. He is trying to undo and destroy all that he has done in behalf of justice, liberty and permanent peace in the world.

In the maneuvers of compromise, the singular and almost ludicrous situation has come about that the modified Lodge reservation, which passed the Senate, is better in substance than the Hitchcock compromise reservation. It does not prohibit the use of the economic boycott, a powerful weapon, without consent of Congress, while the Hitchcock reservation does. In this respect the Hitchcock reservation follows the original reservation framed by the Foreign Relations Committee. In all except the wording, the advantage lies with the majority reservation as modified by Senator McCumber and adopted by the Senate majority.

The peace treaty and the covenant will not be destroyed by the adoption of this reservation, despite its objectionable wording. We know that. We know that there will remain a great body of provisions making for the co-operation of the nations in establishing and preserving justice, liberty and peace. Mr. Wilson himself, in behalf of humanity and civilization, pleaded eloquently for these guarantees of just peace. Will he reject his own pleas? Will he destroy the very guarantees he helped to create and strike down the hope of mankind? Will he sacrifice all the fruits of the war to end war and oppression on account of a few words in a treaty reservation—on account of his own personal pride and preference?

Never was the need of prompt ratification of the treaty greater nor the demonstration of that need clearer than now. The Turkish revolt and the massacre of Armenians by the Turks adds a blacker tinge to the clouds of war and revolution and chaos that overhang Europe. The fate of civilization is in the balance. If the nations do not get together to work out threatening problems, to stabilize economic conditions and to maintain peace, the consequences cannot be measured. We shall suffer in the general disaster.

We do not relieve the Democratic Senators, who follow the President, of responsibility for the consequences of killing the treaty at his command. They are responsible to their own conscience and to the people for their votes. No personal pledge can relieve them of duty and responsibility. Not only the interest of the country and of humanity, but the interest of their party, is involved in their action. If they obey the President's instructions, they must share the responsibility with him.

Democratic Senators who believe the treaty should be ratified with the best obtainable reservations should put the responsibility directly on Mr. Wilson. They should follow their convictions by voting for ratification and let him decide, in the light of his own conscience what his action shall be.

We have no doubt as to the opinion of the American people. We believe it is overwhelming for prompt ratification on the best obtainable terms. We believe the people will overwhelmingly condemn those who stand in the way of peace or contribute to a further postponement of peace.

THE TYRANNY OF THE SILK SHIRT.

It looks bad for the silk shirt brigade. That garment, which has become the toga of democracy, the ermine of hoi polloi, already commands an installment-plan price, and it is going higher. The silk shirt will be selling for from $20 to $25 next spring, so a New York shirt maker tells us.

There's a reason. The raw silk in a silk shirt used to cost $6.50 a pound. Today, Reggie, the price is $18.30 a pound, and nobody can venture what figure the morrow shall bring forth. But from the fragmentary data already cited it must be obvious that the finished product has got to advance if it is to maintain a proper distance from the crude stuff.

The New York fabricator of silk shirts has divulged other interesting secrets about this brilliant, if irresponsible, garniture. It seems that everybody is wearing silk shirts except the man that can afford to. And even the multimillionaires and the school teachers have been known to yield to the blandishments of this seductive decoration, though such instances are happily rare. With this all but universal demand, what are the designers of, and dealers in, silk shirts to do? There is but one thing for them to do. They're doing it.

Now, as to the silk-shirt mania—is it a temporary aberration or an incurable disease? Many incline to the latter view, but that, we think, is the pessimistic verdict of the superficial. Let us consider the genesis of the silk shirt. What started the madness and when? The answer is easy. On an evil day fashion dictated that man should discard his suspenders and put on a belt. The world has never been the same since. Prior to that mandate men wore shirts, but they didn't wear them haughtily or vainly. Most men wore them as a concession to custom. The last word in the shirtinia of those days was what was called the "biled shirt," a monstrous affair, about as comfortable as the celebrated sport shirt of Nessus.

But the advent of the belt changed it all. Since then we have run a wild, chromatic gamut until today we are a plumed, brocaded, bizarre genus, with the kimonaed female of the species less scintillant than the male.

The solution is an anti-belt league, a covenant wherein we all agree to restore suspenders, without reservation.

OKLAHOMA'S PRESIDENTIAL CANVASS.

The outstanding feature of a presidential poll of Oklahoma, conducted by the Daily Oklahoman, was the strength developed by Herbert Hoover. The man without a party has seemingly been taken to the bosom of Oklahoma's Democracy. In any event, Hoover ran third in this State-wide contest, first place being captured by Oklahoma's favorite son, Senator Owen, who just did manage to nose in ahead of Bryan.

The disappointing antithesis to the Hoover demonstration was furnished by A. Mitchell Palmer, who a few months ago enjoyed a considerable popularity in Oklahoma and was believed to be the choice of the Democratic organization. The Attorney-General trailed in a lagging fifth, being beaten even by McAdoo, whose alleged refusal or inability, as Director-General of Railroads, to give Oklahoma a fair deal in the matter of freight rates, was bitterly resented by the shippers and farmers of that State, and was supposed to have banished him from presidential favor.

The expression of Republican sentiment, too, was unorthodox. Hiram Johnson scored the highest total of points, although Leonard Wood polled the largest number of first-choice ballots. The Republican disappointment was the showing of Gov. Lowden, who was singled out for special mention a few weeks ago at the convention which selected the delegates to the Chicago convention. Ostensibly the Oklahoma delegation to Chicago goes uninstructed, but in point of fact it is committed to Lowden and will very likely cast its vote for him whenever called upon. Nevertheless, the Governor of Illinois was fourth, being beaten by Senator Capper of Kansas, who finished on the heels of Gen. Wood.

Of course, the Oklahoma poll is unofficial. It lacks the solemnity of the party seal. But it is a popular rescript, just the same, the import of which will be noted by the politicians near and far.

MISSOURI'S CORN CHAMPION.

J. R. Sheldon of Holden, Mo., is the champion corn grower of the United States. In a national contest last year he produced 637.35 bushels of corn on a five-acre tract, or 127.47 bushels per acre. He has been awarded a cash prize of $1000 and a gold medal.

The magnitude of Mr. Sheldon's accomplishment can be appreciated by reflecting that the average per-acre yield of corn in the United States is about 23 bushels. If the world beats a pathway to the door of the man who makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before, according to Emersonian dogma, what sort of testimonial will it tender the man who quintuples the output? It will doubtless come to him for instruction.

In the absence of details as to this achievement it may safely be asserted that Mr. Sheldon everlastingly watched that five-acre tract. Time and energy were expended without stint. But when every allowance is made for the special efforts put forth and for such favorable weather conditions as assisted in the victory, the record stands as an accusing commentary on our average corn production and as an example of what can be done by agricultural specializing.

With the prediction that farming in the United States must eventually become a highly specialized industry we are all familiar. But we have hitherto regarded it as a vague evolutionary warning, a message for posterity. The war, however, has changed this attitude. The farmer today is confronted with a new problem—labor shortage. Unless adequate labor can be had farm practice will have to be revolutionized. The big farm must give way to the small farm, and to intensive cultivation.

The performance of our Johnson County, Mo., farmer in making five acres do the work of 30 should enable us to face the intensive future fairly serenely.

SIX YEARS OF THE RESERVE BANKS.

The Federal reserve banking system has now been in operation about six years. The consolidated report on the condition of the 12 banks at the close of business on Feb. 20 presents a maze of figures attesting to its progress during these six years. The gold reserve of the 12 totals the enormous sum of $1,969,814,000 and their total earning assets are almost $3,200,000,000, which at an average of 6 per cent would yield nearly $200,000,000 a year. At the inception of the system member banks were required to pay in only one-half of the amount specified in the act as Federal reserve capital. The supposition that the other half might not be needed was well founded. With the latest member banks admitted, the total capital of the 12 now stands at $90,531,000, and they have a total surplus of $120,120,000.

A banking institution which can in six years accumulate a surplus equal to 133 per cent of its capital, in addition to paying comfortable dividends in most of the six years and investing $11,144,000 in bank premises, must be conceded to be some success in a financial way, to say nothing of its usefulness to the public.

PANETELA.

YES, Luella,
McAdoodle
Has a fine
And dandy plan;
Don't neglect
To keep your money
Somewhat on
That thinking man.
While the most
Of those aspiring
Seem but equal
In the hunt,
Be assured
Of McAdoodle
Shrewdly making
Towards the front.

What he wants to do,
My dearie,
Is with England
To agree
On a swap
Of what they owe us
For some islands
In the sea.
Say Jamaica,
The Bahamas,
And some others
Thereabout,
All related
To us closely,
Rubbing all
The figures out.

England,
So he tells us,
Staggers
Under what
She scarce can swing,
Though a sixth
Of all the planet
Stands to sing
"God Save the King!"
Doubtless she
Would gladly welcome
Some such plan
As we adduce,
All the more
Since what would help us
Is to her
Of little use.

Anyhow
My sweet Luella,
McAdoodle
Proves his wit;
Trust to him
With nothing stirring
Having something
To submit.
While the rest
Of them are silent,
Merely running
With their feet,
McAdoodle,
With his noodle,
Shows them what
They have to beat.

That is all,
My little girlie;
Having nothing
Paramount
For an issue
In the struggle,
Brains are very
Apt to count.
Though the field
Seem mediocre
And as yet
One cannot tell,
Keep your eye
On McAdoodle,
Who can lucubrate
Like hell.

Mysterious sign on Cass avenue, St. Louis:

The first horse I ever rode was a clock-eyed mule.

You make the first guess.

YOU AND THE MINUTES.

THE minute in which you are is the youngest minute, and if you are really living in it you are as young as it is.

If your attention is on the past while this minute slips by, you are not sharing in its youth. It will pass and join the other dead minutes and its youth will have failed to keep you young. If you brood constantly on the past, you cannot expect to feel young. For all those past minutes, and hours, and days, and years are dead and dry and naught. They can never return and for them is no resurrection. You cannot really live in them, though you can dream of them. There is no real past!

But you would rather live than dream, would you not?

And the only life you can live is to be found in the moments as they arrive. Each is a surprise-child, born for you. And, being a portion of the coming eternity, you are as truly born for it. You can realize this if you wish, and do not prefer to dream of the dead past—a useless waste—instead of gladly living this new and ever-young moment.

This present minute, this moment, being the youngest of all time, if you really are part of it through alert, joyous, effective living, in which your whole being shares, you are truly as young as that youngest of all moments.

Here, then, is the secret of staying young. Indeed, the word staying is less appropriate than the word becoming. For, living in the youngest moment, which is the present moment, is an ever-becoming young, the present moment ever giving birth to a new moment younger than itself.

"Grow old along with me," advised Browning. But rather say, "Grow young along with me." For how can one who really lives in these young, ever-recurring, new-born minutes, coming out of the infinitely generous future and inviting us to share their young, untarnished, untired life—how can he be aging?

Here comes youth! Here comes promise! Here comes opportunity for joy, for wit, for love!

Hail, new moment, young minute—mine without price! Hail, latest child of heaven! I take your hand and smiling share your work and your blessing.

And even while so doing, this youthful moment, and you living in it, become still younger by the magic of merging into the next and still younger moment.

Grow young along with me!

H. M. WILLIAMS.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

WOMAN'S FITNESS IN POLITICS.

From the New York World.

"NO WOMAN," remarks our neighbor, the Times, discussing the results of the Albany convention, "in the present stage of the game or in any stage of it, should seek to be named to any office or political function save for her proved fitness."

The suggestion is so excellent that we not only heartily echo it but would gladly see it doubled in application and promptly put in practice. Why not make the same rule for men? It has never been tried; but that, in an age of remodeling ancient institutions nearer to the heart's desire is no objection. In fact, the novelty of the idea commends it.

In the past, men have been named delegates and candidates for reasons which fitness played no part. To placate hyphenate voters of this stripe or that; to tap a promising bar'l; to propitiate an important political interest; to keep power in the hands of the boss—such have been frequent political motives; and to them must be added the numerous cases where the seekers of place suppose themselves to be fit but those who accede to their demands know better.

All this, the Times' advice is followed, with the enlargement due to sex equality, would be changed. There is to be no political advancement of women "simply because they are women." Men must submit to the same rule, or there will, indeed, be the "war of sexes" which the Times fears. Let the one rule of fitness be applied to all aspirants and we may begin to see efficiency and representative quality as never before in the government of these United States.

HISTORIC VALUE OF NEWSPAPERS.

MELVILLE E. STONE in Collier's.

HERBERT SPENCER, in his work on "The Philosophy of Style," calls attention to a common weakness on the part of those who write of histories. He says: "A modern newspaper statement, though probably true, if quoted as testimony would be laughed at, but the letter of a court gossip, written some centuries ago, is thought good historical evidence."

By reason of his power and his opportunities an editor comes into somewhat close touch with many great men and is able to pry into the whys and wherefores of many "enterprises of great pith and moment." And in some degree the work has a distinctly permanent value. Out of its abstract and brief chronicle of the day is created a reservoir of fact from which the wise historian might best draw his interpretations and deductions, if he would.

LADY ASTOR'S MAIDEN SPEECH.

From the Boston Transcript.

True to friendly forecasts, Lady Astor delivering her maiden speech in the House of Commons yesterday made a plea on behalf of women and children and against the drink evil that brought out a torrent of cheers from members who were loath for her to stop and crowded around her when she finished to offer congratulations.

Her speech was characteristic of the new hour in British politics. Keen, sharp, yet not "sassy," as predicted by old-timers fearing they knew not what, she drove straight to her point and never wandered therefrom. Speaking in a clear voice which rung through the great hall, she supported the control of liquor traffic. She knew "the country was not desirous of prohibition and she was not working for it." But she was certain "the country is ripe for drastic drink reform." Then she added a characteristic phrase, so like Lloyd George's epigrams that the House cheered: "I want to see that the drink submarine does not torpedo the Prime Minister and that he is master in his own house." This ability to frame a witty and forceful sentence sealed her triumph as a speaker. It torpedoed the last of the out-of-date English Commoners who saw the end of the House of Commons the day a woman entered it.

Events in the Social World

Those Returning From Winter Resorts Find Plenty to Occupy Time in Preparations for Board Walk and Junior League Activities, Which Are Assuming Large Proportions.

ALTHOUGH the majority of people, who plan to spend a part of the winter season at a winter resort, usually choose the early part of the winter and are now beginning to return home, not a few, knowing the vagaries of a March in St. Louis, have waited until now to depart, so that they might enjoy the sunshine of a warmer clime during that windy month. There have also been quite a number of departures for Excelsior and French Lick Springs in the last week, but they are usually seeking a rest rather than an outing, and a week or ten days is the extent of a stay at either of these places.

Those who have returned find plenty to occupy their time, even though there are no social functions of any size being given. With the Board Walk, the Junior League play and the various campaigns to raise money for charitable interests, all the assistance possible is needed. For a while it looked as if the Board Walk and the Junior League would conflict, coming so close together and with many persons working for both, but arrangements will be made so one will not interfere with the other. Donald McDonald, who coached the Junior League Follies so successfully three years ago, is coming on to select the cast and coach them this year, and he will arrive from the East about March 10. The first rehearsal will take place a day or two later. The league now boasts of a membership of about 200 which includes those invited in this year. Virtually all the debutantes of the season and several brides, who have married St. Louis men and have come to St. Louis to reside, are among the new members. The three performances will be given on Friday evening, April 16 and Saturday afternoon and evening, April 17, at the Odeon. A new project has been added this year in the form of a supper dance. There will be one at the Jefferson Hotel after the performance on Friday and one at the Statler on Saturday evening. The money realized from the performances and supper parties will be divided among several charities, one of which is the maintenance of a work shop in connection with Barnes Hospital.

Mrs. Robert Holland is president of the league and chairman of the Committee of Arrangements. Mrs. Harold Reed Wilson and Miss Annie Laurie Warmack are vice chairmen and some of the other women who are in charge of committees are Mrs. Harry Potter, who will dispose of the boxes, Miss Marian Franciscus, tickets; Mrs. Walter Fischel, properties; Mrs. Hayward Niedringhaus and Mrs. Effie Bagnell Culbertson, costumes; Miss Frances Reid Jones, cast; Miss Roberta Lewis, publicity, and Mrs. George Kimball Conant, programs.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hogan Platt of 506 Lake avenue entertained 20 guests with a unique dinner party last evening. Preceding the dinner, a one-act melodrama was given with several of the guests cast as characters. The play was written by Mrs. Dwight Davis and Mrs. Platt.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray P. Prewitt have returned from their wedding trip and are at home at the Branscombe Hotel apartments. Mrs. Prewitt was until Feb. 26, Mrs. Marie Akins Simpson.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Duncker and Mrs. Charles P. Duncker Jr. of Brentmoor will leave Palm Beach where they have been for several weeks and will go to Cuba for the remainder of the winter.

Among the St. Louisans sojourning in New York are Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Steedman of 42 Westmoreland place, who are at the Hotel Chatham.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Beck of 3036 Knox avenue have sent out cards announcing the marriage of their daughter, Miss Margaret Beck, to Leonard W. Woods on Saturday, Feb. 28. The Rev. Ben E. Reed of Webster Groves, an old friend of the bride's family, performed the ceremony. The only attendants were Miss Helen Beck, who served her sister as maid of honor and Charles Bollinger, who was best man.

Mrs. James F. Atkins of 22 Windemere place has leased her home to Mr. and Mrs. John A. Schaeffer of Joplin, Mo., and will soon depart for Los Angeles to visit her mother, Mrs. Mary Hackman, returning to St. Louis May 1.

Mrs. W. B. Ittner of 5553 Bartmer avenue has returned from New York City, and Ithaca, N. Y., where she was a chaperon at the Cornell "prom."

The College Club of St. Louis will have its fourth conference on presidential suffrage at the regular meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Church of the Unity. Mrs. Laura Edwards will speak on "Presidential Electors."

by Jack London; and "Saltimbank," translated from the Dutch of Herman Heijermans for this occasion by Caroline Heijermans-Houwink and Lilian Saunders. Heijermans is one of the rising dramatists of Europe, and probably will be the author of the next play in which Mme. Kalisch appears, negotiations with him being in progress. The play at the guild will be the first work of his produced in America.

Some of the leading amateur players of the city will be in the casts of Friday and Saturday nights, including Nancy Lewis Saunders, Gustavus Tuckerman, Herbert Cost, Adolph Drey, Francis Allison and Lea Dick. The guild will revive at these performances its custom of serving coffee in the adjoining gallery while the stage is being re-set. The performance will be at 8:15.

The fame of the Little Theater in St. Louis is getting about in the country around, and several nearby cities want to see it. The guild is trying to meet some of the demands, and has two of its plays leaving on Monday for Columbia, Mo., where they will be given on Monday night before the Dramatic Arts Club. Some other excursions will probably be taken, including one outdoor performance at a Missouri school. The guild has by this time grown in experience and equipment sufficiently to make this sort of thing possible, and amateur playing has become so good that it has no apology to make upon even that difficult score.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Lonsway of 5567 Cabanne avenue are receiving congratulations upon the arrival of a daughter, whom they have named Lucy Katherine. Mrs. Lonsway was Miss Donna Hogan.

The women of North St. Louis in sympathy with the approaching campaign in support of the erection of two hotels for wage earning young women will hold a conference similar to the one held at the residence of Mrs. J. P. Queeny last Thursday at the residence of Mrs. August Reller, 24 Gast place, Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock. Upwards of 150 North End women have been issued invitations for the affair.

Speakers at the conference will be Mrs. Lon O. Hocker and Mrs. Harry January, while the business of prime importance that will be attended to is the preparations of lists of women to serve as captains of the North Side campaign teams of the drive.

In the receiving line with Mrs. Reller will be many of the leaders of the housing movement, Y. W. C. A. executives and governing board members of the Letmar Club, two organizations that will have charge of the drive, among them being Mmes. Samuel Van Hoefen, Henry Luedinghaus, Alexander Gast, Harry Geer, Edwin Kuhs, James Holmes, William K. Bixby, Harvey G. Mudd, Samuel Davis, William A. Stickney, Charles P. O'Fallon, J. Porter Tirril and Harry Sprague.

Letmar Club campaigns captains who were announced last week include Mmes. David O. Ives, Wilbur Jones, Alice Orr Clark, James A. Seddon, J. A. Roach, C. W. Swingley, Hortense B. Spiekerman, J. A. Moyrey, Harry Hoffman, A. D. Weed, L. L. Renfrow, W. P. Evans, W. H. F. Blume, A. G. Baare and J. Gantz and Miss Katherine Ryffel, while in reserve will be Mmes. Paul J. Guerard, H. E. McCormack, Specht, Hugo Goerner, William Stultz, Nelson Cunliff and Fred Campbell and Miss Mary V. Sherrer.

M. and Mme. Bernard of the Hotel Jefferson have returned to the city after a midwinter visit to New York.

A "muscal tea" will be given under the auspices of several patriotic organizations in the Hotel Statler ball room at 3 p. m. Friday, for the benefit of the starving orphans in Armenia. Some of the best talent in the city have offered their services for the afternoon's program. Mrs. A. I. Epstein will give vocal numbers, with Mrs. Carl J. Luyties, at the piano. Miss Elise Aehle will give a violin selection with Mrs. C. S. Aehle at the piano. The Orpheum Circuit has been asked to contribute a sketch. Mrs. Frederick D. Gardner, who was one of the first women in the State to answer the appeal of the Near East Relief Committee, has been invited as a guest.

Mrs. M. Hayward Post is chairman of the St. Louis Women's Division, Near East Relief. Mrs. John Trigg Moss is general chairman for the musical tea; Mrs. A. E. Reton is general chairman of the program; Mrs. Wilson W. Kayser is chairman of the Ticket Committee; Mrs. Shelby H. Curlee is chairman of finance; Mrs. L. William Ray is chairman of publicity, and Mrs. Charles H. Lyle is chairman of hospitality, assisted by Miss Lurline Booker, and a representative from each patriotic society will be asked to serve on this committeee.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Hilda Mueller, daughter of Vincent A. Mueller, 5801 Etzel avenue, and Frank Thatcher of 5370 Theodosia avenue. Miss Mueller makes her home with her aunt, Mrs. Wauge of 1411 Romaine place. The wedding will take place in June.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Cytron of 5220 North Market street, announce the engagement of Mrs. Cytron's sister, Miss Bessie Goldstein, to Frank Altman of Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. C. J. Gregory of 5188 Cates avenue has departed for Des Moines, Iowa and Minneapolis, Minn. She will spend several weeks in each city, visiting friends. Mr. Gregory will join her in Des Moines.

One of the earliest of the postlenten gayeties to hold out attraction for society after its period of seasonal hibernation will be the annual dance and vaudeville entertainment of the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, announcement of which was made during the week. The affair will take place at the First Regiment Armory the evening of April 7. Pro-

To Make Your Hair Look Naturally Curly

If milady of the straight, lank hair will adopt the simple silmerine method, she will have as pretty wavy tresses as she could wish to own. The curliness will look so natural and glossy, quite different from the obvious artificial curls and the parched, dead appearance of the hair produced by the heated iron.

Liquid silmerine can of course be obtained at any drug store and a few ounces will keep the hair in curl for many weeks. Being perfectly harmless and neither sticky nor greasy, no one need have the least hesitancy in using it. It is best applied with a clean toothbrush, drawing this through the hair from crown to tip just before doing it up. The effect will be all that anyone could desire.

Easy Way to Remove Freckles and Eruptions

Some women have skin of such texture they occasionally are annoyed by the sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines. March winds usually play havoc with skins of that kind. In such cases if one will procure an ounce of common mercolized wax at any drug store, apply a little of it before retiring, like cold cream, she can easily overcome the trouble. When the wax is washed off the next morning, almost invisible flaky skin particles come with it. The entire outer cuticle is removed in this way in a week or so, with all its defects. No bleach could so effectually remove freckles or blemishes. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking. No harm or inconvenience accompanies this simple treatment.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant, and you appear years younger.

DR. EGGERS SUES COUNTY COURT

Dr. G. C. Eggers, Deputy State Health Commissioner in St. Louis County, has filed a mandamus suit in the Circuit Court at Clayton against the County Court to compel the payment of $1448 he alleges is due him for his services as County Health Commissioner. The Judges of the County Court, he declares, have refused to pay him, although they admit his claim is just and reasonable.

Dr. Eggers says that until last August he was County Commissioner under a law repealed by the Legislature in that month which abolished the office. From August to January he served without compensation, performing all the necessary duties of the County Commissioner. The Judges of the County Court say they are without authority to pay the bill until ordered to do so under the suit.

Sensible and Easy to Follow Advice on the Art of Making Yourself Attractive

By Madame Maree

Wrinkles—and How Best to Keep Them Away

DID you ever notice how a coarse skin, or one with large pores will always show the most wrinkles? This discovery points to the secret of removing wrinkles, which has never before been fully realized. By making the pores smaller, a most remarkable result is produced on wrinkles. The pores "brace up," and the skin becomes much finer in texture. This could be illustrated by mentioning the difference in texture between cheesecloth and cambric. By making the pores smaller, the skin ceases to be cheesecloth in texture; it becomes fine and plump as that of a baby. Making the pores smaller, and thereby eliminating wrinkles is quickly done by the simple use of eptol. This can be obtained at any drug store for fifty cents. This can be liberally used, as it should be, and proves to be more economical than the old methods heretofore commonly used. Crow's feet, lines of age, sagging of flesh, deep and little wrinkles are all corrected in a very extraordinary manner.

And Here Is a New Way to Rid the Pores of Blackheads

THERE is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads and that is to dissolve them.

To do this get a package of neroxin from any drug store for fifty cents—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin. Pinching and squeezing only causes irritation, make large pores, and do not get them out after they become hard. The powdered neroxin and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out.

The Best Shampoo Is Easiest to Use, and Cheap Too

A SHAMPOO that is rapidly taking the place of soap and other head-washes is eggol.

No other preparation can produce the exquisite appearance of fine silkiness to the hair, which compels admiration of its beauty and life. This head-wash consists merely in dissolving a teaspoonful of eggol in half a cup of hot water and applying to the hair like an ordinary shampoo. An exceptionally rich and satiny cloud of lather is instantly formed.

It removes more quickly and thoroughly than can any soap or ordinary shampoo, every particle of dirt and scurf, as well as the dead skin and other accumulations. Soap usually leaves a film on the hair and scalp, difficult to wash off. Eggol, on the other hand, removes all greasy film and cleanses the pores of the scalp, letting the hair "breathe," as is necessary to its health and vigor. A striking difference is seen in the growth of the hair after a short time, and its silky beauty wonderfully enhanced. It makes head washing a positive pleasure, even when the hair is very thick. It is the silky head-wash without an equal. It leaves the hair easy to "do up." For twenty-five cents enough eggol can be obtained at any drug store to provide twelve or more of these unusual shampoos.

Never Use an Irritating Depilatory for Superfluous Hair

THERE is only one superfluous hair-remover known which will not cause redness, irritation or injury to the skin. This is a formula recently discovered, which not only is as safe as a lotion on the skin, but removes any hair instantly without leaving any evidence whatever that a hair-remover has been used. The skin will be soft and white. This toilet preparation, sulfo solution, is being used by thousands of ladies. This comes in the form of a creamy, golden liquid. It is applied with the fingers or a little cotton swab on the hairs to be removed. Almost immediately the hairs dissolve completely. The cream is then wiped off, leaving the skin in exquisite condition, without the least reddening or smarting. It can be applied to the most delicate skin or any part of the body, and will not even leave the skin red. The whole thing is all done in a few moments with perfect ease, and it never fails to remove all hairs, no matter how thick or bristly. Its use positively defies detection. Aside from its marvelous results, it is the most economical hair-remover known. It can be obtained for one dollar at any drug store.

The Shortest Route to a Beautiful Skin

THERE is a sure way, a new way and a quick way to make your complexion wonderfully beautiful. This method is being used by thousands of women with extraordinary success. It is a new discovery—a formula which makes all the old, spotty, muddy skin loosen right off, showing the lily-like, angelic-tinted skin underneath, smooth and beautiful.

Make up the formula easily at home in a few minutes by mixing one ounce of zintone in a pint of water and adding a tablespoonful of glycerine. This cream is entirely free from many of the injurious ingredients so commonly used in the many face preparations sold. Furthermore, it is exceedingly economical and never fails to do the work. The zintone can be obtained at any drug store for fifty cents.

Just a Little Care Will Keep Hair Long and Beautiful

YOU can easily prevent hair from falling, and you can make it grow thick and luxuriant by a very simple method, which is far superior in results to that of any so-called hair tonic you can buy. You will notice the difference in your hair in a very few days, and it will take on a vigorous lustre besides, and thin spots will at once begin to fill with new hair. This is done by simply adding one ounce of beta-quinol to a half pint of water and a half pint of bay rum. If you prefer you may use a full pint of witch hazel instead of the water and bay rum. The beta quinol may be procured for 50 cents at any drugstore. Try this and you will no longer find handfuls of hair coming out on your comb and brush, and your hair will be the envy of all your friends.

G. B. SHAW TELLS WHE HE WILL NEVER VISIT AMERICA

from your target at the time, but you've got to let go. If, then, the bomb hits women and children, it's almost pure accident. If your bomb hits innocent people, it's patriotism and heroism. If the other fellow's hit them, it's savagery. We've had our share of that kind of nonsense over here. But you have more than your share of it in America. Tragic nonsense it was, too, for anyone who dared dissent from your Government —a ruthlessness in inverse proportion to the distance from the cause of things."

"Always Hurts Feelings of Some."

He floundered about in his chair as he spoke, clasping his knee one moment, flinging a leg over the arm of his chair the next, shooting out his hand as a thought came to him quicker than the words for it—from excess of vitality and for emphasis.

"I think is was because Americans are under the delusion that it's the people that govern there," he went on. "We in England know that we have a ruling class. We know that it's the masters and not the masses who are the Government. To attack the Government, there, is rather a popular pastime. In America you haven't realized yet that it's your money kings that rule. You think it's a government of the people, by the people and for the people. That's how you get your mob passion when anyone attacks the Government. It's reflected in the courtroom and on the bench as well as in the street. And I'd rather not experience it at first hand."

I suggested that he could find audiences and compensation for perfectly safe topics.

"Ah, yes," he nodded. "It reminds me of an invitation I got to speak in the northern part of England. They offered the usual honorarium. 'But,' they wrote, 'we hope you will not talk on politics or religion or say anything that will hurt people's feelings.' I wrote back that politics and religion were the only things I was interested in, that I always talked about them and that I always hurt some people's feelings. However, I suggested that if they were afraid of the gate receipts, I'd pay my own carfare and charge nothing for the lecture, taking up a collection only among the people whose feelings hadn5t been hurt. I received a reply to come at once—on those terms. I'm afraid my managers in America, if I went there, would have a hard time keeping me from hurting the feelings of some people who could make it exceedingingly uncomfortable for me.

Says Women Vote Abominably.

"As for money, I find that usually I make money for somebody else. I'm what you call in America a spellbinder of sorts. I've done a lot of talking and perhaps some teaching. Well, I start out with the laudable determination of bringing my message to England's masses. I accept an invitation to talk somewhere. When I get there, instead of England's masses I find an audience of rich ladies in tremendous hats who'd paid exorbitant prices for seats."

I though I caught a wisp of patronizing in his tone.

"Why, isn't your message for ladies as well?"

"There's only one thing women can't do; or, rather, they do it abominably, that's voting," he said. "But no matter how badly they vote there should be women on every administrative body on earth. I'd go out and collect them at random. Just as you do a Coroner's jury. I'd be particular that there should be all sorts of women—and that they were mixed with men on juries, tribunals, committees. Then we should have something practical done. Men should not be allowed to do the actual work. They are not practical enough. Women are. Since the beginning of time it's women that have done the practical things—and most of the despised and unpleasant work. They may often do it badly, but they get it done. And in many things they excel men. Give a woman a dollar to spend, for example, and you'll see how far she can make it go.

"Men have excelled women at their own work," I said. "The best cooks in the world and the best dressmakers"——

"I disagree," he cut in. "There's been a lot of humbug about men dressmakers. I happen to know something about women's costumes because I've mounted so many of my plays. In the beginning there were only men couturiers, and they were able to bully women into wearing what these men told them they should wear. Then women entered the field and men lost their domination. The result is that women have produced better color and better lines—and suitability into the bargain."

Describes Zeppelin Raid.

We wandered away from America and found ourselves back in the war with a Zeppelin hovering over the very room in which we sat.

"I was reading one night when I heard the warning signals," he said. "First the maroons—'Boom! Boom! Boom!' Twenty minutes later came heavier reports—the anti-aircraft guns. I was horribly frightened. Every sensible person went down into underground shelters. But I am also exceedingly lazy, and I soon argued myself into thinking that I was as safe there as anywhere. Then came a hideous crash. A bomb had dropped right out there"—— He pointed out of the window to Cleopatra's Needle, no more than a hundred yards away. "It chipped the base of it. A second bomb fell about the same distance away, onto the Little Theater. Then to complete the triangle with me in the center a third bomb ripped things open across the court from the Savoy Hotel, no further away than the Little Theater or the Needle. Mrs. Patrick Campbell was staying at the Savoy at that time. She told me she was at her window when the bomb fell. Suddenly the whole front of the house at which she was looking was shorn away. She had an absolute impression for a few moments of being at the front with her son and under fire. He'd been killed, you know, a few days before. Later, maps were issued of where bombs had fallen on London. There wasn't a district that hadn't been hit. So my experience was fairly typical."

There occurred to me G. K. Chesterton's belief in miracles as he expressed it in the interview I had with him. I mentioned it to Shaw.

"I know. We had it out, he and I," Shaw said. "He pointed out that there is the same kind of evidence for miracles as for science—the testimony of the senses and the reports of men. 'Perfectly true,' I admitted. 'Now tell me, do you believe in the miracle of the Liquefaction of St. Januarius, for example?' He hedged. 'That's just it!' I said. 'Your syllogism is plausible because you're clever. But when you're faced with some particular application of it * * * .'"

Which gives any one who doesn't agree with Shaw's syllogisms a chance to explain them away on the same ground. One feels that if he wanted to do it Shaw could make out as good a case for one side of a thesis as for the other. And any one who prefers other reasons for Shaw's disinclination to visit America than those which he gave me may easily assume that Shaw could make out as bad a case against any other country which required an effort to reach. To such people I merely suggest that Emerson saw no real value in travel; that Kant became angry when one day he found himself as far as 25 miles from home; and that Socrates was even reluctant to take a trip to the country. The reason he gave was precisely in the words of one of Shaw's reasons—that one tree looked to him like another. In other words, if some American wishes to invalidate Shaw's objection to visiting America, he may do so by putting him down as a sage.

OUR BIG OFFER

Catarrh

ENDED OR GET YOUR MONEY BACK

What if a specialist in catarrhal afflictions, a real physician of character and integrity, should offer to relieve you of catarrh, or nothing to pay?

You would jump at the chance. Of course you would. You would be foolish if you didn't.

And now that the makers of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me), say to you that Hyomei will end catarrh or that you can have your money back, what are you going to do? Are you going to be prejudiced and narrow minded just because the offer is not made by a physician?

Are you going to continue to suffer with snuffles, crusts in the nose, watery eyes, mucous in the throat, and all the annoying and distressing conditions that accompany catarrh, when Hyomei will satisfy you or money back?

HYOMEI INHALER

Do you know what Hyomei is? Let us tell you; it is composed chiefly of eucalyptus obtained from the eucalyptus trees of inland Australia, where catarrh, asthma, croup and hay fever are practically unknown.

Pour a few drops of Hyomei into the hard rubber inhaler (same as illustration), and you can then breathe into the lungs the germ-killing antiseptic you would breathe in the Australian forests of pine and eucalyptus.

And Hyomei is so pleasant to use, you'll like to use it; when you breathe it in it has such a soothing, healing effect on the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane. In five minutes you get such wonderful relief that you know that at last you have help.

A Hyomei outfit, which consists of one bottle of Hyomei, a hard rubber pocket inhaler and medicine dropper and simple instructions for use, costs only $1.15, and extra bottles of Hyomei, if afterward needed, cost 60 cents.

And besides catarrh, remember that Hyomei is guaranteed to relieve asthma, croup, bronchitis, coughs, colds, sore throat and hay fever, or money back. Hyomei is sold by leading druggists everywhere. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. guarantees it.

Stop and Think—Health Depends Upon the Kidneys

Increasing Death Rate Each Year From Preventable Kidney Diseases

In our pursuit of the mighty dollar, we too often are absorbed in the topics of the day, pleasure, etc., to stop and consider our health. Stop now—think—kidney diseases caused 100,000 deaths last year. Are you going to be included in this year's toll? Why, you will exclaim, do so many die, why are the health authorities so concerned; the answer is, we bolt down our food, take no exercise, neglect our sleep and otherwise subject our system to all sorts of abuse. Is it any wonder then the kidneys become diseased and fail in their duties of poison elimination?

Poisons are constantly being created in our bodies and if the kidneys fail to carry them off they are absorbed by the blood, causing ill health and misery in the form of headaches, backaches, tired feeling, indigestion, etc.

You may avoid considerable suffering if you heed nature's warnings and assist the kidneys. Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy is a reliable preparation made from herbs and other beneficial ingredients that h been used with excellent results f 40 years. It assists the kidneys in their important duties, strengthens and helps repair the wasted tissues. It is very effective and is used in thousands of homes. Read what this grateful woman says:

"I wish to say that your remedies have been used in our family for about fifteen years. We are never without a bottle of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy in our home, and it has saved many a doctor's bill. It is a wonderful medicine for all diseases of the kidneys and liver."—Florence E. Schmidt, R. F. D., No. 1, Dunkirk, O.

"FOLLIES," AT $4.40 A SEAT, OPEN TONIGHT

Mme. Kalich at Jefferson a Second Week; Bathing Beauties at Orpheum.

At the top-loftiest prices ever charged for a regular theatrical attraction here—namely, $4 ($4.40 with war tax) for parquet seats, the Ziegfeld Follies of 1919 will open a week's engagement at the American Theater tonight.

Those who consider the Follies too giddy, or too expensive, or who perchance find the house sold out, during the week, can go to see Mme Bertha Kalich in her second week's engagement in "The Riddle: Woman," at the Shubert-Jefferson, or car take their vaudeville straight at th Orpheum, where Bothwell Browne' Bathing Beauties are to head the bil

The 1919 Follies are up to th present minute in everything but th name, it is asserted. The date that of the season when the presen revue, which is the thirteenth annua production of its kind, was seen in New York.

Talent in Authorship.

The performance is in two acts, staged by Ned Wayburn under the Ziegfeld supervision. The lyrics and music for the entire second act are by Irving Berlin, and the score for the ballet, in which Marilynn Miller is to appear, is by Victor Herbert. Joseph Urban designed and painted the scenes, and a series of pictures created and presented by Ben Ali Haggin will be featured.

In the cast besides Miss Miller are Eddie Cantor, Bert Williams, John Steel, DeLyle Alda, Van and Schenck, George LeMaire, Johnny Dooley, Ray Dooley, Eddie Dowling, Phil Dwyer, Addison Young, Doris Levant, Olive Vaughn, Helen Shea, the Fairbanks Twins, Callahan Sisters, Emily Drange, Ruth Taylor, Marie Wallace, Helen Jesimer and Nan Larned.

Kalich's Second Week.

Woman is a riddle. If one must pay money to learn this fact, a marriage license is cheaper than a theater ticket. However, there are upkeep charges connected with marriage, so that the less expensive way, in the long run, may be to see Mme. Kalich in "The Riddle: Woman," at the Jefferson. She begins tonight the second week of an engagement which has been successful in its first week. The play pictures the resolute resistance of a woman of high spirit and dominant social position to a blackmailer, who drives another woman to suicide, and who is trying to marry an innocent girl.

At the Jefferson next Sunday night Louis Mann will appear in "Friendly Enemies," in which he has been playing since July, 1918. At the American the same night, Raymond Hitchcock will present his revue, "Hitchy-Koo, 1919." For the following week, the American has booked "Angel Face," and for the week beginning March 29, Ruth Chatterton in "Moonlight and Honeysuckle." Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske will appear at the American the week of April 12, in "Miss Nelly of N'Orleans."

Californians at Orpheum.

The Bathing Beauties, heading the Orpheum bill tomorrow, are announced as a California attraction. Another feature of the bill will be Dainty Marie, in white tights, performing aerial feats. James H. Cullen, the "Man from the West;" Ben Ryan and Henrietta Lee, in "Hats and Shoes;" and Paul Decker and company, are among the other performers.

The Grand Opera House bill tomorrow will be headed by Lillian Mortimer and company, in "Oh, My Darling." At the Rialto Theater, Lillian Shaw, playing the past week at the Orpheum, will head the bill beginning tomorrow. The Columbia's vaudeville program for the first half of the week will be led by a musical comedy, "On the Links."

Loew's Garrick Theater will feature, in today's vaudeville bill, Frank Stafford and Marie Stone in a nature-art production, "A Hunter's Game."

At the Standard this week, "Kewpie Dolls;" at the Gayety, "O'Girl Co."

ATTACHMENT SUIT AGAINST BROKERAGE FIRM DISSOLVED

Saunders Company Reopens After Action by W. A. Menges, Who Alleges He Lots $10,625.

Attachment proceedings against the brokerage firm of George M. and John M. Saunders, occupying four offices on the eighth floor of the Arcade Building, at Eighth and Olive streets, were dissolved late Friday in so far as the attachment was concerned, and the firm was permitted to resume business after it had been closed for a short time by Deputy Sheriffs. The attachment was made in a suit filed by Walter A. Menges, 802 Clarkson place, secretary of the Jack Daniel Distilling Co., who alleges that he had lost $10,625 through investments made with the Saunders firm between Sept. 20, 1919, and Jan. 21 last.

The headquarters of the Saunders Co. is at Chicago. Its branch here is under manageemnt of M. H. Golsen, who also is named as a defendant in the suit. Golsen denied that any misrepresentation had been made to Menges. "We regarded him as one of our most satisfied clients," Golsen said. "He made several investments with us from September to January, which shows that he was fairly dealt with. As to the New York curb prices on certain stock, I can only say we sold the stock to him at the price named by the company."

Attorneys for both sides signed a stipulation that permitted the attachment to be released. The defendant firm filed an answer denying the allegations, and the case will now come up in the Circuit Court.

Doctors Stand Amazed at Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong—According to Dr. Lewis

Guaranteed to Strengthen Eyesight 50% In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by over-worked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye trobules of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this description. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two or four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or misfit glasses. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above, is not a patent medicine or a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in this city by the leading druggists, including the Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson stores.

MABLE GARRISON IS SYMPHONY SOLOIST

Orchestra Will Give First Performance of Philip Clapp's New Work.

Philip Clapp, an American composer whose work has been attracting attention for the last two or three years, will be featured at the symphony concerts of Friday afternoon and Saturday night at the Odeon. A new composition of his, "Norge," a tone-poem for orchestra, which has an incidental piano part, will be given its first hearing on any stage, and its composer will have the piano part. Clapp now holds the chair of music at the University of Iowa and is fast becoming one of the foremost American composers.

This week's two concerts, which are the last but one pair, to be presented this season in the regular series, will have as guest artist the young Metropolitan Opera soprano, Mabel Garrison, and will give in the position of chief number, the "New World" symphony of Dvorak. The Dvorak symphony is of peculiar interest just now, coming immediately after the new Converse symphony which was played last week, because for years it has been called THE American symphony.

In the light of subsequent symphonies produced by American-born composers, it now presents the aspect of a foreigner's impressions of the New World, rather than an actual picture of this country. Dvorak wrote the New World symphony after a residence of about two years in New York and Boston, during which time he traveled extensively in the East and South, and the symphony bears the impress of the latter journeyings in the negro melodies which form its thematic base.

Mabel Garrison Soloist.

Mabel Garrison, the artist of the program, is an American girl, educated and brought out, artistically, entirely in this country. She was born in Baltimore and is one of the star graduates of the famous Peabody Institute of that city, being one of the two students there to win the school's much-loved "vocal diploma." Her operatic debut was made in Mozart's "Magic Flute," with the Century Opera Company, but she soon after joined the Metropolitan Opera, and now is one of the most popular sopranos of that organization. She will sing two numbers in each of the two concerts with the St. Louis orchestra, the complete program of which is here given:

Weber........Overture to "Der Freischuetz"
Mozart—
Recitative and Rondo: "Mia speranza adorata"
Clapp, "Norge" Tone Poem for Orchestra (The Composer at the Piano.) (First Time.)
Thomas........"Mad Scene" from "Hamlet"

Dvorak—
Symphony in E Minor, No. 5, Op. 95, "From the New World."
I—Adagio: Allegro molto.
II—Largo.
III—Scherzo.
IV—Allegro con fuoco.

Unusual "Pop" Program.

An orchestra field day is promised at the Pop concert of this afternoon. Two of the orchestra members will be prominently featured and the conductor will be represented by one of his own compositions, as well as in person at the director's desk. Mme. Ida Delledonne, harpiste of the orchestra, is the soloist announced for the afternoon, and Pellegrine Lecco, first horn, is scheduled for the horn obligato to the overture to Mendelssohn's Midsummer Night's Dream.

Another feature of the program sure to prove highly attractive is the performance of the orchestral arrangements of four of Woodforde-Finden's Indian love lyrics. The program follows:

March, "Triumphal Entrance of the Boyars" ....Halvorsen
Overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" ....Mendelssohn
Two Spanish Dances ....Moszkowski
Harp Solo, "Impromptu-Caprice"..G. Pierne
Waltz, "Harlequin's Wedding"..........Zach
Four Indian Love Lyrics..Woodforde-Finden
1. "The Temple Bells."
2. "Less Than the Dust."
3. "Kashmiri Song."
4. "Till I Wake."

Two more concerts will be given at the St. Louis high schools this week by the Symphony Orchestra, thus closing that series for the current season. They will take place Tuesday and Thursday afternoon at Yeatman and Soldan High Schools, respectively, and the orchestral numbers will be followed in each case by a chorus of the school children accompanied by the orchestra and directed by the music supervisor of the school at which the concerts are given. Miss Eugenie Dussuchel will conduct the chorus at Yeatman on Tuesday afternoon, and Miss M. Teresa Finn and William John Hall that at Soldan on Thursday. Both programs are of more than ordinary interest

Pageant Gives Bossi Work.

St. Louis will hear the third American performance of the newest of the admittedly great choral symphonies when the St. Louis Pageant Choral Society produces "Paradise Lost" by the Italian composer, Enrico Bossi, at the Odeon Tuesday night. Though not a very recently written composition the Bossi work has had less than six performances all told, and therefore still may be classed as a new work.

Written over a number of years the work had its initial performance under the baton of its composer in Milan in 1907. It was performed next in Berlin just before the war, and three years ago it had its first production in English. The Handel and Haydn Society of Boston gave the first presentation of the work in this country, and in May, 1916, the University of Michigan produced it at the university music festival of that year.

"Paradise Lost" is recognized as Bossi's greatest work. It is written for chorus, soloists, orchestra and organ, and is in four parts—the Prologue, Hell, Paradise and Earth. In the Prologue the import of the text is void and black lay the earth, amid chaos no life had being;" and the theme of the creation is portrayed. In the "hell" part the fury of Satan is the dominating theme, and the part ends in a tremendous chorus "Glory, Satan, to thee," in which Moloch and Belial, two of the leading characters, take prominent part.

The text of the work is a translation and adaptation of the Milton epic by L. A. Villanis, re-translated into German by John Bernhoff and Wilhelm Weber, and re-translated Music Events Announced.

Under auspices of the Shaare Emeth Sisterhood at Shaare Emeth Temple, Lindell and Vandeventer avenues next Sunday evening, Constance Ramsey Gideon and Henry Gideon will present a program of songs and stories.

The analogy of color and tone demonstrated by paintings and music is the subject of a lecture to be given at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, March 20, at the Artist's Guild, Union and Enright avenues. The entertainment is given under the auspices of the Mme. Paderewski Auxiliary No. 24, of which Miss Alice Pettingill is secretary. The proceeds will be devoted to the relief of suffering Poland.

Thomas Wilfred in Recital.

Thomas Wilfred, the noted interpreter of folk songs, will give a recital at Mary Institute hall on Thursday afternoon under auspices of the Vassar Club, the proceeds to be devoted to the endowment fund of that college.

Wilfred is unique among musical entertainers. He has for years collected folk songs in all parts of the world, and his presentation of them is dramatic and interesting. He accompanies himself on the old 12-string, an instrument almost obsolete in these days.

Jewish Organization to Play at Odeon March 17.

A concert will be given by the Palestine Music Ensemble "Zimro," under the auspices of the People's Relief Committee for Jewish War Sufferers in Europe at the Odeon, March 17. The Palestine Music Ensemble "Zimro" has been touring the world since last summer. Next spring the orchestra will go to Palestine, where it is proposed to establish an academy of music in Jerusalem after the models of Moscow and Petrograd. The six members of the organization are graduates of the conservatories of Petrograd and Moscow. It is the only organization of Jewish musicians who have made a world tour for the promotion of Jewish music.

Those who are directing the campaign to increase the membership of the Junior Chamber of Commerce from 1200 to 4500 have obtained the promises of a number of pastors to mention the campaign at services next Sunday. The drive ends March 25.

Mr. John O'Brien, 659 N. 15th st., Philadelphia, writes: "I had been troubled for years with chronic constipation, until my whole system seemed poisoned, and I suffered with headache, languor, depression and general impaired health. I began taking Sulpherb Tablets and got immediate relief. I am, after many months, still regular in habits, and thank you, and hope they will become known to thousands, etc." If your blood is bad, tongue coated and you are constipated, with stomach and bowel irregularity, get a tube of Sulpherb Tablets of your druggist right away. EIGHT OPERAS AND CAST CHOSEN FOR OPEN AIR SEASON

"Mikado," "Robin Hood" and "Waltz Dream" Among Those to Be Presented in Forest Park.

The list of operas to be produced in the open air theater in Forest Park during a seven-weeks' season to open June 7 and the selection of artists to present them were announced yesterday by the Municipal Theater Association at a luncheon at the American Annex to which representatives of various civic organizations had been summoned.

The operas will be "The Mikado," "Robin Hood," "Firefly," "Babes in Toyland," "Woodland," "The Gondolier," "Waltz Dream," and "The Mascot." The first two named were produced during last year's season.

Irene Pavoloska Prima Donna.

The company of principals to produce the operas will comprise the following: Irene Pavoloska of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, prima donna; Warren Proctor, who appeared in St. Louis last Feb. 11 as soloist with the Apollo Club, tenor; Edward Ferguson, who toured during this winter with Tetrazzini in concert, baritone; Charles Galagher, a member of last year's open air company, basso; Mildred Rogers, who also appeared in last year's company, contralto; Eva Olivette, a stock player of Portland, Ore., soubrette; Lillian Crossfan, prima donna and soubrette; Frank Moulan, of last year's company and of wide acquaintance in St. Louis, comedian; Harry Hermson, a St. Louis actor now appearing in the Punch and Judy Theater in New York, comedian; Charles Sinclair, formerly director of the Park Theater Opera Co., stage director; Ralph Nicholls, stage manager, and Max Bendix, director of the Gallo Opera Company, musical director.

The supporting chorus will number 80, selected from among St. Louis church singers, and the orchestra will be 50 St. Louis musicians, many of them members of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

The meeting yesterday was for starting the sale of season seats through civic organizations. It was announced that the raising of a guaranty fund of $50,000 was so well assured that "there need be no worry about that." "The thing to do now is to advertise the operas so widely that the theater will be filled for all performances," Mayor Kiel, who presided, said.

Nelson Cunliff, chairman of the production committee, said that announcement would be made shortly of a competition among St. Louis artists for prizes for the best stage setting designs for the various scenes of the various operas.

Busses to Carry Crowds.

It also was announced that two inconveniences in attendance at last year's season had been corrected. One is the difficulty in reaching the theater. The Missouri Motor Bus Co. will operate its busses from the downtown district past the theater during the opera season. The Park Department busses will continue to carry passengers from the University car line to the theater.

Persons who were drenched by rain that broke up several performances last year will this year find shelter at hand in case of storms. A promenade is being constructed at the entrance and around a portion of the theater which will have a weather-tight roof under which about 4000 persons can comfortably congregate.

Mayor Kiel said that the principals engaged were familiar with the parts they will be called upon to assume and the chorus training will be begun early enough so that audiences may expect first night productions to be equal in smoothness and worth to productions later in the week. This, he pointed out, would enable persons to purchase season tickets for performances early in the week, thus making certain that if the production is stopped by rain they can exchange tickets for later performances.

UNCLE SAM HAS METHOD OF TRAPPING INCOME TAX DODGERS

the average and the employer did not prove that his employe possessed the extraordinary qualifications or performed extraordinary duties which entitled the latter to be considered an exception to the rule.

Check on Salary Charges.

The returns of the general average of one's trade or business competitors is the best check the Government has on efforts to charge off to salaries sums that logically should be subject to the higher percentages of taxation or excess profits taxes* Many a man would prefer to pay an individual tax on $100,000 rather than an excess profits tax on the same sum as a business profit for in the second case he might have to give nearly half of it to the Government.

Some people are lucky. Years ago, long before the income tax laws were ever thought of, certain men entered into contracts, recorded in their books each year and on the minutes of their corporations, paying themselves big salaries or even specified sums of the net profits of the business. These sums are not taxable as excess profits. The contracts cannot be invalidated by the Government. But these cases are not numerous.

The Government experts can tell at a glance what constitutes excessive cost of production. The burden of proof rests on the taxpayer. He may be able to explain why the salaries he pays or the expenses he incurs are out of all proportion to the other men in the same business.

And when the Government agents begin examining books and minutes of corporations, they may find evidence useful to the Department of Justice in prosecuting profiteering or combinations in restraint of trade. Prosecutions for improper returns on income taxes are not always left to the United States Attorneys, because the latter haven't the time to familiarize themselves with the intricacies of such cases. Thousands of men are especially trained for investigation and prosecution.

For failure to make a return on time, there is a penalty of $1000 plus 25 per cent of the tax due. For failing to pay tax when due or understatement through negligence, there's a penalty of 5 per cent and interest. For making a fraudulent return, the penalty is $10,000 and a year's imprisonment plus 50 per cent added to the taxes evaded. And besides, individuals are at the same time liable to prosecution under other statutes for perjury, conspiracy and other things that could keep a man in jail for years.

May Recover Two Billions.

Fully two billions of dollars that the Congress of the United States didn't estimate could be obtained from the tax-paying public may be recovered in the next 18 months from individuals and corporations who since 1917 have failed to pay the correct amounts of their taxes.

Four millions of persons, it is estimated, file income tax returns annually. That means about 12,000,000 returns for 1917, 1918 and 1919. But the Government has a way of sifting them so that the big fellows are examined first. Persons with small incomes and relatively small taxes can't be sure for another year or so that their 1917 tax returns were audited and filed.

The Government investigators discovered that the 1917 return of a big corporation was improperly returned, in fact something like $25,000,000 taxes due the Government were not included. The Government "had the goods" on the corporation and the latter paid the sum without protest. The Government demanded within ten days a part payment of $10,000,000. The firm in question went to its bank. The bank wanted first to be assured that the tax return of the same concern for 1918 was correct and that said firm wouldn't be in hot water over its other income tax return later on. So the Treasury Department co-operated to the extent of examining at once the 1918 return. The total amount of taxes for 1917 and 1918 was estimated and a check for $10,000,000 was handed over in part payment.

But there have been some tragic cases in which the firms have in the meantime changed hands, the money has been spent or the dividends distributed. People who buy out businesses need to be careful nowadays that the income tax returns of the present owners are absolutely sound and it would not be surprising if modern business made the question of past income taxes a vital factor in contracts of sale as an insurance against future liability. Banks will some day maintain bureaus in their credit departments to investigate the tax status of their clients.

Of course, there is plenty of room for fraud even among employes of the Government. But a special division of Government agents is busy checking up on personnel. And in one conspicuous instance recently, a firm which offered a bribe to a Government agent discovered 30 minutes later that the latter had turned in evidence of the attempted bribery to the United States attorney and prosecutions ensued.

Fully 200,000 returns are being handled by the Government every day. Generally speaking, there's a surplus of about two billion dollars in prospect accruing from the years 1917 and 1918 and 1919, the estimate being based upon experience with returns already examined. If the Government finally collects that amount, taxes can be reduced some time within the next five years. Individual honesty never has meant so much collectively as it does today.

JEREMIAH FUNERAL AT DU QUOIN

St. Louisans to Attend Ceremony for Mine Operator's Today.

Funeral services will be held today at the First Baptist Church in Du Quoin, Ill., for Thomas Jeremiah of Willisville, Ill., general superintendent of the Willis Coal and Mining Co. of St. Louis, and president of the Willco Dairy farms, owned by the company, who died suddenly of heart disease in his office at Willisville, Thursday. A special train will be run from Willisville to carry the body and friends of Jeremiah from St. Louis and Southern Illinois towns.

Jeremiah was a member of the State Mining Board of Illinois under Gov. Dunne, and was for years connected with the Illinois Coal Operators' Association, and before that with the United Mine Workers of America. He was for several years associated with E. J. and C. H. Krause, coal operators of St. Louis, who have interests in Southern Illinois coal fields.

NEALE REBUKED BY JASPER COUNTY LEADER

McReynolds Declares It Is Imposible to Indorse Both Reed and Administration.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARTHAGE, Mo., March 6.—Allen McReynolds, chairman of the Jasper County Democratic convention, which adopted drastic anti-Reed instructions for its delegation to the State convention, has mailed to Chairman Neale of the Democratic State Committee a strong protest against Neale's announced plan to write to the County Chairmen of all other counties urging them not to follow the Jasper County precedent.

Neale made known his plan in an interview in the Post-Dispatch a week ago, and McReynolds referred to it in his letter.

"You are quoted as saying that you expect to send a letter to every county chairman requesting them to refuse to follow the lead taken in Jasper County," McReynolds wrote Neale. "You state that you are doing this because you are interested in party welfare, and that you do not think this controversy should be prolonged.

Propose to Indorse Wilson.

"You further state that it will be your proposal that the State convention shall indorse the Wilson administration, including the league of nations covenant, and that the delegates chosen to the national convention shall be asked whether they will follow by vote and voice the will of the Missouri Democrats as expressed at the State convention.

"In other words, you propose to sugar-coat the dose. The naivete of this program is astonishing. It completely ignores issues which you and your committee have rendered inescapable.

"You propose to approve the conduct of the administration and in the same breath indorse the selection of James A. Reed as a delegate to the national convention. Such a course is so preposterous that no thinking Democrat can approve of the same. The course of the administration and of Senator Reed are as far apart as the poles. Both cannot be approved without completely prostituting the function of party conference. They will no more mix than oil and water.

Political Expediency Only Aim Seen

"Now the justification for such a proposal and such a leadership must be supposed political expediency. In other words, principles are to be compromised to mollify factions. Under such a program a political party means nothing except an aggregation of diverse interests gathered together and welded into an ineffectual mass, and sustained by the sole hope of obtaining political office. A leadership based upon such principles has always failed and always will fail.

"The course which you propose may represent to you a satisfactory solution, and may satisfy the office seekers, but it will never gain the approval of the thinking members of the party."

PROFIT OF $1500 IN FIRST MONTH OF MUTUAL STORE

Railway Brotherhoods Soon to Add Two Links to Chain of Retail Establishments Here.

ALL CUSTOMERS MAY BUY STOCK

First Store on North Taylor Avenue Has 208 Shareholders — Coal Yard Among Projects.

A co-operative store has been established at 1303-05 North Taylor avenue, and is being successfully operated upon the plan adopted by the railroad brotherhoods recently, when it was announced that such stores would be started throughout the country. As a result, two more stores are to be opened here within a few weeks.

The plan contemplates benefit to the customers, first, by underselling other stores, and, second, by returning to them, in dividends, whatever profits are realized. The latter aim is accomplished through sale of stock in the stores at $25 a share to any customer who wants it.

Each shareholder has one vote. If it be desired to raise money quickly, as many as eight shares may be sold to one person, although up to now, none has taken more than one share. However, not more than one vote will be permitted any shareholder, this rule being intended to forestall any attempt to get control of the stores.

Month's Profit $1500.

The first month of operation of the present store, just completed, resulted in a profit of $1500, officials said. After small deductions for proposed expansion and advertising are made, the remainder will be divided among the 208 shareholders in dividends. Although the store was started by members of the Brotherhod of Locomotive Engineers and most of the stock is held by them, any person can buy it, and anybody can trade at the store regardless of whether they own stock.

As examples of the store's selling prices, fresh eggs were quoted yesterday at 50 cents a dozen, lard and pork chops at 22½ cents a pound, creamery butter at 70 cents and fancy bacon at 40 cents.

For the present, the store buys from wholesalers just as do other retail stores, but the Brotherhood plan contemplates eventually buying direct from manufacturers and farmers, and this is already in execution in some parts of the country, with reported reductions of 35 and 40 per cent in price.

Another store is to be opened in North St. Louis March 15 and one in South St Louis April 15. It is intended later to open a downtown store and a clothing store, and to

WILL ILLUSTRATE LECTURE WITH MOTHER AND FOUR CHILDREN

Miss Evans' Talk on Mothercraft Will Be Part of Week's Program of Religious Organizations.

Three meetings will be included in the program of activities of the Board of Religious Organizations this week, culminating Wednesday in an all-day gathering at the Third Baptist Church, Grand avenue and Washington boulevard, to be attended by women from all the Protestant churches in the city. At 11 o'clock Mrs. Louis J. Brookes, the president, will deliver an address, outlining the policies, plans and aims of the organization for the present and future.

Lunch will be served the women at the Third Church, and an afternoon program will be rendered, which will include addresses by a number of women.

A child welfare meeting will be held at Schuyler Memorial House, Christ Church Cathedral, Thirteenth and Locust streets, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 p. m., to be addressed by Miss Mabel Evans, on "Mothercraft," using four little children and a mother to illustrate her theme.

A meeting of the Presbyterian Unit of the organization will be held at the Vandervoort Aud'torium at 3 p. m. tomorrow, with an address by Police Judge Mix, on "Work for the Church Women of St. Louis."

PROFIT OF $1500 IN FIRST MONTH OF CO-OPERATIVE STORE

have a coal yard established by next winter.

The plan followed is the Rochdale system, which has been in successful operation in Great Britain many years, where there are thousands of such stores.

Stock Sold for Other Stores.

The present company is named the Progressive Mutual Mercantile Co., and Claude W. Hargrave of 4020 North Taylor avenue, a locomotive engineer for the Terminal Association, is president, and John J. Genins of 4849 Sacramento avenue, also an engineer, is secretary. Genine, who organized the present company, is organizing the others and selling the stock in them. The first company is capitalized at $5200, there being 208 stockholding customers, and $4000 of stock in the other companies have been sold.

All sales are for cash in order to eliminate losses and bookkeeping expense that are incident to credit accounts. However, delivery is made to any part of the city, and telephone orders are accepted. Dodgers containing lists of prevailing prices weekly are sent to the shareholders.

As an illustration of the stockholders' feeling toward the store, it is told that the small daughter of a stockholder remarked a few evenings ago to her father: "Papa, our truck passed here today." This, it was pointed out, was literally true, as each shareholder is part owner of the store.

Arthur M. Hamilton, manager of the store, said the trade had been so heavy recently that it was difficult to handle it, and that larger quarters already are needed. The opening of other stores is expected to relieve the congestion, however. Business recently has amounted to about $3000 a week.

The general plan of the Brotherhoods contemplates co-operative banks, as proposed by Glenn Plumb, author of the Plumb plan for control of the railroads.

Brand-New Way to Remove Hairy Growths
(Actually Removes Roots and All)

The vexed question of how to completely banish superfluous hair has been solved at last! By means of the new phelactine process, the hairs entire, roots and all, come out before your very eyes—easily, harmlessly, "quick as a wink." It is so different from the depilatory, electrical and shaving methods, you simply must try it to fully appreciate its remarkable advantages.

Phelactine is perfectly odorless, non-irritating, non-poisonous—a child could eat it without the least injury. It leaves the skin so soft, smooth and hairless, no one could tell you ever had a mustache or other hairy growth. If you will procure a stick of phelactine from your druggist and follow the simple instructions, you will certainly be astonished and delighted with the result.

KENNEL CLUB SHOW AT COLISEUM MARCH 29

Third of Five Important Exhibits to Be Held in Cities—750 Entries Are Likely.

The Mississippi Valley Kennel Club, which will hold a dog show at the Coliseum March 29-31, has received entries from some of the best kennels in the country, thus assuring to St Louis one of the best dog shows ever held here.

The St. Louis show will be the third of five important shows being held in Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Chicago and Detroit. About 750 dogs probably will be on the benches here.

Among the famous dogs to be exhibited is Bright Beauty, an airedale which won first prize as the best dog at the Westminster (N. Y.) show last year and the year before. She is owned by G. L. L. Davis, president of the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club. Another prize entry is Brownie, a Chesapeake Bay, owned by Joseph Pulitzer Jr.

This month's show will be the first held in St. Louis since 1916.

Kennels Exhibiting.

All of the larger kennels in the United States have notified the officers of the club that they will enter dogs in the show. The list of kennels and the breeds they will exhibit include: The Briargate Kennels of Chicago, airedale terriers; Geelong Kennel of New York, airedale terriers; Dorida Kennels of Highland Park, Ill., airedale terriers; Ashborne Kennels of Chicago, airedale terriers; Alexander H. Stewart Kennels of Chicago, bulldogs; Chesney Kennels of Lake Villa, fox terriers; Walescott Kennels, Bernardsville, N. J., Scottish terriers; Baron and Orth Kennels, Mason City, Io., chesapeake bays; Pulitzer Kennels, New York, chesapeake bays; Sabine Kennels, Orange, Tex., fox terriers; North St. Louis Kennels, Boston terriers; Whistlecote Farm Kennels, Waterloo, Ill., police dogs; Q. A. Shaw McKean Kennels, Pride Crossing, Mass., wire-haired fox terriers, and the Greenacre Kennels of Fairfreed, Conn., chow-chows.

Other breeds to be entered by individual owners are: Bloodhounds, St. Bernards (rough), St. Bernards (smooth), great danes, Russian wolfhounds, Irish wolfhounds, greyhounds, fox hounds, pointers, English setters, Gordon setters, Irish setters, Irish field and cocker spaniels, beagles, badger dogs, whippets, collies, shepherd dogs, old English sheepdogs, poodles, dalmatians, miniature bulldogs, bull terriers, French bulldogs, Irish terriers, West Highland white terriers, wash terriers, Dandie Dinmont terriers, black and tan terriers, schipperkes, pomeranians, black and tan, tri-color and red spaniels, Japanese spaniels, Pekingese, pugs, toy poodles, yorkshire terriers, maltese and Brussels griffons.

Superintendent and Judges.

George Foley of the Westminster (N. Y.) Kennels will be superintendent of the show.

Judges will be G. R. Perkins, Decatur, Ill., for Boston terriers; Henry C. January of St. Louis, for pointers and bull terriers; Philip R. Brand of Chicago, for airedales and terriers, and G. Steedman Thomas of Hamilton, Mass., for all other breeds.

Loving cups, silver and bronze medals, and ribbons will be awarded as prizes.

Moose to Open Campaign.

Permanent headquarters of St. Louis Lodge 1661, Loyal Order of Moose, were established last week in the Planters Hotel and a drive to increase the membership of the organization will be launched beginning tomorrow. William Hayhurst, formerly of Springfield, Mass., and Wallace McGowen, representative of James J. Davis, Supreme Dictator of the lodge are in charge of this work. St. Louis Lodge 1661 is an offspring of the old lodge No. 3, the charter of which was revoked some time ago by the Supreme Lodge.

Arthur Middleton Singing In Test With the New Edison.

Absolute Realism

Edison proves the absolute realism of his new phonograph.

The first proof is the Tone-Test. The singer stands beside the New Edison. He sings. Suddenly he ceases to sing. The New Edison continues the song alone. If there were any difference between the two, the human ear could detect it instantly. What is the result?

Four thousand of these Tone-Tests have been given. Three million people have heard them. No one has ever found any difference.

Realism Test

You can't deny what you can hear for yourself.

Come and make the Realism Test.

HOUSTON, Tex., March 6.—Two armed men robbed the American State Bank at Harrisburg at noon today of all available money and Liberty bonds, something less than $5000, and escaped.

HOUSING ASSOCIATION TO LET CONTRACTS SOON

Plan of Organization Is to Have 85 Homes Completed By June 1.

Eighty-five homes of four to six rooms each, the first to be built by the Home and Housing Association, will be ready for occupancy by June 1, Nelson Cunliff, general manager of the association, has announced. As many more dwellings will be ready later in the year, it is expected. Contracts for the first homes will be let in about two weeks, and construction will begin April 1.

Of the first 85 homes, general contractors will be chosen for half, and the association will deal with the sub-contractors on the remainder, Cunliff said. The object is to determine which method of supervision will be cheapest, with a view to reducing cost.

The plans of the association call for the erection of 1000 homes with a $2,000,000 subscription fund, $1,034,000 of which has already been obtained. Twenty distinctive exterior designs have been prepared, and to avoid monotony no more than 20 houses will be grouped together, each with a different design. Brick of various colors will be used, but the exteriors have other architectural differences.

To Cost $1000 a Room.

The cost of the houses will be about $1000 a room, including the land value, Cunliff has estimated. The first 85 houses will all be fireproof and of brick, with hardwood floors on the first floors, and will be of single story, story and a half, 1¾ and two story height. The room arrangement will be adaptable, and in some cases will be made especially for the prospective purchaser.

Four tracts in the city and two just west of the city limits have been acquired recently, in addition to land bought earlier. The six new tracts, having a total frontage of 1865 feet, will make room for 53 homes. They are situated near industrial districts, but Cunliff said good street car facilities made them convenient for workers in any district. Their locations and sizes follow:

Hodiamont avenue, east side, between Plymouth and Etzel avenues, 11 two-family, four-room flats, near Wagner Electric Manufacturing Co and Fulton Iron Works.

Bancroft avenue and Sutherland avenue, north part of Southampton, 21 lots on four blocks, in groups of six and eight homes, near firebrick works and foundries.

Nicholson place, east side, south of Lafayette avenue, four lots.

McCausland avenue at Wise avenue, six homes, near Scullin Steel Co.

Blendon place, near Wise avenue, St. Louis County, five lots, near Scullin Steel Co.

Blakemore avenue, near Kienlen avenue, Pine Lawn, St. Louis County, six houses, near Curtis & Co., Fayette R. Plumb and General Motors plants.

700 Applications Filed.

A plan will soon be worked out whereby individuals may purchase lots and have homes erected for them by the association. Cunliff said that in such cases the association probably would take over the lots as initial payments on the houses, with title to revert to the buyer later.

About $300,000 will be spent on the first 85 houses, he said. Except that a 10 per cent initial payment will be required, details of payments have not been arranged. About 160 applications for association homes have been received to date.

Post Office Men Object to Reduction

CHICAGO, March 6.—Employes of the Chicago Post Office, 3500 in number, have called a meeting for Monday to protest against a $240 reduction in their salaries under the Blanton bill, recently passed by Congress, which eliminates the bonus paid during war time.

396 OF 586 MEN CHOOSE NAPOLEON AS THEIR IDEAL

101 Name Lincoln, 38 Caesar, 26 Washington and Only Two Mention Jesus of Nazareth.

From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 6.

DR. A. A. BRILL, of New York, the famous alienist for 10 years has been in the habit of asking his patients at the first interview: "What personage from history or legend do you admire most, or whom would you consided your ideal?" He has collected answers also from friends, acquaintances, college students and school children and he gives in the Medical Record an interesting resume of the answers:

"In putting the question," he writes, "I assumed that the person we admire most, who is our ideal, expresses in his life our conscious and unconscious strivings. That is to say, we admire this personage so much because we would wish to be like him and always endeavoring to emulate his mode of reaction to the world.

"It will perhaps be surprising to hear that over 90 per cent of my male answers confined themselves to only five historical persons. Of 586 male dults, 396 answered 'Napoleon,' 101 answered 'Lincoln,' 38 answered 'Caesar,' 26 answered 'Washington,' 16 answered 'Frederick the Great,' and the rest, nine, had various other ideals. Perhaps the most significant part is that over 70 per cent had Napoleon as their ideal and of the 586 men only two answered 'Jesus.' And, considering that 80 of 586 gave Caesar, Washington and Frederick the Great as the persons whom they admired most, and that Lincoln who stood next to Napoleon among American born men, although not a soldier, was not a weakling in any sense, one can readily see what the average intelligent person's ideals are. He evidently admires most a man of action who can put into operation those impulses which he himself would wish to live through but dares not or cannot do so.

One Was Physician.

"This also demonstrates that we are not as ideal in our unconscious strivings as some make us believe, that the good book is correct in asserting 'for the imagination of the human heart is evil from the beginning.' Only two Christians out of 60 per cent of Christians took Jesus as an ideal. One was a physician who had given up the practice of medicine and lived on a ranch, and the other was a literary gentleman who lived on his income. These answers also explain why things primitive fascinate us, why plays dealing with crime are popular and why most of the news items in our daily press are not exactly about the cardinal virtues in men.

"I asked a teacher to explain to the children the meaning of a hero and give them examples. A few days later every boy was asked who was the greatest hero and the answer was invariably, 'Father.'

"I regret to say that I have not been able to tabulate and report the answers given by women. The remarkable thing about their answers is that very few women give females as their ideals—they invariably mentioned male names. Lincoln and Washington seemed to stand highest. This clearly shows that the ideal of a woman is a man and recalls Neitzsche's pithy remark, 'A man says I will, a woman says he will.'

"The scientific treatment of insanity really began little more than a decade ago, when Freud announced his principles of psycho-analysis, for this gave us for the first time the microscope with which to examine mental processes in detail. Summed up in a few words, Freud taught us that no psychic phenomenon, normal or abnormal, is without a definite cause. So if we can discover the cause, we have already taken a great step toward checking insanity; it may not place us in a position to cure it, once it has really developed, but it helps us to prevent incipient cases from developing, and thus to save some who would otherwise have become insane.

Mind Contains Record.

"We work upon the theory that the human mind contains a record of every smallest happening in life; not a thing we have seen not a word we have heard, not a desire that has suggested itself, not a sensation of smell or taste or touch we have experienced since infancy, but has left an indelible record in our mind. When we say we have 'forgotten' most of these things we mean that they have slipped from our consciousness, either because they were not important enough to make us want to remeber them, or that we have deliberately driven the memory of them from us by studiously turning our thoughts to something else. Though they may be gone from our consciousness, they have not escaped from our mind; they are not lost, they are merely hidden; they are all there, even the most trivial, in our sub-consciousness, and they can be brought forth from their oblivion; even they can, and do, surge up from the dark depths of our minds and intrude themselves unbidden into our consciousness in dreams and in sudden flashes of memory of long-forgotten things, but especially in dreams.

"All this vast mass of memories, accumulated but ignored, has a far greater influence upon our lives than most of us suspect—in fact, we live more by our unconscious than by our conscious minds. The little prejudices, idiosyncracies, antipathies, predilictions, mannerisms that give us our individuality are largely due to the sum of 'forgotten' experiences. Often these exert a controlling effect upon our life, the record in our sub-conscious mind of some forgot-

Cash-and-Carry Prices for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday

In offering this lamp on approval, NO MONEY DOWN, direct from the factory, I want to say a word about this pesky H. C. L. problem, if everybody else has spoken, including all the tin-horn economists at Washington.

The way to cut high prices is, first of all, to cut out the UNNECESSARY processes in the retailing of merchandise. This lamp, if sold in the usual way,—first to the wholesaler, then to the retail store-keeper, and then to you,—would first be shipped from the factory to the wholesaler. Then it would be hauled from the freight depot to the wholesale warehouse, and probably be unpacked and repacked for the retail trade. Then a traveling salesman would be paid a good-size commission, or its equivalent in a salary, for selling it to the retail store-keeper. Again it would be hauled to the freight depot and re-shipped. More drayage charges and more freight. Then come costly floor space, clerk hire, and the thousand and one other expenses of the retail store, until finally it reaches your home, not one whit the better but rather the worse for all this UNNECESSARY hauling and handling,—FOR ALL OF WHICH YOU HAVE PAID.

And the difference between the store price and ours would be precisely the amount that all these processes would cost YOU. Yes, YOU!

The retail store-keeper isn't a profiteer. He's doing business the wrong way, that's all. And the public is paying for his wasteful methods and then looking everywhere except in the right place for a way out.

No, not all the public. More than two hundred and fifty thousand heads of homes have solved the problem for themselves so far as the purchase of home-furnishings is concerned. Their names are on our list of permanent customers. They watch our advertisements. They clip coupons,—from Liberty bonds and from our Factory Bargain Offers as they appear in this and other papers throughout the country. They are not the folks who are selling their Liberty bonds,—they don't have to sell them.

Here is YOUR opportunity to test this victorious, money-saving plan. Simply sign and return the coupon at the right, and we will ship one of these beautiful reading lamps direct from the factory to your home. If you are pleased, remit $2.70 in ten days, and then $4 a month for four months,—$18.70 in all. Otherwise return the lamp at our expense. Sign the coupon TODAY and drop it into the mail-box.

Description: A charming design, exquisitely wrought. Large circular dome, 16 inches in diameter. The pattern resembles rare old lace, with corded pattern on the panel joints ending in a pretty tassel effect. The glass panels are amber colored, diffusing a soft, mellow light, when lighted. The stand is of a chaste Roman design, rising from a base that is fashioned in simulation of a laurel wreath. The bottom of the base is protected by a felt pad, which prevents marring the finish of your furniture. Height over all, 22 inches. Roman gold finish. For Electricity the lamp is fitted with two pull chain sockets and six feet of silk wound cord with screw plug attachment. For Gas the lamp is fitted with mantle, chimney and six feet of gas tubing and goose-neck attachment for attaching to gas jet.

An Autopiano Is the Choice Among People of Discrimination

There are over a million dollars' worth of Autopianos in St. Louis homes, where year after year they are bringing to people of musical discrimination the pleasure and instruction afforded by good music.

The Autopiano is found on the majority of American battleships, and it is the preference of foreign governments, as well, for their own armies and navies, as it has successfully met the high standards for excellence set by government experts.

Owing to the scarcity of instruments, and the probable increase in price, we recommend immediate purchase.

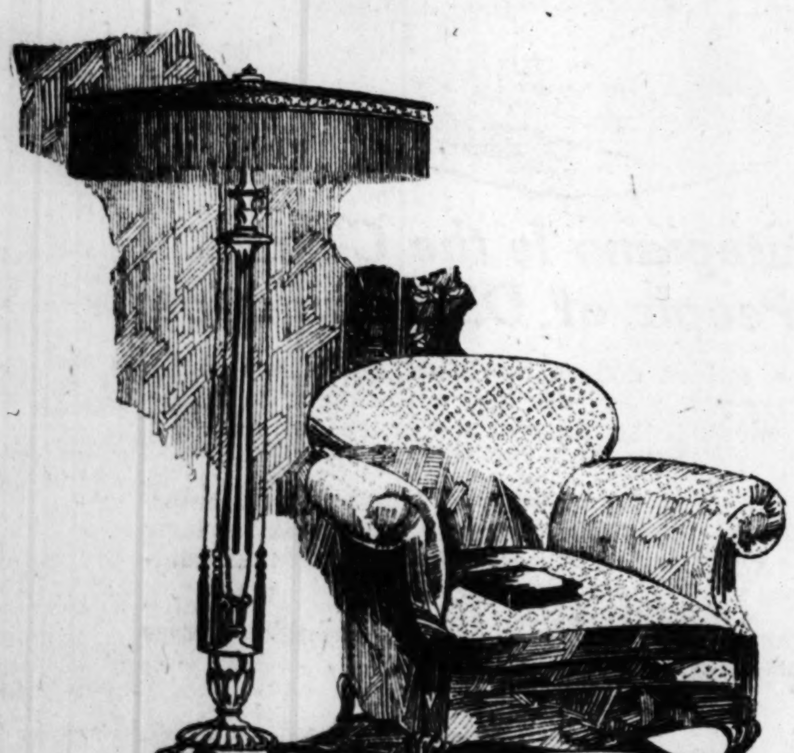
The Comfortable Living Room



IT is the necessity of reconciling a diversity of tastes that makes the family living room a delicate problem. The individual fancy must be respected—yet there may be no suggestion of the harsh or inappropriate. But on one point at least all are agreed: the perfect desirability of soul-satisfying comfort.

In our admirable display of living-room appointments we have given generous consideration to this requisite—and other essentials as well.

CASE AGAINST ALLEGED SWINDLERS DROPPED

Three Charged With Using Mails to Defraud Didn't Use Mails in Race Scheme.

It was announced yesterday that the prosecution against James E. McGee, Julius Schann and Richard V. Murphy, charged with having used the mails in a scheme to defraud Robert R. Collins of Trenton, Tenn., of $10,000, would have to be dropped because it had developed that the mails were not used in this particular case.

Collins identified McGee and Murphy as having participated in a fake horse race swindle in which he parted with $10,000 last November at the home of Schaan, 8201 Gravois road, St. Louis County, and the information was issued on the theory that they were members of a gang which had operated similar swindles in various parts of the country and had used the mails in furtherance of their scheme.

Collins, in swearing to the information, said that Murphy, pretending to have a "sure thing," advised him to write home for $10,000 with which to make a wager. Instead of writing a letter, however, Collins telegraphed.

Pending a country-wide investigation of their supposed operations by postoffice inspectors, McGee, Murphy and Schaan were at liberty on bond. Their bonds were returnable Friday, but as yet they have not been discharged.

ten thing that impressed us intensely at the time it happened, working unsuspected upon the conscious mind, modifying our thoughts and judgments, perhaps producing fears or prejudices, or what we call neurosis, for which we can see no cause.

"A large part of the records in our unconsciousness are of matters that we do not want to remember, though few of us realize how deliberately and systematically we forget disagreeable things. The more disagreeable the experience, the more pronounced is the record and the more firmly it is repressed by our consciousness; but the more actively does it try to escape and intrude into our memory.

"The unconscious, or subconscious, mind may be likened to a prison, the cells of which are closed, but not locked, and guarded by two jailers called the judgment and the will. So long as the judgment and will are on guard and alert the myriad occupants of the cells keep quiet behind the doors their jailers have shut upon them, but the moment the will and judgment doze or relax their vigilance, the prisoners begin to peep out, and some of the more daring come forth from their cells and irrupt into the consciousness where they may break loose in a riotous chaotic drama.

"This is just what takes place when we are asleep. Our will is asleep, our judgment is asleep, the guards are off duty and the memories of all forgotten things seize the opportunity to escape their oblivion. There is no order, there is no congruity, for there can be none.' Thus our dreams are confused, chaotic, disorderly, dominated, however, by the more powerful records and strongly influenced by our desires, especially by desires that we have deliberately suppressed. Rarely do we remember our dreams after we awake, but they are there just the same all the time, and they are affecting our conscious minds, though we may be all unconscious of them.

"One's dreams, then, are a key to one's mind. Tell me what you dream of and I will tell you what is in your unconsciousness. By studying the dreams of his patients, the alienist is able to find out what their desires are; what events or experiences have most strongly impressed their minds."

"And, having learned these facts, do they enable you to cure the insanity?" was asked.

Cannot Cure Insane.

"We cannot cure those who are really insane," replied Dr. Brill, "but we can often, very often, cure the incipient cases, the hysterical and those with neurosis, for example."

"How do you proceed?" he was asked.

"We talk with the patient, get him to tell us about his life to lead him to analyze his dreams and show him the meaning of them. As the analysis proceeds we see what is troubling him; we get him to draw it forth from his unconsciousness, to place it in his conscious mind, to look at it, study it, think about it. It loses its terror when he does this. It is no longer a dreaded, suppressed thing struggling to get free and has lost its power secretly to do him harm. Had he not been able to bring it back into his conscious mind, where it is subject to his will and judgment, and can by them be placed in the orderly scheme of things it would have continued to exert its subtle pernicious influence on his brain; his neurosis would have progressed from bad to worse, and before long he would have crossed the border line and become really insane. It is in these border line cases that the psychic-analytic treatment has its great value."

"Is it of any benefit to the really insane?" was asked.

"So far as we have gone with it, I should say not," replied Dr. Brill.

"Is insanity a psychic disease, or is it a manifestation of a destructive process in the substance of the brain?"

"When there is a lesion of the brain, or when the brain matter is diseased, the mind is inevitably affected, and in such cases psycho-analysis is useless. In all cases of paresis, for instance, we know that the bacillus called Spirochaeta Pallida has invaded the brain and that the disease will progress in spite of all that we can do. But there are many cases which are purely psychic, and these, in their incipient stages, at least, can be checked or restored by the method of which I have given you the outline."

A Ten-Day Tube of Pepsodent. Send coupon. Make this simple, pleasant home test. See for yourself the results.

Teach Children to Employ It

When you see what Pepsodent does, teach the children to employ it.

Brushing is inadequate for saving teeth, and millions of mothers know it. The film will wreck them if you don't combat it.

This ten-day test will show you how to fight the film. It will point the way to whiter, safer teeth.

It will tell you how the children can avoid some troubles that you know.

See that they do it. There are few things more important.

6,000 People Daily
Start This New Teeth-Cleaning Method

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Millions of teeth are being cleaned in a new way. And 6,000 new people daily are writing for a ten-day test.

Everywhere the results are seen in teeth that glisten—teeth with envied luster. Ask the owners and they will tell you that Pepsodent has done it.

But this means more than white teeth. Those careful people are fighting film, and film is the great tooth wrecker. Most tooth troubles are nowadays traced to it.

Film—the Chief Enemy

Film is that viscous coat which you feel with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. The tooth brush does not end it. The ordinary tooth paste does not dissolve it. So much remains to cloud the teeth and it may do a ceaseless damage.

Film is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus well-brushed teeth, as millions know, discolor and decay. And serious tooth diseases are alarming in extent.

Science Now Combats It

These facts have long been known. Dental science long has sought a way to daily fight film. But the only way seemed periodic dental cleaning to remove the film and tartar.

Now science has discovered an efficient film combatant. Able authorities have proved it by convincing clinical and laboratory tests.

For home use, the method is now embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent—a modern, scientific tooth paste. And, to show its effects, a 10-Day Tube is being sent to anyone who asks.

Make This Simple Test

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

This method long seemed impossible. Pepsin must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. But a harmless activating method has been found. Years of tests have proved that. So now this active pepsin can be every day applied.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

See the results, and our book will tell you how they come about. Then decide for yourself between the old ways and the new.

The test will be a revelation, and you owe it to yourself. Mail the coupon to us today.

You can see and feel what Pepsodent is doing.

Just use it twice daily and watch it.

Let your mirror decide its effects.

"WHEN THE CLOUDS ROLL BY"

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

is a genuine novelty. We have come to expect great things from Doug Fairbanks; we sometimes wonder where he can possibly get any more new ideas from. Yet he comes along with a picture like this and simply carries us off our feet. "When the Clouds Roll By" is so new and original in story and action, so far away from anything that has been attempted before, that we go on record now with the prediction that every laugh-loving, thrill-loving man, woman and child in town will be talking about Fairbanks and his picture before the week is half over.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat, which clogs Kidneys, then the Back Hurts.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless, inexpensive, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Existence of Soul After Death Will Be Established by Scientists Within 30 Years, Irish Poet Says

William Butler Yeats Asserts That the World Is on Edge of a Religious Revival.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 6.—"The world today is standing, as it appears to me, just at the edge of a great religious revival, such an awakening as there has not been since the Renaissance in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries began the movement toward skepticism. I believe that within 20 or 30 years the survival of the soul after the death of the physical body will be not a principle accepted by faith, but a fact established by science."

William Butler Yeats spoke this conviction earnestly as he talked the other day in the apartment at the Hotel Algonquin, which he and Mrs. Yeats make their New York headquarters between lecture tours to various parts of the country. The Irish poet and playwright, one of that group of Irish writers, most of them mystics, who, 25 years ago, inaugurated the revival of Celtic literature which became identified on the literary side with the Irish national movement, consented to be interviewed on his views on immortality only on condition that "you do not ask me to discuss whether communications from the spirit world are jugglery or not jugglery."

"It is absurd to ask whether learned men of science in all parts of the world who are making these psychic investigations are the wholesale victims of fraud," he said with some warmth. "If the question is one of jugglery or not, these trained experimenters can give more valuable testimony than any which I might make. One can read of the experiments with table levitation made by Prof. Crawford of Belfast. In the French Annals of Psychic Science can be seen photographs of materialization made by Dr. Ochorowitz of Warsaw in his experiments to prove that an image in the mind can affect a photographic plate. Prof. Richet of Paris has recorded sittings with the medium whom he called 'Madame X,' who answered his questions in Greek, a language of which she was totally ignorant. I could multiply names almost indefinitely, for this is a subject that I have been studying for 20 years, and I myself did not become convinced until my unspoken mental questions were conversed in Greek and Latin by a writing medium who knew neither.

"However, that is not a phase of the question on which my testimony is valuable, though there is one thing I should like you to say for me in connection with the discussion here in New York. If Mr. Rinn, who offered a wager to the Society for Psychic Research, really wishes to perform a service to science in this most difficult field of investigation, let him first withdraw his $5000. Scientific discussion must be, above all things, dispassionate, and no man of science who has any dignity would allow himself to be drawn into an investigation upon which a wager hangs.

His tone changed and he smiled.

Asks for Credence.

"But if you will grant me," he said, "the sort of credence that you would give to the play of "Hamlet." If you will accept for the moment without question the spiritish hypothesis, then I can discuss with you philosophically some of the problems of immortality."

The author of "Cathleen Ni Houlihan" and "The Land of Heart's Desire" sat up energetically on his knees on the edge of his bed as he prepared to enter into the discussion. He had attempted to talk resting against the pillows, for, as Mrs. Yeats explained, he had been taxed with a long day of hard work.

"It is not one's tongue that gets tired," said the poet plaintively from the pillows. "It's the small of one's back." But he sat up immediately on his knees and soon was traveling restlessly to the foot of the bed, absorbed in his problem of making clear to a skeptical public represented by the interviewer, ideas which were so luminously self-evident to him. "I believe in the survival of the spirit after death," he began, "but I think the spiritual existence is so different from life here under conditions of time and space that we cannot comprehend it with our mortal minds except through symbol. That is not a new theory. It is the belief of all the mystics and of all the religious philosophers. St. Thomas, for instance, said that after death a man enters into 'the eternal possession of himself in one single moment.

"The theory of the nature of a 'control' elaborated by Mrs. Sedgwick in her study of the mediumship of Mrs. Piper is in a general way my own belief. The control which appears as a spirit to the medium, is not a spirit, but a dreaming state of secondary personality, induced by the spirit as a means of communication. The mediatorial dream can be influenced either by the spirit or by the sitter. It is very sensitive to suggestion from this side, and may answer falsehoods and absurdities in response to questions.

"Therefore I think a sharp distinction must be drawn between messages which come voluntarily from the other side—that is, between those messages in which the initial impulse comes from the spirit and messages received in answer to questions from this side. Messages from the other side generally relate to matters of this world, and are true. The message received by Sir Oliver Lodge telling of a photograph of his son which the family did not know existed or the other story related by him in a recent lecture concerning some letters and a lock of hair which Lady Lodge found in the kit of a deceased soldier and destroyed, according to the request of the message, are examples of the true communications of which I speak and are valuable evidence for survival.

"But the moral kindergarten which Sir Oliver deduces as the state of the spirit world, description of the summer land and the spheres of existence I regard as a travesty on the spiritual life. Symbols and correspondences have been mistaken for actualities both by the mediums and the dreaming controls themselves and the false theories, once established, have been communicated from medium to sitter and sitter to medium again through a line by mental suggestion.

Some Reject Spirit Theory.

"Of course many investigators do not accept the spiritist theory. Neither Ochorowitz nor Richet accept it. In Europe the general tendency tends toward the belief that a transcendental capacity possessed by the medium in the trance state is responsible for all the phenomena of the supernatural, for the spirit lights which some of the company see and others do not during a sitting, for materializations, messages, etc. This transcendental capacity—this power and this knowledge—which enables mediums to convey messages in tongues they do not know, and to describe places they have never seen, has been, I think, aptly established. But an experience of a friend of mine who went with a medium to dig treasure is an example of the difficult way in which truth and falsehood are commingled in trance messages. It is, indeed, this commingling that makes many investigators doubt the finality of such evidence for survival as Sir Oliver Lodge's photographs.

"The medium who accompanied my friend was as keen as he about the adventure. They had received in trance messages minute descriptions of the topography of a country through which the medium had never traveled. They made a large part of the trip in a motor car, pass-

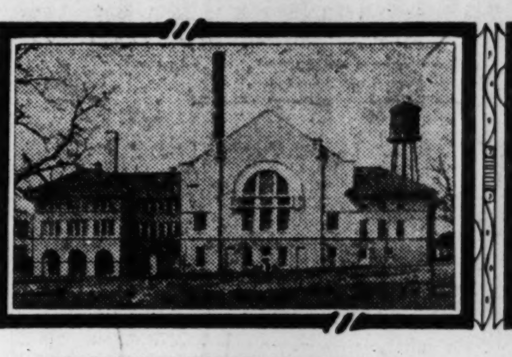
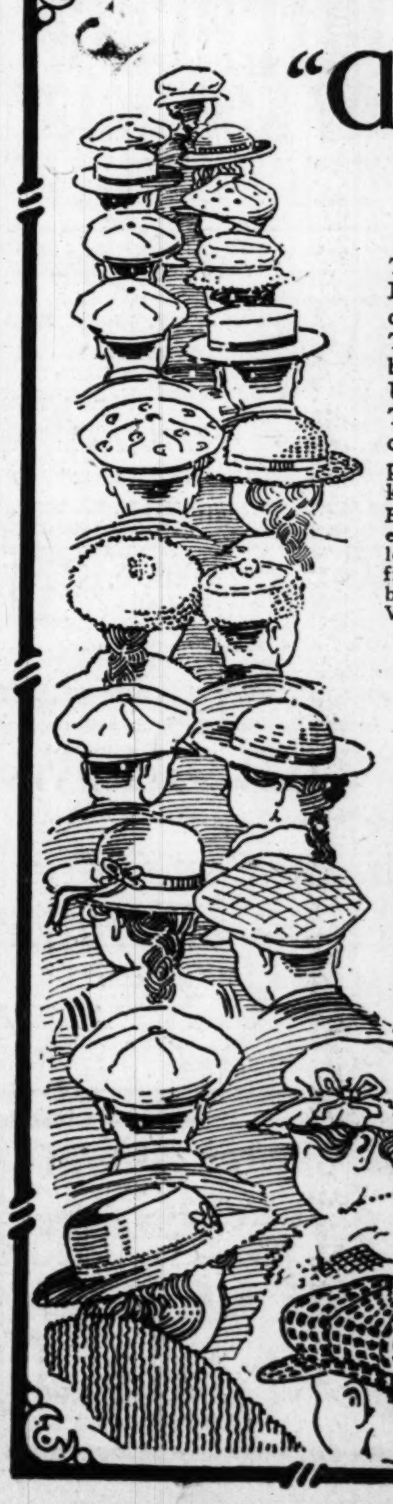
MOOSEHEART HIGH SCHOOL



COMMUNITY HOUSE, MOOSEHEART

TYPICAL CHILDREN'S HOME



"And a little Child shall Lead Them"

Thirty-two years ago in St. Louis was founded the Loyal Order of Moose with less than one hundred charter members.

Today there are five hundred and fifty thousand members in the 1661 lodges of this organization in the United States and Canada.

That, briefly, is a blunt statement of an amazing success; an accomplishment covering years of steady progress with which the Loyal Order of Moose acknowledges no comparison.

Back of every successful achievement there is and must be an essential contributing factor. It is not solely the name, nor yet lofty aims and purposes of this movement that have caused five hundred and fifty thousand true men to enlist under the banner of the Loyal Order of Moose.

What, then, is it? The answer is

MOOSEHEART
The School That Trains for Life

MOOSEHEART is an institution supported by the equal payments of members from all walks of life. A great shield from the cruelties and hardships of the world for your loved ones in case you are taken away. Not alone does Mooseheart provide for the physical welfare of your orphaned children, but it maintains a great Vocational School in which your children are competently equipped, each according to their natural bent, to go forth into the world and win the respect and consideration given men and women who are masters of their trade or profession.

While buildings, equipment and curriculum at Mooseheart are setting a new standard for American schools, the distinctive appeal of Mooseheart to the visitor lies in the atmosphere of joy and happiness that pervades the institution.

A thousand happy American youngsters, who have forgotten the past and who know only that they are endowed with the rich prospects of the future, are stretching forth their hands to St. Louis. They are the first thousand. Others are certain to come, for the world moves on.

Can St. Louis deny this appeal?

This advertisement prepared and indorsed by the Publicity Committee of St. Louis Lodge 1661, L. O. O. M., for the purpose of acquainting the public with the work at Mooseheart.

This picture shows the complete set of the new Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica in the tremendously popular Handy Volume issue printed on genuine India paper. The twenty-nine volumes contain 44,000,000 words, 30,000 pages, and are the work of 1,500 recognized authorities from every civilized country in the world. While this set contains a great wealth of information on every subject known to the human mind, the entire twenty-nine volumes, because they are printed on the wonderfully light, thin but opaque India paper, occupy only 31 inches of shelf room, and each volume, which is no larger than the ordinary magazine, may be held with comfort by the reader for hours at a time.

NOW IS THE TIME
TO USE
THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA

THIS is a crucial age, this reconstruction era, a time of great changes, a live, awakened, alert age, an age of great progress, of great initiative, an age of interests that are world wide. Momentous social, political, industrial and economic changes are affecting the welfare of this nation and every country in the world. Americans today are not only interested in the government and the affairs of their own city, state and country, but have become deeply concerned in the people and the political and social conditions of many nations throughout the world. Where can people find correct, authoritative and comprehensive information on the many subjects in which they are interested as a consequence of this awakening? They naturally turn to the wonderful storehouse of knowledge — the world's greatest guide to correct and authoritative information — the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The Britannica will give a foundation for study of subjects which will be uppermost in our minds for years to come. The Britannica is a great work of useful information. It is a book for Americans today who are waking up to new thoughts, new work and new interests.

Now as Never Before You Need the Britannica

During the past few years the business of this nation has greatly expanded. So terrific has been the pressure to produce tremendous quantities of materials in the shortest length of time that out of necessity efficiency has been the watchword of the day. Great progress has been made in shop management — there have been many inventions, many short cuts have been found for better and quicker production of material. Today marks the period of this country's greatest industrial development. In many industries peace has meant a far greater speeding up than even during the war, and competition has become smarter. All of these are signs of the times and demand far greater aggressiveness, knowledge and capacity on the part of the employer and employe.

Under these conditions men are required to have the best means of knowledge, the best tools, with which they can keep abreast of the times and fulfill the stricter requirements of our awakened industrial world. The young man returning from war must capitalize his vigor and determination in order to make his mark in the world. The big army of workers who are fearful of falling back into their ruts of pre-war days must have knowledge and equipment in order to build upon the progress made during the war.

A Marvelous Library of Knowledge

This great work with its 41,000 separate articles is marvelously complete. The Britannica is a great library of knowledge on every subject known to the human mind; discusses in a way that you can understand every branch of science, industry, literature, art, religion, invention and engineering, history and race development, wars and peace, architecture, astronomy, chemistry, sociology, education, steam, electricity, geology, geography, law, physics. You and your family will find the Britannica a liberal education. In answer to the hundred and one questions which every day come to your mind—and to your wife's and children's minds—questions which arise in discussion at your club or in your business—it will tell you more about everything than you can get from any other source.

What of Today's Problems?

Do you understand the highly serious problems of our industrial life? Why are the prices of commodities high? Will wages go still higher or will they fall? What are the economic causes of the high cost of living? Is there likely to be some great economic disturbance that will cause a precipitate fall in wages and prices? Is the Soviet government in Russia likely to persist and spread to other countries or has it already about spent its force? The Encyclopaedia Britannica sets forth in its great articles the economic laws by which the world is governed. We must consider the problems of today in the light of past experience. Has the Soviet in Russia anything in common with the French Revolution?

This wonderful book—the new Encyclopaedia Britannica—literally spreads before the reader the knowledge of the whole world. It tells about foreign countries, characteristics of the people, their resources, exports and imports, trade possibilities, their history and progress. An hour a day with the Britannica will give you as clear and comprehensive an idea of the rest of the world as we Americans now have of the states of the Union.

The Woman of Today Needs the Britannica

Woman's position politically, industrially and economically has changed radically in the past five years. Woman has become a power in politics, for her vote is respected and valued. She has taken a more important place in the industrial world. The sensible and up to date woman is studying the cost of foods, food markets and food values. The Britannica is invaluable to woman with its splendid articles on politics, on industries, on domestic science, on foods and on everything pertaining to the home. To the mother with children to educate, the Britannica is indispensable and it will give her the information to teach her children wisely and correctly.

The genuine India paper, so marvelous in its texture, so thin, so strong and yet so practicable, is manufactured of flax and hemp and other materials imported from European countries. These sets are bound in the substantial cloth, the beautiful, durable, semi-flexible sheepskin, and the exquisite Levant. We have also procured sets printed on the standard book paper, which is the paper generally used for books. For the Little Ones

To Keep Their Digestion Perfect Nothing Is So Safe and Pleasant as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

An experienced observer in charge of a large office said it was a waste of words to tell most people to eat plain foods. They prefer the food that delights the eye. Checking up on the after effects the usual distresses of gassiness, sour risings, water brash, loginess and so on may be avoided by following the meal with one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. These supply the stomach with an alkaline effect thus promoting normal conditions as in health. This puts the O. K. on so-called rich food. Men and women are but children of a larger growth when it comes to eating the foods that satisfy, even though they may cause indigestion.

Indigestion is not necessarily confined to those who live high. It may follow so simple a process as the flavor of a bay leaf, thyme, garlic, sage or any of the other savory flavorings so universally used in soups, roasts, dressings, etc. As a rule if the stomach balks at such things, it will be disturbed by cheese, milk, coffee, pies and almost anything that most people like so well. Such conditions as these are met quite adequately by following the meal with one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They digest food and at the same time supply the stomach with an alkaline effect that prevents gassiness, heartburn, sour risings, drowsiness after eating and such distresses so familiar to those susceptible to indigestion or dyspepsia. Get a box of these tablets at any drug store in the United States or Canada, price 50 cents, and then note how comfortable the stomach feels. Your most excellent cook may use garlic without a protest.

EXISTENCE OF SOUL AFTER DEATH WILL BE PROVED, SAYS YEATS

ing trees and houses as described. All was minutely exact until they came to within a few feet of the treasure—and the treasure was not there.

"In relating experiments of this kind, of course, one difficulty that one constantly encounters is that it is impossible to establish scientifically the facts of the medium's character as one knows them.

Discusses Soul's History.

"The fact that a medium in a trance does reach transcendental knowledge has been, as I say, pretty well established. If this is true; if my human ego under certain conditions has a knowledge of things, for instance, that happened hundreds of years ago, or hundreds of miles away, in places which I have never visited, then that ego, supposing that its knowledge is not obtained from spirits, has a knowledge entirely independent of its senses. This argues in the individual soul a power so amazing that the soul must, as I think, have had a history before birth, and by the same reasoning will have one after death."

Home After Absence of 25 Years.

MENDOTA, Ill.—Given up for dead, after an absence of 25 years, John Biers returned home this week from Nome, Alaska, where he has been seeking gold. He says he met with considerable success and plans to return to continue work upon his mine.

Applying This to Face Restores Lost Beauty

You all know the splendid benefits of expert facial massage. But do you also know that if it is improperly done, or too frequently, it tends to loosen the skin, weaken the muscular foundation, producing sags and wrinkles?

If more women only know it, all the good of massage, and more, with no harmful effect, may be had by merely mixing a little lemon juice with a spoonful of powdered tarkroot, spreading this emulsion over the face and letting it harden into a thin film-like mask. This brings the blood to the surface and rests the facial nerves. Instead of making the face flabby, it does the very opposite. Its action is perfectly astounding. Wrinkles, age lines, sagginess, are literally "ironed out." The skin becomes velvety soft, clear and spotless. A youthful pink of glow mounts the cheeks. Lips become cherry red. Eyes sparkling and beautiful. You can obtain an original package of powdered tarkroot from any druggist. This treatment is the greatest thing yet discovered to make old-looking faces young looking.

Every Man Who Feels the Thrill of Mother-Love Owes it to Himself to Read the Accompanying Article.

Every mother has dreams for her son. And whether it be the mother of the prize-fighter or the statesman she is equally proud when HE wins. She thinks of HER struggle from the very start to nourish the tiny baby into rugged boyhood—then to build up his health, brawn and brain to fight the battles of young manhood. She did HER best to teach him what health and strength meant in the race for success, and the boy who was able to hold fast to her teaching is today in a position of power.

But there are thousands whose love for their mother is just as deep—thousands who wear the white carnation on Mothers' Day—thousands who never fail to write home—YET they would hesitate to answer the question, "Have You Made Your Mother's Dreams Come True?"—simply because in the mad rush for the Success which they knew would make HER proud, they have slipped up on one point. They have neglected her oft repeated words: "Look to Your Health First, My Boy." In pushing their mental energies to the limit without the physical strength to back them up they have allowed worry, work and ill health to sap the iron from their blood and leave them weak, nervous and run down. These men are as anxious to get ahead as anyone else, but they do not realize that iron is absolutely essential to the greatest development of physical and mental power. But in the wear and tear of modern day life when their forces are constantly drawn upon, they are without the sustaining strength produced by the nourishing foods and outdoor sports of boyhood days that kept up the supply of iron in their blood. Unless they supply this iron deficiency now they cannot hope to have the rich, red blood that sends fires of energy through body and brain and makes men get ahead. Yet, to take the wrong form of iron may prove worse than useless, and therefore physicians below explain why they prescribe only organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for red blood, strength and endurance.

"It is the men of blood and iron who will forge ahead in the business and political life of the country today," says Dr. T. Alphonsus Wallace, a physician of many years' experience and formerly of the British Naval Medical Service. "Without iron there can be no strong, red-blooded men, and unless this strength-giving iron is obtained from the foods we eat, it must be supplied in some form that is easily absorbed and assimilated. For this purpose I always recommend organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which by enriching the blood and creating new blood cells, strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy into the whole system whether a person is young or old. In my opinion, Nuxated Iron is the most valuable tonic, strength and blood builder any physician can prescribe."

Dr. John J. Van Horne, formerly Medical Inspector and Clinical Physician on the Board of Health of New York City, says: "To help build stronger, healthier men and women, better able physically to meet the problems of every-day life, I believe that physicians should at every opportunity prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for in my experience it is one of the best tonic and red blood builders known to medical science."

No matter what other tonics or iron remedies you have used without success—if you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength and see how much you have gained. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength, power and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time in many instances.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended by physicians, and which is now being used by over three million people annually, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph, Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Weipert Drug Co. and all other druggists.

-one spoonful

equal to two spoonfuls of many other baking powders

Calumet Baking Powder has more than the ordinary leavening strength—therefore you use less. It is by far the most economical baking powder.

You pay about half the amount asked for high-priced brands. It goes twice as far as most other brands—so you save when you buy it—you save when you use it. But the most important economy of is in its superior quality. Regardless of price, Calumet is the highest grade baking powder made. It is absolutely pure in the can—in the baking. Leaves no harmful residue.

Calumet, wherever placed, always gives satisfaction. It is the largest selling brand of baking powder in the world and is made in the largest, cleanest, most up-to-date Baking Powder factory in existence.

The millions of housewives who use Calumet secure better bakings at a more economical cost than those who do not use it.

With all this evidence of superiority—with all this proof of better bakings, why should you be satisfied to stand the exorbitant expense of over priced powders or the faults and failings of cheap, inferior brands. You shouldn't—and you won't—after one Calumet bake-day trial.

Beware of This—

Don't sacrifice quality, economy and food value by using substitutes. Best baking results are obtained from Calumet Baking Powder and plain flour—far better than from self rising flour. There is no substitute for Calumet Baking Powder and plain flour.

First Missouri Compromise, Which Marked the High Tide of Slavery Adopted 100 Years Ago Yesterday

Foundation Laid During Debate of This Issue in Congress for the Agitation That Two Score Years Later Struck the Shackles From the Black Man.

By E. M. VIOLETTE,

Professor of History in the Kirksville State Teachers' College and Author of "A History of Missouri."

YESTERDAY was the one hundredth anniversary of the First Missouri Compromise. Every school boy and girl in the land know that this compromise was an act of Congress which provided for the admission of Missouri into the Union as a slave State with the further provision that slavery should be forever prohibited in all of the territory of the Louisiana Purchase north of the parallel of 36 degrees 10 minutes except in Missouri But while this general fact is widely known, very few persons are acquainted with the details of the great conflict that arose in Congress over the question as to whether Missouri should be admitted into the Union as a slave State or not, and that culminated in the First Missouri Compromise. Inasmuch as this whole matter is one of very great significance in our national history, a brief survey of the events leading up to this famous compromise may be deemed fitting at this time and of especial interest to all loyal Missourians.

During the fall of 1817 petitions were circulated among the people of the territory of Missouri asking Congress for authority to adopt a State constitution and form a State Government with a view of being admitted into the Union. At that time the population of Missouri was growing very rapidly. In 1815 it amounted to about 25,000. In 1820 it had run up to over 66,000. In view of this rapid growth the people of Missouri felt that they were entitled to statehood and they gladly signed the petitions to Congress asking for the same.

On Jan. 8, 1818, several of these Missouri petitions were presented to the House of Representatives by the Speaker, and during the next two months others were likewise submitted. All of these petitions were referred to a select committee of the House, the chairman of which was John Scott, the territorial delegate from Missouri. On April 3 this committee reported a bill to the House granting the people of Missouri what they had asked for. This bill, however, got no further than the committee of the whole during that session of Congress.

Missouri Sought Statehood.

Shortly after Congress reconvened in December, 1818, the attention of the House was again called to the pending Missouri bill by a petition from the territorial legislature of Missouri asking for statehood. At the same time other petitions came in from Alabama praying for statehood for herself. The situation became at once a very delicate one politically.

At that time there were 21 States in the Union, 11 of which were free and 10 slave. The free States were in control of both houses of Congress. In the lower house they had a substantial majority on account of their having a much larger population than the slave States. In the Senate, however, they had a majority of only two, owing to the equal representation of all the States in the Union in that body. The free States were, therefore, more or less complacent over the question of slavery. They were in a position where they could throttle all measures friendly to slavery that might be introduced into either house. They could continue to do that in the Senate even if the slave States should come to have the same number of Senators as the free States. They had, therefore, no reason to be disturbed about their position of advantage in Congress when Missouri asked for admission. But when two slave territories asked for admission, they realized that if this were granted, the slave States would have a majority in the Senate and that the balance of power which they had been enjoying would be broken. It therefore became the avowed purpose of the free States to prevent Missouri and Alabama from coming into the Union unless one of them should come in as a free State. There was no disposition to interfere with slavery in Alabama. But there was an inclination to put restrictions upon slavery in Missouri in order that the political balance of power might still be preserved to the free States.

Tallmadge Urged Change.

It was with this attitude towards the matter that the committee of the whole of the House on Feb. 13, 1819, took up the consideration of the Missouri bill that had been lodged with it for nearly a year. Two days later Tallmadge of New York proposed an amendment to the bill which provided that there should be no further introduction of slavery into Missouri and that after her admission into the Union all children born of slave parents in Missouri should be free at the age of 25.

The effect of introducing this amendment was to raise the Missouri question to the rank of a great national issue, and for over a year this issue stirred the people of the whole country more deeply than any other that had been before them since the adoption of the Federal Constitution in 1787-89.

The House promptly adopted the Tallmadge amendment. But when the bill came up to the Senate that body struck out the amendment. The House, however, refused to concur in what the Senate had done, and as there was not time enough left in that session of Congress to adjust the differences between the two houses, the Missouri bill failed of passage. That meant that if Missouri was ever to acquire statehood, a new bill would have to be introduced at some later session of Congress and the struggle to procure its passage would have to be started over again from the beginning.

When the new Congress convened in December, 1819, the Missouri question again came to the front as the leading issue of the day. A new element was introduced into the situation by a petition from the people of the District of Maine for admis-

AS you will see by reading the above list of names, the Industrial Loan Company is controlled by prominent business men of unquestioned integrity and ability. The business was founded about eight years ago to check the usurious practices of loan sharks by loaning money at reasonable rates, to salaried people, professional men, merchants and all persons of good character. As they repay such loans in 12 monthly or 50 weekly installments, our capital is not tied up for long periods, but is quickly available whenever needed to redeem outstanding certificates. That's why there is not a safer investment in America than these certificates of indebtedness—the money to redeem them is always ready.

The certificates are issued for any sum from $50 to $5000, yielding 5 per cent (paid semi-annually) and do not fluctuate in value. We cash them on 30 days' notice, with full interest to date—or we'll cash them on demand if you forego the interest that has accrued since last interest day.

Your money is therefore not only absolutely safe, but you can always get it if you happen to need it.

Meanwhile, it is earning you five per cent.

HOURS: Daily, from 8:30 to 5 o'clock. Saturdays to 3 p. m., Mondays to 7 p. m.

sion into the Union as a State. There were, therefore, three territories asking for admission into the Union, Missouri, Alabama and Maine. Since Maine would be a free State, the balance of power would be preserved to the free states, even if Missouri and Alabama should be allowed to come in with slavery as they wished. But it soon became evident that this plan was not agreeable to everyone and that another one would be attempted. A bill providing for the admission of Alabama with slavery was therefore introduced and passed by Congress before it had been in session a month. Under the circumstances the free states could make no objections to that arrangement. But when the House took up the new Missouri bill, the free states assumed a very different attitude. In spite of the fact that Maine stood ready to come in as a free State, they were still unwilling to allow Missouri to come in as a slave State. They therefore compelled the House to incorporate the Tallmadge amendment of the old Missouri bill in the new one. At the same time, the House passed a bill providing for the admission of Maine as a free State.

When the Missouri and the Maine bills came up to the Senate from the House, the first one was returned without the Tallmadge amendment and the second was finally passed with the proviso that Missouri should be allowed to come in as a slave State. In that way the Senate joined the Maine and the Missouri questions together in one bill. The House, however, declined to accept the Maine-Missouri bill of the Senate, and it began to look as though the two houses would become deadlocked over the matter.

Thomas Offered Compromise.

At this juncture Senator Thomas of Illinois came forward with a proposal to the effect that Missouri should be admitted with slavery, but that all of the remaining territory of the Louisiana Purchase north of the parallel of 36 degrees 30 minutes, which was the southern boundary of Missouri, should be forever free. A similar proposal had been made a year before, but no one took kindly to it then. When, however, it was submitted by Senator Thomas in February, 1820, as an amendment to the Maine-Missouri bill, the Senate promptly adopted it. The House, however, refused to agree to this action of the Senate. The whole matter was then sent to a conference committee of the two houses, and upon the recommendation of this committee the House and the Senate agreed to separate the Maine and Missouri questions and to provide for the admission of Maine as a free State in one bill and for the admission of Missouri as a slave State by another bill that should include the Thomas amendment. The Missouri bill in this form constituted what is known as the First Missouri Compromise and became the law of the land upon receiving the approval of President Monroe on March 6, 1820.

Great was the rejoicing among Missourians when the news reached them two weeks later that Congress had finally come to an agreement over the matter. The bearer of these glad tidings was Thomas Hempstead who arrived at Jackson, a town in Cape Girardeau County, on March 21 on his way from Washington to St. Louis. On reaching the latter place he was joyously received.

"The town was generally and splendidly illuminated" in honor of the event, a local chronicler wrote, and several transparencies were constructed to give expression to the feeling of exultation that possessed the people. One of these transparencies that attracted considerable attention "represented the American eagle surmounting the Irish harp," and another depicted "a negro slave in great spirits rejoicing at the permission granted by Congress to bring slaves into so fine a country." By April 1 the news had reached the interior settlements in the Boone's Lick region, the center of which is the present Howard County, and the Missouri Intelligencer, the only newspaper published in that region, announced to its readers "the gratifying intelligence that the bill for the admission of Missouri into the Union unrestricted has passed both houses of Congress."

Formal Admission Delayed.

More than a year passed, however, before Missouri was formally admitted into the Union. An explanation of this long delay is another story that cannot be told here in detail. Briefly stated the main cause for the delay lies in the offense that certain Congressmen took to a clause in the new Constitution of Missouri that had been drawn up by a constitutional convention in Missouri and put into effect on July 19, 1820. That clause provided that it should be the duty of the State Legislature of Missouri to pass such laws as might be deemed necessary to prevent free negroes and mulattoes from coming into and settling in the State under any pretext whatsoever.

There were only 376 free negroes in Missouri at that time, but the free negor element was always the source of a great deal of fear and anxiety on the part of slaveholders everywhere. Even if the free negroes did not stir up the slaves into insurrection, their very presence was calculated to induce a state of dissatisfaction among the slaves, so it was thought. Slaveholders therefore preferred not to have any free negroes around. Hence the Missouri constitutional convention undertook to minimize the danger from the free negroes by inserting a clause into the Constitution that would keep any more of them from coming into the State.

Northern Men Took Umbrage.

But free negroes were citizens in some of the Northern States, and several Congressmen from the North immediately took umbrage at this clause in the Missouri Constitution on the ground that it was contrary

ENDS STUBBORN COUGHS IN A HURRY

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Ttablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c.

SIMPLE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING WORK WELL UNDER WAY

Board Has Passed on 75 Per Cent of Cases Eligible in This District.

The Federal Board for Vocational Education in District No. 9, comprising Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa, has definitely decided the cases of 75 or 80 per cent of the men eligible for training in this district, according to C. E. Partch, district vocational officer. He said he expects to have the remainder cleared up in two months. There are 19,375 men registered in Dictrict No. 9, with 1185 approved but not in training, and 1954 in training.

Many Duplicates.

Many of those registered are duplicates. That is, they have been transferred to other districts. Of the number registered in this district alone, 7000 have been transferred, or they have requested that their cases be closed, as they are not interested in training. In the cases of others who have not been approved some action has been taken. Many of them yet are under the care of the United State Public Health Service and the Vocational Board can do nothing with their cases until the Public Health Service has finished with them.

"Where a man is registered his case is taken up and some action taken inside of two weeks," Partch said. "A great number of those approved for training have been sent transportation requests. Some have returned to the farm and desire no training; others are undecided as to what vocation or trade they wish to take up. Many are in work that they feel they cannot leave at this time, or are not yet in physical shape to begin their vocational training.

Cases Turned Over to Red Cross.

"In some instances those notified of approval have been sent as high as four letters and have not replied. When no answer is received their cases are turned over to the Red Cross or American Legion. If necessary we send them transportation and have them come to St. Louis for an interview."

The Federal Board of the St. Louis District is using 108 different institutions for training the disabled men. In St. Louis institutions 456 disabled men are taking some type of vocational training, as follows: Sixty mechanical training; 125, college work; 30, elementary education and preparatory work and Americanization; 14, who have deafness to some degree, courses in lip-reading; 75, commercial courses. Besides many are being taught "on the job."

Special Teachers Required.

The board endeavors to provide instruction immediately for every man declared eligible for training. This sometimes necessitates special teachers, while students are waiting for the regular term or semester openings.

The board insists that training be fundamental, leading directly to employment in higher fields. But few of the men have progressed for enough in their vocational training to be ready for placement.

Working Night and Day.

There is a force working night and day in the local district offices in the effort to "clean the decks" as soon as possible. Portch, in commending the work of the Public Health Service officials in this district, said they "are on the job every minute co-operating with the Federal Board."

LECTURES AT WASHINGTON U.

For each of the four remaining Monday afternoons in March the extension department of Washington University has arranged a free public lecture to be delivered by a member of the faculty, on subjects believed to have wide popular interest.

The first of these lectures, scheduled for 4:30 p. m., will be by Walter E. McCourt, professor of geology, on "The Grand Canyon; a Geologic Interpretation," and the second on "Social Insects," by Caswell Grave, professor of zoology. These will be illustrated and delivered in Busch Hall. Tyrrell Williams, dean of the School of Law, will be the lecturer March 22, his subject being "Supernational Law," and the closing one of the series will be by Charles E. Cory, associate professor of philosophy, on "The Mystic and His View of the World." The latter two will be in the faculty room in University Hall.

to a provision in the Federal Constitution which guaranteed to the citizens of each State all the privileges and immunities of the several States. A determined effort was therefore made to prevent the admission of Missouri into the Union unless she rescinded this offensive clause in her Constitution.

In this way the Missouri question was once more brought before Congress and for weeks the angry controversy was waged between the North and the South. Finally it was agreed to allow Missouri to come into the Union with her Constitution just as it had been accepted, but to require the Legislature of the State to pass a solemn public act in which the State was ostensibly to obligate herself never to carry this offensive clause of the Constitution into effect. The agreement that was thus made is known in history as the Second Missouri Compromise.

The Legislature of Missouri complied with the terms of this second compromise, and on receiving a copy of the solemn public act, President Monroe issued a proclamation on August 10, 1821, declaring Missouri a State in the Union. Thus ended Missouri's long and desperate struggle for statehood.

Says Every Railroad Man Should Read This

Peterson's Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. Dear Sirs: I was afflicted with what the doctors said was Varicose Ulcers, and up until about five weeks ago I have been treating them for about a year and five months.

With all the treatments that were prescribed to me by several doctors I received little benefit, and they kept spreading and gave me much distress and caused me to quit my work.

I was indused by a brother brakeman to try Peterson's Ointment, and after I had used two boxes I saw the wonderful results. You can tell suffering ones troubled with ugly, painful and horrid ulcers that your Ointment is a cure for them when everything else fails, as I have tried about everything. Thanking you many times over I am, your happy friend, Chas. J. Heyser, Battle Creek, Mich., 42 Glenwood Avenue. January 12, 1916.

PILES CURED

WITHOUT the KNIFE
By Dr. Henrich's Method
TO STAY CURED

No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

PILES, Fistula, Fissure, Rectal Strictures, Ulcers and Constipation are permanently cured by my Mild Medical Method. Let me show you how it can be done.

Rectal diseases are sources of infection to the general system. The Colon and Rectum is the receptacle of the body wastes. It has a better sympathetic nerve supply than any other organ of the body.

On account of this fact there is a greater strain of symptoms, such as Headache, Stomach and Heart trouble, Dyspepsia, Bad Liver, Loss of Appetite, Drowsiness and many Nervous disturbances. Marvelous comfort and many wonderful cures of distant organs are brought about by my scientific and skillful Rectal treatment without knife, scissors or chloroform.

Consultation and examination costs nothing. So don't delay. Call any day except Thursday afternoon in the Scott Building, between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. No Sunday hours; I go to church.

Dear Sir:—I am pleased to write this letter to you stating that you have completely cured me of a very severe and painful case of Piles.

I suffered 13 years and during all that time found no permanent relief. Finally my suffering became unbearable and at last I applied to you for treatment, and I am glad to say that in a short time you entirely cured me without the knife and I am now free from this painful and annoying disease.

If anyone desires to verify this statement, I will be glad to answer any letters of inquiry.

With kindest wishes to you and hoping that you will continue to cure sufferers for many years to come, I am

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

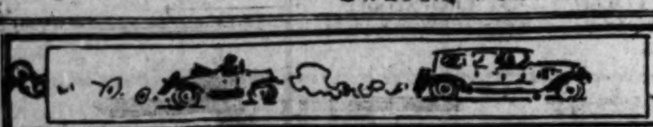
Send this notice to some poor sufferer from eczema. It will be a kind act by you.



AUTOMOBILE NEWS

WEBER WILL DISTRIBUTE ACME TRUCK LINE

The Weber Implement & Automobile Co. of St. Louis has made contract for the distribution of the Acme truck in a large portion of Illinois and Missouri. Samples of all sizes have been ordered and the factory promises shipment early in March.

The Acme line consists of five sizes—1-ton, 1½-ton, 2-ton, 3½-ton and 5-ton. All of these trucks are the same in quality and vary only in size.

The Acme factory is fortunate in being able to furnish a variety of bodies for their trucks, so that their trucks can be adapted to any kind of work.

Before taking on this line officers of the Weber Implement & Automobile Co. made a thorough investigation of the Acme truck and learned from the large cities where the truck has been used in quantities that they have given the very best of service. In order to handle a complete line of trucks to advantage the Weber Implement & Automobile Co. intends, as soon as its new building is completed, to separate the truck business entirely from the passenger car business and in this way will be able to give emergency service to truck users at all times.

TRAINLOAD SHIPMENT OF NASH CARS RECEIVED

A solid train load of 100 Nash cars, loaded on 50 flat cars and gondolas, reached St. Louis last week. The cars were protected by double tarpaulin and a guard was with the shipment during the entire trip.

S. W. Ramsey, manager of the Southwest Nash Motor Co., arranged for this shipment and gathered the equipment necessary to bring it to St. Louis. This is one of the first train load shipments to reach St. Louis for a long period of time. Many of the cars will be reshipped out of St. Louis for nearby dealer points.

USED CAR SHOW WILL OPEN MONDAY AT SOUTHERN HOTEL

More Than 300 Automobiles, Many of Late Models, All Carefully Inspected, Will Be Displayed for Sale by 20 Exhibitors, All Members of the Local Dealers' Association.

A strict inspection is to be made by the Show Committee and its expert helpers of every car that is admitted to the Used Car Show which opens at the Southern Hotel Building in St. Louis, at 7 p. m. Monday. The entries received up to Saturday at noon indicate that there will be nearly 300 traded-in cars in the building when the show opens and as fast as cars are sold they will be removed and others, also inspected, put in their places.

A feature of the show is the fact that every exhibitor is a member of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association, under the auspices of which the used car show is being given. This association has been the central guiding spirit of the automobile business of St. Louis for 13 years.

Inspection of the cars exhibited will include the motor and its workings, the clutch, transmission, paint, window lights, and tires. No car that does not come up to the strict requirements of the rules will be admitted to the building.

A peculiar condition has existed in St. Louis for two years as to traded-in automobiles. Many cars have been turned in on new cars which were of late models and in prime condition, by men who have been unusually prosperous and who wanted the very latest in a new car. This puts on the market many models of the current year or of last year's model which have been little used so that values at the used car show will be above the ordinary.

To Refund Railroad Fare.

There are 20 exhibitors at the Used Car Show and a few of them will display used or traded-in commercial cars. The diversity of makes and models shown will be notable as it will include practically every kind of car handled in this territory and will be inclusive of every kind from a Ford runabout to the highest-priced automobile on the market.

It is expected that there will be a large attendance of buyers from the territory surrounding St. Louis as advertising matter has been sent to the district within 100 miles of St. Louis.

The Show Committee, which consists of George Weber, Weber Implement & Auto Co., chairman; James E. Newell, Newell Motor Car Co.; J. D. Perry Lewis, Lewis Automobile Co.; P. H. Brockman, De Luxe Automobile Co., and Robert E. Lee, show manager, has been giving much attention to the details of the arrangement of the show. There will be orchestra concerts each afternoon and evening during the show and the show will close Saturday night with a dance.

The Southern Hotel building is to be pleasingly decorated and each exhibitor will add to his display with palms and ferns.

All Exchanged Cars.

The big feature of the show is its convenience to the prospective buyer of a traded-in car. Instead of having to shop around from salesroom to salesroom and from warehouse to warehouse, the cars for sale will be all assembled under the one roof, permitting inspection and comparison. Arrangements have been made for the delivery of sold cars the day of sale or early the next morning.

Expectation of many sales at the Used Car Show are based on the record made at the second annual show held in March, 1919, at which 85 per cent of all the cars exhibited were sold. It is promised by the exhibitors that the models shown at the coming show will be in better condition than those at either of the two previous shows as the dealers have learned that a little money spent in overhauling and painting a traded-in car adds greatly to its stability and to the ultimate satisfaction of the buyer.

ANTI-THEFT ASSOCIATION WILL MEET MONDAY

The organization of the St. Louis Automobile Anti-Theft Association will be completed at a meeting at the American Annex Hotel, at noon, Tuesday, March 9. Representatives of all the automobile associations and of a number of civic organizations have been invited to attend the meeting. The purpose of the association is to assist the police financially and otherwise in their rounding up of automobile and accessory thieves. The association is to have many of the "ethics" of the old-time anti-horse thief associations, up to but not including the regulation hangman's necktie. Ernest E. Reeves is secretary, Phil H. Brockman president and Robert E. Lee treasurer of the association.

TO SELL WINTHER TRUCK

The Winther Motor Truck Co. of Kenosha, Wis., has appointed W. E. Lauer and E. L. Siemers distributers for Missouri and Illinois for their line of trucks, ranging from 1½ to 7 tons capacity. The distributers will incorporate under the Missouri laws as the Winther Truck Co. of St. Louis, with offices in the Federal Reserve building. Arrangements for a service station will be completed in a few days.

LICENSE RECORDS BROKEN

More than 60,000 cars above the record of a year ago on March 1 have been registered or licensed by the Secretary of State of Missouri, according to the report received from Jefferson City by P. J. Schilling, the local automobile registration deputy. Up to that time 34,775 automobiles and 7624 chauffeurs had been registered in St. Louis. The Secretary of State has prepared for a registration in St. Louis for 1920 of about 100,000 cars.

SOUTHERN MOTOR TO SELL THE LUEDINGHAUS

Announcement was made last week by H. P. Federspeil of the Southern Motor Co. that they had been appointed exclusive distributors for the Luedinghaus Truck in St. Louis, and throughout Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois.

The Luedinghaus, which is the product of the Luedinghaus-Espenschied Wagon Co., a St. Louis firm which recently entered the commercial car field, at the present time is made only in the two-ton model. It is offered in either a short or long wheel-base chassis, the latter being specially made for the lumber trade, to which the factory has catered for some time.

Within 60 days two new models, a one and a half ton and a three-ton capacity truck will be under production. All experimental work on these two models has been completed, and their manufacturer is only waiting on a few articles of equipment.

Roy A. Hillstrom, formerly city sales manager of the Traffic Motor Truck Corporation, has joined the Luedinghaus-Espenschied Co. in the capacity of general sales manager of the motor truck department.

TEBBETTS IS ELECTED U. & J. VICE PRESIDENT

At recent meetings of the stockholders and directors of the U. & J. Carburetor Co. at Chicago, L. B. Tebbetts, 2125 Locust street, was elected a director and also vice president. Tebbetts states that he purchased a block of stock in the U. & J. company early in 1919, about six months after signing his contract for distribution of the carburetor in this territory.

BOOKLET SHOWS HOW TRUCK AIDS FARMERS

How two farming communities in Maryland, near Baltimore, are meeting the serious labor problems of today and at the same time are reducing the costs of their feed stuffs and implements and are creating a satisfactory and cheap means of transportation between them and the city, is told in a bulletin received recently by the St. Louis branch of the Firestone Ship by Truck Bureau, at 3203 Locust street.

The bulletin, which was prepared by the economic research division of the central Firestone bureau, at Akron, is entitled "Ship by Truck Among Farmers Through Co-operative Association." It sketches the organization, growth and accomplishments of two farmers' co-operative truck lines that have been in successful operation more than two years.

Most of the members of the associations referred to are engaged in dairy farming.

IMMENSE SERVICE STATION PLANNED

Hudson-Frampton Secure Lease on 54,000 Square Feet of Ground Floor Space on Delmar.

Announcement was made last week by E. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., that leases had been signed on the property at 4521-33 Delmar boulevard, and that just as soon as existing leases would be terminated the entire premises would be converted into what is said to be the largest automobile service station maintained by any motor car concern in the West.

Approximately 54,000 square feet of ground space is available, and according to Mr. Frampton, it will all be used exclusively for a service department. The sales department will be continued in their present building at Locust, Lindell and Leonard.

It is planned to maintain a parts department that will be as complete as possible. Approximately 5000 square feet will be devoted to this one feature, and a $75,000 stock of Hudson and Essex parts will be kept in St. Louis for the owners' convenience.

The repair department will have ample space to accommodate 200 cars at one time; 28,000 square feet being given over to this department.

An unusual feature, which is planned, is an out-of-doors fair weather quick service department. This will accommodate those who want minor adjustments or inspections, and will save the inconvenience of being forced to drive inside.

"The constantly increasing number of Hudson and Essex owners in St. Louis, which have now reached the 3000 mark, has made it necessary for us to provide ample service facilities for the future. It was with this in mind that we laid our plans for to provide adequate space for several years to come," said Mr. Frampton in commenting on the announcement.

A. S. Frampton of Chicago, vice president of the Hudson-Frampton Co., was in St. Louis last week, going over the details incident to the closing of the deal.

J. V. BURKE ADVANCED TO SALES MANAGER

James V. Burke has been appointed sales manager of the Martin Motor Truck Co. For the past five years he has been engaged in the truck business in St. Louis, the last two years having been a member of the Martin sales organization.

He succeeds R. B. Thompson, who has been made district manager for Texas and Oklahoma by the Diamond T. factory.

LEX-SEDAN OFFERS ALL SEASONS COMFORTS

"The luxurious heated living room on wheels in winter, the comfy sun parlor in early spring and fall, the airy but shaded porch in summer—that's the new and constantly growing conception of the modern closed car in these days," said C. C. Conrad of the Superior Motor Co. of St. Louis in discussing the growing popularity of the closed car, especially the sedan type.

Continuing, the Lexington distributer added to the picture with this remark: "And the reason for this new viewpoint is easy to understand. The closed car offers fur-coat comforts in winter. It is the raincoat and overshoes of the spring and fall when weather changes are rapid and uncertain, and the linen duster and airy, straw bonnet in summer.

"It was really amazing, too, at New York and Chicago to see the rapid trend towards the closed car. Nearly half of the cars displayed at the national shows were closed types.

"Most especially, in those sections of the country where the seasons are so distinct and decided, the all-year car like the Lex-sedan is becoming the ideal motoring vehicle. Easily and quickly adaptable to the varying weather changes, it answers every purpose."

The Lex-sedan is a really distinctive car. In this car Lexington has reversed the ordinary practice in motor coach building. It has built the body to conform to the top instead of building the top to fit the body of the car. This has made possible a grace of body lines and a beautiful symmetry and harmony not possible by any other practice.

A SHOW WINDOW IS AN AID IN PARKING CAR

"There are few drivers who have not wished for some way of knowing just how much leeway they had in getting in or out of tight parking places in the congested district," says J. D. Perry Lewis, the Chandler distributer.

"Few people realize that the show window serves as a splendid mirror, enabling them to accurately gauge the distance they can go without touching the next car. It is surprising what a help this is and how few people have ever used it."

BETTER COOLING NEEDED

The pleasure of driving is greatly enhanced if the cooling system of the car is in good condition. The radiator plays a most important part, for unless the radiator cools the motor there is the annoyance of constant refilling occasioned by the water boiling over in the radiator. There is nothing more vexatious, particularly on a long pleasure or business drive than to stop frequently and refill the radiator. A radiator to cool properly must so radiate the heat so as to produce the highest cooling efficiency. In order to do this there must be a large radiating surface.

The Eureka radiator meets all these exacting demands and assures perfect cooling efficiency. It has been tried out on hundreds of cars and is pronounced by many to be the "best built radiator in America." Eureka radiators for Ford cars may be secured from the manufacturer, The Eureka Auto Parts Manufacturing Co., 1915-17 Pine street, St. Louis, Mo. The price is $25 each, f. o. b. St. Louis.

"We are very much pleased with our Paige motor truck and advise you that our very next buy in a truck will be a repeat order of a Paige. We have had our Paige truck for six months and during that time it has not been in the garage for adjustment once."

Louis Slavin & Sons (Chicago Iron & Metal Co.)

When a Paige owner finds it necessary to increase his transportation equipment, he naturally chooses another Paige. In the service rendered by his first Paige he has a sound basis of judgment for all future truck purchases.

Paige owners are impressed by the fact that their trucks are seldom laid up for repairs or adjustments. Steady, day-after-day performance is the rule and not the exception: A full measure of service is rendered in return for every dollar invested. This is the character of truck service you buy when you invest in a truck bearing the nameplate "Paige."

Kidney and Bladder Ailments Banished By Few Doses.

Corn Silk! The same "silk" you see protruding from the husk of corn, produces a fine medicine for kidney and bladder irregularities, when compounded with other simple drugs as in Balmwort Tablets.

Balmwort Tablets contain a powerful extract of corn-silk, which quickly relieves the inflammation and congestion that causes such distress as pains in back and hips, rheumatic twinges, nervousness, severe headaches. The patient is compelled to arise frequently to relieve painful pressure. The eyes appear "bloodshot," the sleep is restless, and sometimes fever, followed by chills, cause great unrest. It is unwise to neglect such symptoms, when a few doses of Balmwort Tablets can be taken for relief. Alice Trobough, 5627 South Twenty-fourth st., Omaha, Neb., writes: "I have used one tube of your Balmwort Tablets and find that they are the best I have ever used for kidney and bladder trouble."

THREE CAR MAKERS TO CONSOLIDATE

Loco, Mercer and Simplex Merged Into Hare's Motors Company.

Announcement has been made by the Locomobile Co. and Mercer Motors Co. of the joint acquisition by these two companies of "Hare's Motors Co.," an operating company which will combine the facilities of the two older concerns plus those of Simplex, already controlled by Mercer, and thus co-ordinate the processes of production and development which the management of this new group of interests has in view.

No secret has been made of the fact that material increases in the output of Mercer and Locomobile may be looked for almost immediately. Mercer is already working to a production schedule four times that of the greatest preceding year in the company's history. While the little Loco which was mentioned in the stock prospectus of the new Locomobile Co. can hardly be brought out at once, it is certain that the company already has definite plans for it and will tool up without delay for its production in quantity. Motor trucks are likewise figuring largely in the plans of the organization and important developments in that field are also known to be already well past the experimental stage. The Crane-Simplex designs and patents which now belong to the Mercer Motors Co. are not going to be allowed to collect dust in the archives.

To prevent lost motion and duplication of effort in the operation of this big new enterprise it has been decided to co-ordinate the several units which compose it and tie their functions and facilities together by means of an operating company, which shall see to it that all plans and proceedings work out in orderly fashion for the common good.

The name of the new company is "Hare's Motors," and the plan of management is simplicity itself. The executives who have been directing Mercer's destinies since the reorganization of that company last October will become the direct heads of Hare's Motors.

The officers' personnel is as follows:

President, Elmen S. Hare, formerly vice president, Packard Motor Car Co. Vice president in charge of distribution and service, Henry Langsdale, formerly general carriage sales manager, Packard Motor Car Co. Vice president in charge of production, Ormond E. Hunt, formerly chief engineer, motor carriage division, Packard Motor Car Co. Vice president in charge of engineering development, H. D. Church, formerly chief engineer motor truck division, Packard Motor Car Co. Vice president and consulting engineer, A. L. Riker, formerly vice president and chief engineer Locomobile Co. of America. OWEN TIRES IN BIG LEAGUE

Owen tires have broken into the big leagues. Secretary Charles H. Ebbets Jr., of the Brooklyn Dodgers, has signed Owen tires for Brooklyn.

In the biggest Eastern tire deal in years, Secretary Ebbets assumed distribution of Owen tires for Brooklyn and Long Island, placing an initial order for $130,000 worth of Owen tires. Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, will henceforth be Owen tire headquarters.

Underneath the grandstand Ebbets will dispense tires, automobiles, accessories, etc. Associated with him in the enterprise are M. V. Woods and Richard Cloke.

President W. C. Owen of the Owen Tire and Rubber Co., closed the deal.

The Owen Tire & Rubber Co., with factory at Bedford, has an enviable record of achievement, both in organization and the high quality of their complete line, embracing cord, fabric and solid tires and red and gray inner tubes.

ST. LOUIS CAR CAPITAL PRIZE IN LOTTERY

Last December Maj. T. W. Van Schoiack, vice president and general manager of the Koken companies of St. Louis, and a vice president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, was in South America, in the city of Lima in Peru, when he noticed on the dead walls of the city large posters advertising a lottery drive for the Red Cross. It is the practice in many of the South American countries to raise funds of this character by the ever popular lottery method.

In this instance, in addition to a large number of minor prizes offered for the lottery, the grand prize was a Moon motor car manufactured in St. Louis, Missouri, by the Moon Motor Car Co., and there was a picture of the Moon Victory model in the center of the poster.

INSPECT YOUR WIRING.

"If car owners would make a point of inspecting the wiring on their machines two or three times a year," says G. C. Fisher, of the Battery Service Co., Willard service station dealer, "a lot of trouble would be avoided."

"There is no such thing as tightening a connection so that you are sure it will stay. The constant jar and sway of a car will sometimes succeed in working loose a nut that has been jammed down so tight that it seemed to be there for keeps. This is particularly likely to happen if there is slack in the wire so that it whips back and forth.

"It is quite common to find batteries that are under-charged for no other reason than neglect of the owner to keep connections tight betw[illegible] battery and generator.

EVERY minute a battery works there is evaporation going on, but it affects the water only—never the acid. No matter how old the battery may be it has its full supply of acid, and that acid keeps its strength unless some of it happened to spill out. Water is the only thing that should ever be put into your battery and only enough of that to keep the solution within a quarter-inch of the tops of the plates.

TO PRODUCE 150 DAILY IS GARDNER CAR PLAN

Distribution of the Gardner Light Four, production of which was begun only about three months ago, and, until the past week, was at an average of less than a dozen a day, is taking place in 18 states. Except California and North Carolina, these states are closely grouped in the Middle West and South. Manufacture of the new Gardner car is now in the permanent plant of the Gardner Motor Co. at Main and Rutger streets, St. Louis, with its maximum capacity of 150 cars a day, which is expected to be reached by June 1, Vice President Russell E. Gardner Jr., in charge of sales, states that additional applications for dealers' franchises in this section of the country will be given consideration, with gradual extension of these franchises until a world-wide organization has been perfected.

A better start than had been anticipated at the permanent plant is reported by F. W. Gardner, vice president for production. A fairly complete force of capable workers was had early and all departments were moving smoothly before the end of the week. The inflow of materials was also in good volume, as indicated by a single shipment of 40 carloads, and there is believed to be no difficulty ahead in this direction.

Delivery of the roadster type of the Gardner car is promised before the end of April. Final approval of the body has taken place, after long and careful consideration that can hardly have failed to discern and eliminate every basis for criticism by even the hypercritical. Sedan and coupe types are still to be created, these four to complete the company's line of cars, all of which are to be built upon the same standard chassis.

50,000-MILE ROAD WOULD SERVE ALL

It is possible to build a hard surfaced highway system of 50,000 miles so located as to serve directly 46 per cent of all the counties of the United States and indirectly 41 per cent of all the others. For an annual expenditure of $100,000,000—hardly one dollar a person per year—this fundamental road system could be completed in twelve and a half years and it would serve 87 per cent of the total population of the United States. Such is the statement of the United States Department of Labor.

3274 passengers in cars of 31 different makes drove up before this Opera House entrance one evening last month. Many of them are traveling in second-class comfort, not realizing that they pay first-class prices for it.

Does it Really Cost any more to Travel First Class

YOU will often hear people say, with an air of resignation, how much they would rather ride in a Packard, if they could only afford it.

Putting the Packard owner in a class apart, with special comforts and privileges—assuming that he pays more for his motoring than they do.

A GREAT many people would be less resigned to their own inconveniences of travel, if they knew how little the Packard owner pays for the comfort they speak of.

Packard Transportation never costs more than second-class transportation—and often less.

The gasoline mileage of the Packard is from 10 to 14, according to road conditions. The oil mileage, 1,000 to the gallon. Tires, properly cared for, 12,000 to 16,000 miles.

The Packard exclusive heat-treating process adds greatly to the strength of the steel, reducing repairs and depreciation.

The longer life and greater used value of the Packard more than takes care of the difference in initial investment.

FOR twenty years the Packard Company has been studying motor cars from the standpoint of Transportation Experts. Time after time it has proved that trying to save on the initial investment costs a man more in the long run than buying a Packard.

Transportation facts are not a matter of compromise, but absolute—as the Packard Transportation Experts can show any man who really wants the facts.

THE THOROBRED FOUR

The ELCAR FOUR combines many of the advantages of both six-cylinder and four-cylinder cars.

With splendid power, hill-climbing ability and acceleration, the ELCAR FOUR is more flexible and sturdy than many sixes.

It presents also the economy and simplicity, the freedom from constant adjustment needs, and daily dependability characteristic of the high-grade four.

Its roomy comfort, beautiful finish and wonderful riding qualities must be experienced to be realized. The wheelbase is 118 inches, rear springs are 2½ inches wide and 52½ inches long, underslung, becoming almost straight under load. Cushions are 10 inches deep, rear seat 52 inches wide.

The motor, with large, quick-acting valves, long stroke, and large bearings, is unusually smooth and silent. Its pulling power is remarkable, and under crowded traffic conditions gear shifting is rarely necessary.

Men looking for a simple, dependable, economical car, roomy and of unusual comfort and looks, will find the ELCAR FOUR worth their careful consideration.

CONGRESS ASKED TO EXTEND MOTOR EXPRESS ROUTES

Would Help Reduce High Cost of Living, Postoffice Officials State in Report of Test.

Motor express routes for the transportation of mails and foodstuffs in experiments conducted by the Government over a period of three months have been so prolific of beneficial results and so convinced officials of the Post Office Department of the truck's possibilities as a factor in transportation, according to Automobile Topics, that Congress has been asked in the report of these tests to grant an additional appropriation for the extension of the routes to other parts of the country.

The experiments which the Post Office Department has been conducting were authorized by Congress last February in the Post Office appropriation bill. It was specified that the tests should be made by the Post Office Department in the operation of motor trucks to determine their practicability in promoting the conservation of food by expediting the collection and delivery of foodstuffs from producers to consumers and to facilitate the delivery of fourth class mail. An appropriation of $300,000 was provided with which to conduct the tests.

The report shows that the revenues from the operation of five motor truck routes from July 1 to September 30 last were $52,067.41, or 81 cents a mile, while the cost ranged from 15 to 25 cents a mile. The five routes covered a distance of 903.8 miles daily at an estimated cost per annum of $67,500.

The total distance covered during the period was 63,740 miles and a total of 354 tons of mail matter, approximately 118 tons a month, was transported.

Specifically the department sums up the results of its experiments as follows:

1. That the further extension of this character of service is desirable, particularly in producing territory within 200 miles of large markets where either inadequate or no facilities exist for conveyance by rail or water, if there is to be an actual relief afforded the public from the prevailing high cost of living.

2. That through the maximum use of the facilities of conveyance provided by the Postal Service the food producer would not have to suspend production to engage in conveyance, and thus labor and man-power would be saved for production. Where numerous employes of food producers are necessary for the distribution and transportation of foodstuffs in small quantities one employe of the Postal Service with adequate equipment could provide the conveyance now supplied by them.

3. It is evident that the conveyance of food in the Postal Service could be made a vital factor in expediting the movement of food from producer to consumer. It is recommended that this service be given every possible moral and financial encouragement and that every endeavor be made to increase the use of and enlarge the equipment now available.

AUTO MANUFACTURER PREDICTS PROSPERITY

The present increasing demand for automobiles will continue for at least another year, according to Alvan Macauley, president of the Packard Motor Car Company. "Despite frequent predictions during the past ten years that the limit of automobile sales was about to be reached," Mr. Macauley said, "in my opinion only the development of a serious industrial or financial situation can materially curtail automobile production.

"The fact that Packard production will be doubled during the coming year is an indication of the existing demand for motor cars. The greatest problem the average manufacturer has to face at present is to produce his regular quality of goods with the unskilled help available. American ingenuity in machine production has done wonders in this direction, but it is beyond denial that even with the utmost in machine equipment, skilled men can produce better work than unskilled.

"Despite such a handicap, American cars are being manufactured on a basis of quality comparable to any in the world. The foreign car, although it is the more expensive because it is produced largely by hand, is no longer the best.

"A new phase of automobile finance is the readiness of bankers throughout the country to accept the automobile business on even terms with the oldest and most established staple industries. Time was—and not very long ago—when bankers of national reputation were pursuing the policy of conservatism toward automobile companies. Today, funds in any reasonable amount are readily available to any recognized automobile company."

TO FINANCE PURCHASES

The Iowa Guarantee Mortgage Corporation announce the opening of a St. Louis branch office under the management of R. D. Bloom and Miss E. A. Dunker, at 310 Central National Bank Bldg. This company will finance time-payment sales in the automobile field in both new and used cars.

AUTO SIGNAL DESIGNED TO ATTRACT ATTENTION

A working model of an automobile signal system which is designed to attract attention through blare and glare and thereby eliminate a great deal of the danger that arises from inattention to existing methods of signaling by persons driving automobiles is being displayed in the office of Richard Shaul of the Universal Motor Truck Co., 940 Syndicate Trust building. It is the invention of Felix J. Koch of St. Louis and has attracted the attention of several automobile and truck manufacturers, though but of recent origin.

The device consists of a horn and electric lights which are attached to front and rear of cars and operated either through push button attachments on the steering column or by pressure upon the brake pedal. The front light is for traffic police to indicate the direction the driver wishes to go, while the rear light warns the car following of the intention to slow up, turn to right or left or stop. The lights are of arrow form. The current is obtained from the lighting system.

No Motor Truck Is Better Than the Service Back of It

At the Show you will see many motor trucks—each, no doubt, a GOOD truck, for today there are but few POOR trucks—they will all look a good deal alike, especially to the average man.

You will hear much talk of worm drive against internal gear drive; of torsion rods versus Hotchkiss drive; of the superiority of this motor over that, and a hundred other specification arguments upon which even the foremost automotive engineers do not always agree.

There are so many arguments that oftentimes they are only confusing. The one thing you are sure you want is a truck that will "deliver the goods" for you, and one that is backed by a Service Organization that will keep that truck working, day and night, if necessary.

Therefore, when you visit the Show, remember that the

This Was the Message We Gave You at the Truck Show

AT THE TRUCK SHOW you saw many Trucks. Trucks that will do your work. Each salesman had his talking points for his particular make. Yet you will agree they all looked more or less alike. Unless you are an engineer or a mechanic, the one question you wanted to know was, whether or not they could be depended upon to do your work whenever it was required. That is a question of SERVICE.

You Have Compared the Trucks

Now Compare the Service

In the Martin Organization the motto is "Service First." Every truck owner is entitled to the maximum use of his truck equipment and we feel it is our duty to provide means of ensuring it to every Diamond T and Denby owner.

There are so many features to Martin Service that we cannot go into the details of it here. We urge that you investigate it for yourself. Inspect our plant. Go over our stock of parts. Question our mechanical force. And, lastly, ASK OUR OWNERS.

FLAT TIRE THE BANE OF OWNER'S EXISTENCE

"The bane of the average auto owner's existence is a flat tire," says Joseph Roberts of the Roberts Motor Tire Co., local Federal tire dealer. "There is probably nothing so exasperating. An automobile with the finest motor in the world, and equipment as complete as possible, is of little use when a tire goes wrong

"Yet few motorists study tire construction so that they may buy the very best available. If they did, they would find, for example, that Federal tires are builded after a scientific process, a process so thorough that each individual cord in a tire must have a perfect coating of rubber that it may do perfect team-work with the thousands of other cords in that fabric.

"They would study the merits of Federal's double cable base and its soft bead or base. In a word, they would know the tire they buy as well as they try to know the piano or the auto in which they invest their money."

CO-OPERATION SOUGHT OF WAR DEPARTMENT TO BETTER TRAFFIC LAWS

Varying Legislation Now Enacted in Many States Causes Confusion Generally in Transportation by Motor Truck.

Fear that ill-considered motor truck legislation by the different states will interfere with the development of economical highway transportation and of motor truck express service in interstate commerce has led the New York State Commissioner of Highways, Frederick S. Greene, to write to Col. Sherrill, of the U. S. War Department, calling attention to the necessity of having the states of the Union enact uniform traffic legislation.

The commissioner points out that New York State is preparing for the motor express era and is building concrete roads as part of its program in promoting motor truck lines. The State Divison of Foods and Markets is much interested in the development of such truck operation as an important factor in promoting agricultural production and reducing prices of farm products in the cities. "It will be the duty of the next legislature," says Commissioner Greene, "to enact laws that will promote transportation development."

In his letter to the War Department the commissioner says:

"I have noticed that a great many states are now beginning to enact motor truck legislation, and, as usual, the laws are not uniform. This, of course, is going to hamper not only the manufacture of motor trucks, but will tend toward confusion generally in motor truck traffic. I believe the law should limit motor trucks in three directions—width, height and maximum load per inch of bearing surface of tire. In my opinion, no truck should be allowed on our highways which is more than 8 feet in width and 13 feet in height."

He also advocates a maximum gross weight of vehicle and load not exceeding 800 pounds per inch of tire, as the crushing strength of concrete pavements averages 3600 pounds per square inch. This gives a factor of safety of nearly four, which is enough to take care of stresses due to impact of heavy moving vehicles. He does not anticipate any trouble with regard to length of trains composed of tractors and trailers, as he believes that grades of more than 5 per cent limit them at present to one or two trailers hauled by a single tractor.

The recommendations as to weight per inch of tire and overall width made by the New York State commissioner are the same as those in force in Massachusetts and several other states. They have been agreed upon by the motor truck industry as reasonable and sufficient for protection of properly constructed highways, and are embodied in a uniform traffic bill that has been prepared for introduction in the various state legislatures next winter.

DIXIE FLYER PLANT DOUBLES PRODUCTION

Two new buildings costing approximately $150,000, and representing a substantial increase in floor space, are nearing completion at the plant of the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Co. They will enable the local concern to handle the increased production of Dixie Flyer passenger cars. The new structures will be used as an assembly plant.

Orders aggregating 252 cars, with definite shipping dates and cash deposits, were received during the first five days of the Chicago show.

The New York distributor placed specifications and gave specific shipping dates for 800 cars. The company has purchased material for 5000 cars, which is being delivered rapidly.

Orders for 1165 cars already have been accepted for foreign shipment. These are for distribution in the British Isles, France, Africa, India and Scandinavia. The Dixie Flyer is handled in St. Louis by the American Auto and Supply Co.

HAYNES IN THE MOVIES.

According to advices to the Wilson Motor Car Co. of St. Louis, to supplement its advertising in foreign fields, and to give the automobile-buying public of these countries a vivid, realistic picture of the accuracy of workmanship in the construction of all types of Haynes character cars, as well as to demonstrate, by means of road tests and endurance feats, the ruggedness and extreme roadability of Haynes cars, the Haynes Automobile Co., Kokomo, Ind., has engaged in the production of a complete motion picture film.

This film will depict all the various details and processes of construction, drop-forging, automatic gear-cutting, motor testing, metallurgical inspection, motor and chassis assembly, multiple drilling, aluminum crank case milling, body finishing and upholstering, and finally the actual selling of the cars in the showrooms throughout the country.

An entire staff of motion picture men from the Universal Film Manufacturing Co., New York City, including the well-known director, Harry Fraser, two camera men headed by Harry Forbes, and a crew of electricians, with hundreds of feet of cable, flood lights and other necessary paraphernalia, have been busy at the factory "shooting" pictures of the different departments from all angles.

BATTERIES FOR TRUCKS

Storage batteries especially designed by the Exide engineers for use on motor trucks are becoming popular rapidly, according to information received by H. B. Marshall, Exide manager in St. Louis.

The trucks that are not being equipped with thees batteries, Marshall said, include Mack, Federal, Gramm-Bernstein, Jackson, Mutual, Union, United States, Walter Conestoga and Ace.

The plates in the batteries for use on trucks rest on cushions of rubber, which are so constructed as to absorb the shocks of the road and prevent breakage.

A New Beauty Now Makes a Chalmers Doubly Charming

CHALMERS MOTOR CAR CO. Quality First

THE case for Chalmers has rested itself for several years on its power rhythm, its rare ability to utilize the last ounce of power nature stored away in gasoline, and to provide gentle, steady power that was throbless.

Now comes a new body—a new coach—to make this car doubly charming.

To see it is to want a Chalmers, for it is so simple in line, so elegant as a result of its simplicity.

You can add the final touch to this choice if you will but ride in one a short distance.

Hot Spot and Ram's-horn, those two ingenious devices that fertile minds invented to "digest" the raw, inferior gasoline of the day, will win you.

They wring out the power in the gasoline, feed each cylinder without favoritism, and supply a rhythm of action that is very engaging.

Also they take out the uneven throb, and once you experience this sensation you, too, will say Chalmers is one of the few great cars of the world.

USED CAR SHOW

At the Southern Hotel Building Broadway, Walnut Fourth and Elm

Which Starts Tomorrow at 7 P. M.

Open All Week 11 A.M. to 11 P.M. Orchestra Concerts Afternoon and Evening

THOSE who visit the Used Car Show this week will see one of the largest and finest collections of Exchanged Cars ever gathered under one roof. It presents a wonderful opportunity for those who contemplate the purchase of a Used Car to inspect at their leisure the "cream" of the stock of these twenty-one New Car Dealers, who are concentrating their Exchanged Cars at the Show.

¶ The Exchanged Car is gaining a new place in the motor car world, and should be considered apart from the average "Used Car." The Exchanged Car is one received by a new car dealer in part payment for a new car, very often of the same make.

¶ It has many advantages not possessed by a used car promiscuously purchased. It has been examined by the dealer and its condition ascertained. It is "tuned up"—often being overhauled, repainted and new tires put on. You will be surprised how much the show will resemble a new car show. The Exchanged Car represents the maximum motor car value at its price.

¶ In buying a Used Car the reliability of the seller is a most important factor. The Used Car Show is under the auspices of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association and all exhibitors are members of that organization—firms whose principal business is the selling of new cars.

¶ You will find nearly every style of body and type of chassis represented. They are priced at only a fraction of their original cost, which ranged from $435 to $8000.

¶ Select the Motor Car you want at a price and terms that beyond a question of doubt will meet with your approval. Railroad fare (within a radius of 200 miles) will be refunded to out-of-town buyers.

A QUARTER of A MILLION DOLLAR SERVICE STATION For HUDSON and ESSEX Owners

In keeping with our policy of making FRAMPTON QUALITY SERVICE better than the best, we now announce the acquisition of the largest automobile Service Station maintained by any motor car concern in the West, conveniently located at 4521-23-25-27-29-31-33 Delmar Bl. (near Taylor). Because of existing leases, complete possession can not be had until next Fall.

Fifty-four thousand square feet of ground floor space is to be devoted exclusively to giving FRAMPTON QUALITY SERVICE to Hudson and Essex owners. Sufficient space is provided to accommodate 200 cars at one time, entirely eliminating the annoyance of delays.

Over 5000 square feet will be devoted entirely to the Parts Department; where there will be maintained constantly a $75,000.00 stock of parts, the completeness of which has probably never been equaled in St. Louis. It would be possible to practically re-assemble any model Hudson or Essex, so complete is the stock.

The convenience of the owner will receive first consideration. The mammoth Emergency and Repair Service Department, comprising over 28,000 square feet under one roof, will be so arranged that any car can be removed without interfering with others. An out-of-doors "fair weather" inspection and quick service department will also be maintained in connection with the large indoor shop.

Today there are approximately 2000 owners of Hudson and Essex cars in St. Louis and vicinity. By the close of 1920 this number will be greatly augmented, and it is to provide the most efficient service, the best equipment, and the greatest possible convenience that we have planned this mammoth Service Station.

The Sales Department for Hudson and Essex will be continued in our building at the present location—Locust, Lindell and Leonard.

Every purchaser of a Hudson or an Essex can be assured that no expense will be spared to make FRAMPTON QUALITY SERVICE one of par excellence and an asset to every owner.

PRESIDENT FIRM AND OUTLOOK GLOOMY FOR TREATY COMPROMISE

Officials Close to Wilson Say Middle Ground Proposals Should Be Addressed Not to Him, but to Lodge.

IRRECONCILABLES TO TRY TO END DEBATE

Borah's Attitude Indorsed by Hitchcock; "Ready to Vote; Unnecessary to Seek Executive's Views."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The move to bring President Wilson actively into the peace treaty compromise negotiations got such a setback at the White House today that the irreconcilable Senate opponents of ratification again pronounced the treaty dead and gave notice that they would move Monday to bring the debate speedily to an end.

Officials close to the President declared that Democratic Senators already were fully advised of the attitude of the executive and that compromise proposals should be addressed, not to Mr. Wilson, but to Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the Republican leader in the Senate.

It was not revealed whether the President would grant the requested conference with Senator Simmons of North Carolina, representing the Senate Democrats, in a final effort at compromise, but the White House officials intimated that they thought further efforts to inquire into the President's views would be superfluous.

The development caused unconcealed disappointment among the Republican and Democratic Senators working for an eleventh-hour compromise, but it did not put a stop to their negotiations. Some on both sides openly declared the only course left was to make the effort at agreement and then, if a ratification were accomplished, let the President decide whether he would accept or reject it.

Opposed to More Delay.

Among the irreconcilables, however, it confidently was asserted that no agreement ever could be reached on such an uncertain basis and that, if the declaration of the White House officials reflected the views of the President, further delay of the ratification vote was only so much time wasted.

The notice of their intention to force final action was given in the Senate by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, who said he would move Monday to take up at once the knotty problem of article 10, which had been put over in the hope that a compromise on it might be assured while the Senate worked its way through the long list of collateral reservations.

Senator Borah's proposal was indorsed by Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, the Democratic leader, who said he and his colleagues were ready to vote "at an early date," and that it was "unnecessary" to seek the views of the President before taking final action. Senator Lodge, however, suggested that the quickest way now to reach article 10 was to proceed with the program as it now stands.

Seven More Reservations.

Six reservations besides that relating to article 10 remain to be disposed of, the Senate having acted during the day on the seventh of the list of 14 adopted last November. The reservation voted on was that exempting the United States from paying expenses of the league of nations without congressional action, and it was readopted 46 to 25, after a proviso had been added excluding from the stipulation the office expenses and salary of the secretary-general. Senator Kellogg, Republican, Minnesota, offered the proviso, which had been agreed to in the bipartisan conference, and it was accepted, 55 to 12, with both Republican and Democratic leaders supporting it.

In discussing the request for a conference between the President and Senator Simmons, White House officials pointed out that Senator

ST. REGIS RENTS SAID TO BE GOING UP 50 PER CENT

Six Residents Notified to Make Up Minds Quickly as to 50 to 75 Per Cent Advances on Their Leases.

Six tenants of the St. Regis apartments on Lindell boulevard, near King's Highway, have been notified, they say, that when their leases expire shortly, they will be compelled to pay rental advances of from 50 to 75 per cent if they desire to continue to reside there.

Moreover, they say, they have been warned to make up their minds quickly or the owner will contract with other parties. The St. Regis apartments, since their construction, have been among the most expensive in St. Louis. Leases there are for three-year periods. Apartments there are seldom vacant.

One tenant, whose lease is at a yearly rental of $1,500, has been told, he said yesterday, that his new rate will be $2,600. Another who has been paying $1,900 has been told, he declares, that he must henceforth pay $3,000. A third stated that he has been raised from $2,400 to $3,000, and a fourth, now paying $2,600, said that he has been informed his new rate will be $3,600. The apartments are eight and ten rooms.

Claude E. Vrooman, a real estate agent, who owns the apartments, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that it was true that tenants had been notified of pending increases in their rentals, but that the increase was only approximately 10 per cent. He said that all tenants would be notified, as their leases approached expiration, that they must pay a higher rate for renewal. He declared that this was made necessary by the increased cost of maintenance of the building.

The public reception rooms and lobby at the St. Regis always have been sumptuously furnished. However, tenants said yesterday that there had been no recent expenditures about the building to justify, in their opinion, the new rates asked.

One tenant said: "I can pay it, all right, but I don't like the principle."

"Unwarranted" and "unprecedented" were adjectives others used. All were very much exercised by their landlord's action.

MAN SITS DOWN SO FORCIBLY HE IS UNABLE TO WALK

Mrs. Robert Holmes of 46 Portland place, wife of the president of the J. A. Holmes Lumber Co., lost control of the automobile she was driving south on Taylor avenue at Westminster place last night and crashed into the side of the Second Presbyterian Church with such force as to displace some of the granite blocks of which it is constructed.

She was not injured, but a pedestrian on the sidewalk, in a frantic endeavor to get out of the way, slipped on the ice and sat down so forcibly that he was unable to walk for several minutes.

When the police arrived the man refused to give his name, declaring that he was thoroughly disgusted with the whole performance, and didn't want to be mixed up with it any further. He walked gingerly away. The damage to the automobile was $1200.

Population of Toledo 243,109; Census Gives Charlotte, N. C., 46,318

Toledo showed an increase of 27.8 per cent in the same time, Toledo had the larger growth in the twelfth census, having increased 61.9 per cent in the 10 years from 1890 to 1900, while Charlotte's increase was 56.5 per cent.

DRYS PROPOSE THAT GOVERNMENT BUY IN ALL WHISKY IN BOND

Anti-Saloon League Statement Says Present Owners Are Constantly Tempted to Break Law.

By the Associated Press.

WESTERVILLE, O. March 6.—Purchase by the Federal Government of all liquor stocks in bond is urged by the Antisaloon League, in a statement issued here today at the league's national headquarters, by Ernest H. Cherrington, secretary of the league's Executive Committee. The statement says:

"Now that prohibition has gone into effect everything which the Government can do to make it easy to enforce the law should be done.

"With over 60,000,000 gallons of whisky in bonded warehouses there is a constant temptation to devise ways and means of utilizing that liquor in spite of the law. Moreover, so long as that whisky is in existence, those who own it, realizing as they do its commercial value, except for prohibition, will be constantly tempted to use millions of dollars in efforts to repeal and break down the prohibition law.

"The Government should purchase that whisky at a price to be fixed by a Federal commission, which price should represent the actual cost of producing it. Upon purchasing the whisky, the Government should convert it promptly into denatured alcohol, for which there is an ever increasing demand.

'By such an arrangement the distillers will get all they actually have invested in the whisky."

It was said the Antisaloon League might ask Congress for legislation authorizing purchase of all bonded liquors.

WHAT MAY BE DONE WITH LIQUOR SALVAGED FROM FIRE?

By the Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 6.—Whether the owner of whisky salvaged from a home being destroyed by fire is entitled to recover the liquor is a question that Federal authorities here have referred to Jesse Johnson, Prohibition Enforcement Commissioner of Louisiana.

Police at Monroe, La., took charge of a quantity of whisky when a crowd rushed into Jerry Hall's home during a fire and tried to consume it. Hall's request for its return caused the case to reach the Federal officials.

DOWNTOWN STORE HELD UP BY ONE MAN AT 8 P. M.

$100 Taken From Cash Register and Watches From Three Men at Shirt Shop at 708 Olive Street.

UNMASKED ROBBER ESCAPES IN AUTO

Ordered Men Into Rear Room to Be Relieved of Watches —Forced One to Open Cash Register.

A young man held up three men, shortly before 8 o'clock last night, in the National Shirt Shop, 708 Olive street, in the Republic Building, near the center of the downtown district, and took about $100 from the cash register, besides robbing the three men of their watches.

He is believed to have gone to the store in a large closed automobile, in which two other men were seen, and which is believed to have waited for him on Locust street, near the alley west of Seventh street, and to have taken him away after his departure from the store.

Late shoppers and persons going to theaters were passing near the store as the young man entered and displayed a revolver. The man could have been seen through the store door sash, but not through the windows, which were filled with merchandise.

Three Behind Counter.

Behind the counter, when the young man entered, were B. F. Scholl, 4420 Ashland avenue, manager of the shop; Oscar C. Damm, of 4176 Delmar boulevard, assistant manager, and Charles Huette, of 6371 Waterman avenue, manager of the W. B. Huette shoe store, 714 Olive street.

"Come out from there," the man ordered. The three stepped from behind the counter, and filed, at the man's command, into a rear room.

"Give me your watches," was the next order, and the three handed over their watches, with chains and charms. Scholl later said his watch and chain were worth $40, Damm said his loss was $25, and Huette valued the articles taken from him at $50.

The man attempted to keep the three in the rear room, by pointing his revolver at them, while trying to open the cash register. He found he could not get the register open, and he called Scholl and required him to open it. He then took out the money, about $100 in bills and coins.

"Stay in there, all of you," the robber told the three men. "I'll kill the first one that comes out." They waited until they heard the front door close, then ran to the sidewalk and shouted for policemen.

Two Policemen Come.

Two policemen came from Seventh and Pine streets, but were unable to find the robber, who had run through the alley, west of the Central National Bank Building, to Locust street.

The young man, whose face was not covered, was described as short and heavy, having a pug nose, and wearing an overcoat and a gray soft hat.

M. Kormblet, a clerk in the Newark Shoe Store, adjoining the shirt shop on the east, said he saw a large limousine stop in front of the Central National Bank Building, just before the robbery, and saw one man get out and walk across the street to the shirt shop, while the car, containing two men, proceeded west. A few minutes later, he heard the shouts for policemen. He said, after hearing the robber described, that he had no doubt it was the same man whom he saw.

RETAIL DRY GOODS INTERESTS DECLARE WAR ON PROFITEERS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The National Retail Dry Goods Association opened its campaign against profiteers today by placing large posters in all buyers' offices in New York, urging its members to resist price advances and insist on deliveries. The merchants are asked to report "all unfair manufacturers and wholesalers" to the Department of Justice.

The action of the association, it was announced, is in response to the request of Howard E. Figg, Assistant Attorney-General of the United States, for its co-operation in eliminating profiteering.

DUPLICATE KEY THEORY ADVANCED

Head of Washington Avenue Concern Tells Police He Carried Only $4000 Insurance on Stock.

The reported theft by "truc burglars" of silks, satins and crepe de chine valued at from $60,000 to $70,000 from the Mohr Garment Co., 1312 Washington avenue, early yesterday, is being investigated by the police. Irvin Mohr, 6930 Waterman avenue, head of the company, told the police he carried only $4000 insurance on the stock.

The robbery was discovered by Isaac Smith, a negro elevator boy, when he arrived at the building at 8:30 a. m. yesterday and found a door leading to the office of the concern on the fifth floor broken. A staple holding an extra lock had been pulled out and the door pushed in. Employes of the company who arrived for work a short time later were unable to tell what had been taken. Mohr arrived at 10 a. m. and said his place had been "cleaned out," and said it would be necessary to take an inventory before he would know what had been stolen

Loot Listed for Police.

Later in the day he listed the following with the police as among the loot: Two hundred bolts of georgette, 100 bolts of crepe de chine, 100 bolts of satins, a similar number of bolts of tub silks and a like volume of other silks. There were 60 yards on a bolt, he said, and each bolt was wrapped in a separate piece of paper.

The silks had been kept, Mohr said, in a little room at one side of the fifth floor and had been taken from the room and apparently carried to the ground floor and thence loaded onto a truck and hauled away. He said he had not taken further precautions to guard the stock because the heavy ground floor front door of the building is kept locked all night and a watchman is employed to pay particular attention to that section of the wholesale district.

The firm, he said, had only been in this building about six weeks, having moved there from 803 Washington avenue.

Front Door Found Locked.

Detectives Blake and Callahan, who are investigating the theft, reported they were told by Smith, the elevator man, that the front door on the first floor was locked as usual when he reported for work yesterday morning. He opened it with his regular key, he said. Each firm in the building, the detectives learned, has keys to this door and none has been reported stolen or missing. The detectives were unable to find any trace of burglary on the fire escapes or windows of any of the floors. Mohr said the thieves must have used a duplicate key on the front door.

The firm manufactures shirt waists. The detectives also reported that most firms in that district who carry a large line of valuable silks keep the bolts in vaults such as are used by other concerns to keep money and valuables. Mohr said he had intended putting in one of these vaults but had not had the necessary time the detectives reported.

The theft is the largest reported in many years in the Washington avenue wholesale district and the largest "truck burglar" robbery reported this year in the city. No trace of the vehicle used in hauling the goods has been found by the police.

Hoover Forbids Use of His Name in the California Primary

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.

HERBERT HOOVER will not permit his name to be used in the California Presidential primary, as he is not a candidate for the office, according to a telegram from him, read here today by Gavin McNab at the Democratic State Committee meeting.

"While highly sensible of the great honor implied in the desire of many friends to place my name in nomination as a candidate in Democratic primaries," the telegram read, "I deem it due to them to advise them that I am not a candidate. I therefore cannot approve of the use of my name for that purpose.

HERBERT HOOVER.

Telegrams also from William McAdoo and Senator James D. Phelan in which each declared he did not wish any candidates for delegates named for him, were read.

Twenty-six candidates for delegates to the national convention were selected. Two of the four candidates for delegates at large and five of the district candidates named are women.

Suggestions favoring indorsement of Hoover and Gov. Cox of Ohio were withdrawn by their sponsors following the reading of the telegram from Hoover.

JAIL DEPLETED OF PRISONERS SHERIFF DOES OWN CHORES

County Prison at Mexico, Mo., Empty for First Time in Its History.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO, Mo., March 6.—For the first time in the history of the institution Audrain County's jail is without an inmate. Sheriff J. G. Ford is having the novel experience of carrying his own coal, milking his own cows night and morning and in general being his own "chore boy," as trusted prisoners are a thing of the past, for the present at least. He lays his trouble to prohibition. His last law-breaker, a faithful trusty who had been there more than a year, left the confines of the jail a few days ago.

Ford, when lamenting his fate to Sheriff Whitesides of Boone County, a short time ago, was told that both that jail and the one in Paris, Monroe County, were also without prisoners.

ALLIES SEND SHARP WARNING TO TURKS; ITS TERMS DRASTIC

Military Measures Said to Have Been Decided Upon, Including Occupation of Constantinople, If Necessary, to Stop Massacres and Protect Armenians.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 6.—The allies dispatched a note to the Turkish Government today. The terms of the communication were not disclosed, but it is understood they are drastic and will be followed by drastic action, should the necessity arise.

Premier Lloyd George announced in the British House of Commons Thursday that the massacres of Armenians in Cilicia had received very anxious consideration at recent conferences of the allied representatives and that the conferees had reached a decision which had been communicated to the allied commissions at Constantinople. The Premier added that it would not be advisable to make public at the moment the character of the decision.

The protection of minorities in Cilicia was in charge of the French, Lloyd George said, and all the allies were prepared to give the French whatever support might be within their power.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 6.—The Daily Telegraph today makes a feature of a report that the Allies have decided on the military and naval occupation of Constantinople in consequence of the treatment of the Armenians by the Turks.

The newspaper's version of the report represents Great Britain as determined to occupy the Turkish capital and says she has invited France and Italy to co-operate and that their replies are awaited.

Orders for British Naval Forces in Vicinity of Capital.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Saturday, March 6.—On proposals by Premier Venizelos of Greece the Supreme Allied Council has decided upon energetic action at Constantinople, backed by military measures, says "Pertinex," political editor of the Echo de Paris. He says orders appear already to have been given British military and naval forces in the vicinity of the Turkish capital.

Massacres to Cost Turkey Much Territory.

LONDON, March 6.—There is likelihood that the Cilician massacre will cost Turkey much of what the treaty of peace would otherwise have left her, according to expressions heard in inner circles at Whitehall, where allied Foreign Ministers continue framing the Turkish settlement. The proposed western boundary from Enos, on the Aegean Sea, to Vidia, on the Black Sea, may be abandoned and the line may be drawn much further east. This would limit Turkish possessions in Europe to the narrow peninsula north of the Sea of Marmora.

France and Great Britain are credited with being in agreement in this respect, but there is less certainty expressed as to Italy's attitude and the matter is yet to be settled definitely. Another effect of the Cilician outrage is said to be unanimous assent among members of the Foreign Ministers' Council toward totally depriving Turkey of an army and permitting her to maintain only a force of gendarmes. This scheme, which has been discussed for some time, seemed recently to be doomed to abandonment but it is now said to be the most probable solution of the question.

INDUSTRIAL BODY CALLED BY WILSON FINISHES ITS WORK

Report to President Will Say That Problems of Labor Should Be Met in Individual Plants.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The proper place to grapple with the labor problem is in the individual plant, the second industrial conference will tell President Wilson in its final report.

The conference adjourned today, after having held 80 sessions since its first meeting, Dec. 1. Its report, adopted unanimously, will go to the President next week, and will be made public within about 15 days.

Specific recommendations regarding hours of work, wages, women and children in industry, unemployment and similar problems have been made, the conference announced, and a definite stand on collective bargaining, the rock on which the first conference came to grief, has been taken.

In a preliminary report made public Dec. 19, the conference proposed machinery for adjusting disputes between employes and employers and asked for criticisms and suggestions. A number of men prominent in public life as well as representatives of capital and labor, appeared before the conference, while individuals and organizations made suggestions in writing.

The final report, the conference announced, makes some modification of the organization in its preliminary statement, but leaves intact the national industrial board and the regional boards of inquiry and adjustment.

The final report also deals "broadly with the general field of industrial relations," and undertakes to prevent industrial disputes by recommending elimination of the causes of disagreement. Plans for shop organizations to facilitate voluntary adjustments between capital and labor are suggested.

DANIELS FOR NAVY TO LEAD WORLD IF TREATY LOSES

Tells House Committee if U. S. Ratifies Pact and Joins League, Fleet Need Only Be "Rounded Out."

69 SHIPS SOUGHT UNDER THIRD PLAN

This Schedule, Designed in Event Action on Treaty Is Delayed, Would Keep U. S. Abreast of Other Powers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Three provisional naval building programs, dependent on Senate action on the peace treaty, were laid before the House Naval Committee today by Secretary Daniels.

If the United States ratified the treaty and became a member of the league of nations, Daniels said, he would recommend new construction only to "round out" the fleet now built or building; if the Senate rejected the treaty, and the United States definitely decided not to join the league, he said he would urge duplication of the three-year program of 1916, with some modifications, with a view of making the fleet "incomparable" the greatest in the world.

In case the Senate took no final action on the treaty at this session of Congress, the Secretary said he would present a 69-ship program for construction as rapidly as possible, in order that the United States might not lose ground in competitive naval building.

Secretary Daniels told the committee it must choose between the three proposals. The 69-ship program, he said, would cost about $195,000,000. He gave no estimate of the cost of a new three-year program.

Separate Air Service Opposed.

Declaring that aircraft would never make batleships obsolete, the Secretary added that aviation was "essentially an integral part of the fleet." Expressing oposition to efforts to institute an independent air service, he said he believed such a program would end in failure.

Civil aviation should be entirely divorced from the military and naval branches, he said, and advocated early passage of legislation regulating by Federal agencies private aerial navigation. Civil aviation should be encouraged, he declared, but should not be developed by a great expenditure of the public funds.

Included in the tentative three-year program, Daniels outlined, were 10 dreadnaughts and six battle cruisers, but he added that he would ask appropriations the first year for only two battleships and one battle cruiser. In addition the program would include for the three years 20 light cruisers and a large number of smaller craft.

The 69-ship program included two dreadnoughts and one battle cruiser for prompt construction, with a large program of cruisers and auxiliaries, while the Secretary recommended that if the United States ratify the treaty and become a league member he would include no capital craft.

Chairman Butler said Sir Auckland Geddes, new British Ambassador to the United States, had been quoted as saying that the British Ambassador to the United States, had been quoted as saying that the British navy would not be larger than that of the United States, but Daniels said Great Britain was "encouraging its colonies to build naval vessels."

League Could Give Safety.

Replying to suggestions of Chairman Butler that the United States need not fear any other nation on the sea so long "as an agreement with Great Britain continued," the Naval Secretary said he believed only a league of nations with a force strong enough to enforce its edicts could insure safety for the United States.

"As certainly as we entered into a combination with any other one nation," he said, "the other nations of the world would distrust us and fear us and you would again have the old question of the balance of power."

"League or no league, I believe the United States should have as large a navy as any other nation in the world," said Daniels.

"Do you say that because you lack confidence in the proposed league?" asked Representative Britten.

"I think all men admit that the delay has detracted from the moral force of the league," replied the Secretary. "Possibly the loss could be made up after we entered. Certainly, if we do not enter, many of the smaller nations will not have the confidence in the league they would have had if we were in it."

"There will be no peace in Europe without the United States in the league," declared Representative Britten.

House 'Comes to No Resolution' in Debate on Aviation Reports

Disposition of Investigating Committee's Conflicting Findings True to Republican Leaders' Program.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—After four hours of discussion of American aviation efforts during the war, the House, sitting as a committee, reported today to the whole House that it "had come to no resolution" on the conflicting reports of the special investigating committee made after prolonged inquiry into the air program and its results.

The disposition made was true to the program of Republican leaders. Their spokesmen during the debate declared the only purpose was to make known the facts of the wartime aviation "failure."

Democratic speakers pictured American aviation efforts as a "success" that gave the allies predominance of the air. Such "mistakes" as were admitted by these speakers were said to be only what were to be expected in so novel and gigantic an enterprise.

Reprsentative Frear, Wisconsin, and Magee, New York, Republicans, of the Investigating Committee, led the attack on War Department and aviation officials, sharply arraigning them for acts and policies in regard to aviation during the war.

Representative Lea, California, the Democratic committeeman, captained the Democratic defense, supported by Representative Flood, Democrat, Virginia.

A clash betwen Chairman Frear and Representative Garrett, Democrat, Tennessee, a minority member of the committee, was narrowly averted. Frear charged Garrett with making false statements concerning him yesterday in the House, and the Tennessee member started towards Frear. Several Democrats blocked the way and Garrett then asked that Frear's charges be reported to the House. After the report was made, Frear said he desired to "absolve Mr. Garrett from making such statements."

The commiteemen, dividing on political lines, agreed on but one thing—that the United States spent more than one billion dollars on the wartime aviation program.

Censure for the Chiefs.

Names of several men prominent in the air program during the war, notably Secretary Baker and John D. Ryan, former director of the air service, were brought into the discussion. Both censure and commendation of these men and others was expressed in the two committee reports.

Representative Magee, Republican, New York, said that not one American "built battle plane or purely bombing plane was produced during the war from the expenditure of more than a billion dollars for aircraft.

"The Liberty motor," he said, "was the only achievment of merit of the American air service in the United States.

Criticism of the airplane lumber production in the Pacific Northwest was made.

"Those placed in authority in the Northwest by the War Department," he said, "not only had no experience in the lumber business, but they were arrogant, autocratic and operated wholly regardless of law and authority.

The employment of 30,000 soldiers, including officers, was attacked by Magee, who asserted the payment to them of wages of $3 to $8 a day was "in defiant violation of law. The Siems-Carey-Kerbaugh corporation was actually paid by the War Department a seven per cent commission on civilian wages paid to soldiers working for sub-contractors in the construction of the lake crescent railroad, in excess of the compensation fixed by the Congress."

Representative Lea, discussing the majority report, said that the criticisms made by Republican committeemen were "absurd contention and groundless conclusions." Answering Representative Magee, of New York, as to the net results of America's effort in aviation during the war, he declared that the Republican member's statement of planes sent to the front was but a fraction of the truth.

"The 213 machines at the front declared by the majority report to represent the American production," declared Mr. Lea, "represent only one seventy-ninth part of the number of machines owned by America during the war.

"America had 213 American built planes on the front the day of the armistice, but they were only part of 528 American built planes available at the front on that day. She had 1620 service planes available for use at the front when the armistice was signed. Four hundred and seventeen American built planes went over the German battle lines."

Led to Domination of Air.

"This is the first investigation that found nothing but faults," continued Mr. Lea, referring to various inquiries into the aircraft program conducted during and since the war. "The American aircraft effort made possible the maintenance of allied aircraft at the front, and finally led to allied predominance by over 100 per cent."

Mr. Lea declared that the allies, who paid two-thirds of the airplane lumber bill "commended the American production in complimentary terms."

"The attempt of the majority," he said, "to pick out a few heads of aircraft agencies and hold them responsible for disappointments in the American program is unwarranted by facts and an absurd injustice. Insofar as we failed to accomplish in military aviation all that we could intelligently expect, the reason is plain as the sun in the sky. It was inexperience and lack of preparation."

"Notorious Death Traps.'

"Those in charge of airplane production," Representative Frear declared, "say they bought 5000 planes from France and other countries, but 2000 of these were obsolete."

The only American-built machines to reach the front, he added, "were notorious death traps." He asserted that $50,000,000 was wasted on the production of De Haviland fours, which, he added, were condemned by every witness before the committee "as not fit for fighting purposes."

"In spruce production," continued Mr. Frear, "Secretary Baker ignored all the loggers and lumbermen on the coast and selected Colonel Disque, a warden of the Michigan penitentiary and former captain in the army, who knew nothing about lumbering. Colonel Disque tried to learn the business and surrounded himself with 30,000 soldiers who were largely clerks, lawyers and doctors farmed out on cost plus contractor's logging railroads in Washington and Oregon."

OUTLOOK GLOOMY, BUT NEGOTIATIONS ON TREATY GO ON

Glass, Democrat, Virginia, recently had talked with Mr. Wilson who, on that occasion, they said, made clear his views on Article 10. Later in the day, however, Senator Glass denied on the Senate floor that he had gone to the White House as an emissary of Democratic Senators, while many of his colleagues asserted privately that they had not received from him any report that they considered final or definite as to what the President would accept as a compromise.

Glass Silent on Interview.

Senator Glass declined to say publicly what the President had told him regarding the treaty, but other Senators are understood, from their knowledge of the conference, to have gained the impression that Mr. Wilson would not pocket the treaty if it were ratified with the Article 10 reservation, drawn up but never agreed to in the bipartisan conference. That reservation has been declared unacceptable to the Republican leaders, however, and it is asserted that the proposal on which the President's judgment was desired had been brought forward since he saw Senator Glass.

In the negotiations as they now stand, still other elements are involved, and the Democratic Senators are divided in their opinions as to whether language now under consideration would be found acceptable at the White House. A number of conferences among the Democratic leaders were arranged for tonight and tomorrow and, although no one took an optimistic view of the prospect, some Senators on both sides of the chamber thought there still was a chance of ratification.

The reservation before the Senate when it adjourned tonight relates to the authority of the league over armaments. A substitute worked out in the bipartisan conference was presented by Senator New of Indiana, one of the Republican conferees, but was not brought to a vote.

SURPLUS FLOUR MAY BE SENT TO EUROPE

House Committee Reports Resolution Authorizing Grain Corporation to Ship 5,000,000 Barrels

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—European relief legislation took on new shape in the House today. The Rules Committee sent back to the Ways and Means Committee the bill allowing use of $50,000,000 by the United States Grain Corporation for the purpose, and the latter committee immediately recommended a resolution permitting 5,000,000 surplus barrels of flour held by the corporation to be sent to Europe. At $10.75 per barrel, the price named by Julius Barnes, head of the corporation, this flour is worth $53,750,000.

Barnes testified to the Rules Committee that a resolution would help secure the co-operation of other countries in helping Europe. Great Britain has agreed to furnish 50 per cent of what this country provides.

Chairman Fordney of the Ways and Means Committee, introduced the following resolution from the Ways and Means Committee:

"That, for the participation of the Government of the United States in the furnishing of foodstuffs to populations of Europe and countries contiguous thereto suffering for the want of food, the United States Grain Corporation is hereby authorized, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to sell or dispose of flour now in its possession, not to exceed 5,000,000 barrels, for cash or on credit, at such prices and on such terms or conditions as may be necessary to carry out the purpose of this act, and to relieve populations in the countries of Europe or countries contiguous thereto suffering for the want of food.

"Provided, that an audited, itemized report of the receipts and expenditures of the United States Grain Corporation for the purposes, authorized by this act, shall be submitted to Congress not later than the first Monday in December, 1920."

HOOVER SUGGESTED GENERAL INQUIRY IN CONDUCT OF WAR

Proposed in Letter to E. M. House, Year Ago, That President Act to Forestall Prejudiced Investigations.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Accredited American correspondents to the Paris peace conference have for nearly a year had personal knowledge of the existence of a remarkable letter written on March 11, 1919, by Herbert Hoover, to E. M. House. In addition, its contents are widely known in political circles upon this side of the Atlantic, as copies were sent at the time of its writing to heads of various Government departments in Washington from Paris to make certain that they would have definite knowledge of the proposed plan. The letter is self-explanatory. It follows:

"PARIS, March 11, 1919.

"Col. E. M. House, American Commission to Negotiate Peace, Paris.

"My dear Col House:

"While you are thinking of many other problems, I want to make a suggestion as to matters in Washington. In the present political situation in the United States, Congress will undoubtedly on reconvening devote itself very largely to investigation of conduct of the war. These investigations will be a mixture of demagoguery, politics and sincerity of desire to maintain a high standard of administration. Owing to the nature of congressional investigations, by which they are so often colored with prejudice, political trickery and self-advertising, they are unlikely to reach the truth. They are more likely to besmirch the reputation of the American people to the whole world.

"The war officials of the Government will have handled some $40,000,000,000 in a period of two years. They have mobilized an entire nation, not only for military action, but for industrial and social concentration, and to my positive knowledge with a freedom from dishonesty and with an efficiency not equaled by another country engaged in this war.

"Mistakes Have Been Made."

"Mistakes have no doubt been made which it would be desirable to have illuminated for the benefit to future generations. On the other hand, the successes of a vast number of financial, economic, social and military measures should be likewise properly illuminated. My suggestion is, to secure these ends, the President should appoint a tribunal, composed of independent men of preeminent character who have themselves been free from administrative work during the war, who will sit as a commission to investigate the conduct of the war; that this commission should be appointed at once in order that it may be able to summon before it the officials who will be available for some time, to take such action now while events are fresh in the public mind, while people who have complaints and knowledge may come forward.

"Taking my own department, as an example, every man in it will be glad to have an entire public illumination at the hands of some just and independent body that we may be adjudged wrong where wrong has been done, that we may be adjudged right where success has been attained, that we may be freed from perpetually recurrent scandal and traduction at the hands of demagogues by having some honorable acquittance and discharge of our case. I am sure every other department and bureau in the Government would welcome such an inquiry and I am sure it would be of lasting benefit to the nation and would tend greatly to offset that profound American ambition to advertise our weaknesses to the world without any appreciation of our strength.

"Faithfully yours,

"HERBERT HOOVER."

DEMOCRATS FROM MADISON TO FIGHT REED AS DELEGATE

County Convention Instructs Delegates to State Meeting to Vote Against Senator's Selection.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FREDERICKTOWN, Mo., March 6.—The Madison County Democratic convention today unanimously instructed its delegates to the State convention to vote against the selection of Senator James A. Reed as delegate to the National convention in San Francisco. The delegates were instructed to support Charles M. Hay of St. Louis for delegate-at-large.

Resolutions adopted by the convention excoriated Reed in the following language: "Be it resolved, that we are grieved and humiliated beyond expression at the opposition of our senior Senator, James A. Reed, to the ratification of the peace treaty and the covenant; that we utterly condemn his persistent efforts in the Senate to stir up and revive pre-war racial and national jealousies and hatreds and to alienate from this nation the respect and confidence of the allied nations and all the nations of the earth who regard this nation and our President as the champion of free Democratic free Government everywhere.

"We also condemn his persistent, spiteful and unbridled abuses and misrepresentations of the President and recognized leaders of our party; and,

"Be it further resolved, that since we regard our senior Senator as being entirely out of harmony with the spirit and sentiment of an overwhelming majority of the Democrats of this commonwealth and of the nation at large, we strongly oppose his election by the State convention as a delegate to the National convention to be held in San Francisco in June and we hereby instruct our delegates to vote against him as such."

In taking this stand, the convention ignored the request of State Chairman Neale, who, following the action of the first county convention in Jasper County of instructing against Reed, requested that other conventions refrain from opposing Reed's selection for the National convention and be content with the State convention binding him with instructions favorable to the league of nations.

The resolutions "unreservedly" indorsed the President's efforts in framing the league of nations and commended his "noble and earnest" fight for ratification.

Two women were named in the delegation to the State convention.

Turkish Troops in Many Clashes With British and French.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 1.—British forces in the Mesopotamian oil regions, particularly near Kerkuk and Mosul, have been engaged in constant skirmishes with tribesmen and Turkish irregulars, the opposition of these forces being similar to that encountered by the French at Aintab, Marash and other points in Cilicia.

Recognition of the Armenian republic without defining its boundaries is said to have undoubtedly embittered the turks in Cilicia. The Armenians there claim that Adana and all Cilicia must be incorporated in the new republic, as they belonged to ancient Armenia. It is said that French forces of occupation have enlisted many Armenians, thus fanning the ancient racial and religious hatred between the Armenians and Turks and linking it with the actual state of war existing between Turkish and French units. It also affords a screen for Armenian massacres in the vicinity of Marash, it is declared.

Senate Again Asks President for Copy of Gen. Harbord's Report.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The Senate today renewed its request to President Wilson that it be furnished a copy of the report of the commission under Major-General Harbord which recently made an investigation of the situation in Armenia and nearby countries.

The resolution of request was offered by Senator Wadsworth, Republican, New York, who was the author of a similar measure last December, and it was adopted without discussion.

Resolution in Senate Urges Independence for Armenia.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Restoration of Armenia's political independence by the allied nations is urged in a resolution introduced today by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, and referred to the Foreign Relations Committee.

The resolution suggests that military measures be taken to expel armed Turks and Kurds from Armenia and to protect the natives from recurrence of the continued massacres.

Senator King said the policy of the Allied Powers was to leave the Armenian race facing extinction.

CHURCH WILL BEGIN DIAMOND JUBILEE CELEBRATION TODAY

Program of North Presbyterian Will Continue Each Sunday Until Easter.

The North Presbyterian Church, St. Louis and Warne avenue, will begin today the celebration of its diamond jubilee, with an elaborate and extended program, continuing Sunday by Sunday until Easter, when it is planned to receive new members, one for each year of the church's life.

The program today will consist of a sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. James Hardin Smith, on "The Lines Are Fallen to Me in Pleasant Places," the service marking the third anniversary of his connection with the church. The music at the evening service will be given by a double quartet.

Next Sunday Mrs. Bessa Carleton, known as "Mother" Carleton, who has sung to thousands of soldiers, now connected with Jefferson Barracks, will sing at the evening service.

On March 31 the St. David's Welsh Male Chorus of Illinois, a musical aggregation of 50 voices, will give a musical program at the evening service.

On the church's anniversary day, March 27, the Rev. Dr. Ezra Allen Van Nuys of Chicago, assistant secretary of men's work of the Presbyterian Church, will preach.

Dr. Smith will preach at the Easter morning service.

WOMAN IS NAMED ASSISTANT ATTORNEY OF LEGAL AID BUREAU

Selection of Miss Cleta Smith Disposes of Situation Created by Women's Organizations.

Miss Cleta Smith of 3860 Hartford street, who has been practicing law for six years, yesterday was appointed assistant attorney of the City Legal Aid Bureau by Matthew Conklin, its hear, and the appointment was confirmed by Director of Public Welfare Schmoll.

This disposes of a situation created when members of women's organizations sought the appointment of Mrs. Fannie Bonner Price. It would have been necessary to reduce the qualifications from three years' practice, as at present, to one year, for Mrs. Price to qualify, and such a bill was introduced, but abandoned. It also was proposed to increase the salary from $125 a month to $2000 a year, which also was abandoned.

A woman was wanted for the position because a majority of the applicants for aid are women, and many of the complaints are of a domestic nature.

COMPLETE BARROOM FOUND IN BASEMENT OF WOMAN'S HOME

Liquors Valued at $80,000 Unearthed by U. S. Agents in Cleveland.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, March 6.—A complete barroom, with large quantities of liquor in barrels and cases, and an underground passage leading to whisky, beer and cordials, valued at approximately $80,000, were unearthed by police and Federal agents in an early morning raid at the home of Mrs. Julia Yurick, according to Fred Counts, Federal Prohibition Enforcement Commissioner.

Mrs. Yurick when arraigned before United States Commissioner Mallat on the charge of selling liquor, pleaded not guilty and was held in $3500 bail.

She said all the liquor found in her basement was left from her saloon and denied selling any of it.

WADE RESIGNS AS RECEIVER OF MISSOURI & N. ARKANSAS

Special to the Post-Dispatch

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 6.—Festus J. Wade of St. Louis, receiver for the Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad, has resigned and Charles A. Phelan, manager of the road under Wade's receivership, has been appointed to succeed him.

This became known here today, when a conference between State officials and Federal Judge Trieber was held to decide on the destinies of the 300-mile railroad. It was brought out that the road lost $600,000 during Government control and that interest due on receivers' notes would bring the total to $800,000. Unless increased rates are granted, it was said, the railroad may be forced to suspend. The road runs from Seligman, Mo., to Helena, Ark., most of its mileage being in Arkansas.

Many Passengers Aboard Ship—East Hit by Worst Storm in Many Years.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 6.—The Eastern Shore of Maryland virtually has been isolated tonight by the worst storm in many years. The steamer Cambridge is marooned in the ice off Claiborne, en route to Baltimore, with many passengers. All bay shipping is delayed and small boats have been driven to harbors. Railroad traffic on the Eastern Shore is reported hampered greatly by fallen wires and snowdrifts.

Severe Storms in East; Much Damage Caused.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Floods followed by a wild gale and snow, contributed to make the storm of last night and today disastrous in many sections of the country.

Villages on Long Island were marooned by water. Telegraph wires were down and the cellars or first floors of hundreds of houses were flooded.

Central New York and New England were buried under two feet of snow, demoralizing the railroad service, and trains were hours late.

A 72-mile gale in this city glazed the streets with ice, smashed windows, tore down signs and caused many minor accidents.

Four vessels were reported aground at points along the coast, and the high radio station at Sayville was put out of commission.

In New York, a terrific rainstorm, which, with melting snow, flooded hundreds of cellars in the outlying sections, gave way to sleet that turned every street into a glaze of ice, and finally to blinding snow—all with a straight drop in temperature of 30 degrees.

Street car traffic was demoralized early. Trains on all the roads were from one to eight hours late.

The White Star line Cedric on moving out today had something go wrong with her steering gear. The high wind caught her, and it took a number of tugs an hour to run her safely back into dock. Her passengers went ashort until Monday.

As the Royal George was making her dock she bumped into the Imperator, causing slight damage. The Cunard liner Carmania, scheduled to sail for Liverpool at noon, was held at her pier until tonight on account of the wind. Among those on her were George J. Gould and Mrs. Gould and Col. William J. Donovan.

Launching of Transport "Marne" Postponed Because of Storm.

Secretary of War Baker was present, and Mrs. Baker was to have been sponsor. Both will be here Monday, when the launching will take place.

SIXTH HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER QUITS TO ENTER BUSINESS

H. A. Cochran of Commercial Department of Cleveland to Go With Auto Concern.

SALARY SITUATION GIVEN AS CAUSE

Withers' Proposed Schedule of Increases Opposed by 1086 First Assistant Grade Teachers.

The resignation of Harry A. Cochran, 3832 Pennsylvania avenue, as a teacher in the commercial department at Cleveland High School, which was announced yesterday, like those of five other high school teachers and two St. Louis public school educators of higher rank, which have been tendered since Jan. 1, was attributed to the unfavorable salary situation in the public schools here. He quit to accept a position with an automobile concern in Pittsburg.

The other high school teachers whose resignations have called attention of the school authorities to the need for more adequate salaries, were E. V. D. Wallace, president of the High School Teachers' Association, who resigned last week as head assistant to the principal at Cleveland High School, to engage in commercial work; Miss Kathlyn Joyce, who taught stenography and typewriting at Central High School; H. A. Johnson, who was a teacher of mechanical drawing at Yeatman High School, and C. W. Seipp, formerly a teacher in the commercial department at Yeatman High School.

Knox to Issue Statement.

Assistant Superintendent of Instruction George Platt Knox, in resigning last week to take up religious educational work in Chicago, said that before he leaves St. Louis he will give out a public statement regarding the inadequacy of teachers' salaries here. Chester B. Curtis resigned as principal of Central High School to take a more remunerative position with a department store.

Cochran, who was in his second year as a first assistant at Cleveland High School, received $2050, not including the two bonuses totaling $188 applied by the board to this year's payroll of the teachers' corps.

In commenting upon his resignation he told other teachers that he could not afford to remain in the schools here pending adjustment of the teachers' salary schedule to meet economic conditions. The process of rearranging the payroll was too slow, he said, and the increases recommended by Supt. Withers for high school teachers were decidedly inadequate.

Oppose Labor Affiliation.

In reference to the expressed intention of the members of the High School Teachers' Association to vote this week on a proposal to affiliate with the Central Trades and Labor Union, President McDonald of the Board of Education and Supt. Withers said that they were opposed to the teachers aligning themselves with any labor organization.

The High School Teachers' Association, through its affiliation with the American Federation of Teachers' Association, is a branch of the American Federation of Labor, and has been urged by labor leaders to join the Central Trades and Labor Union as the most effective means of obtaining the salary increases desired. The constitution of the High School Teachers' Association provides that a two-thirds vote shall be necessary to carry a proposition to affiliate with an organized labor body.

A demand for a maximum of $2000 a year, after six years of service, was made on behalf of the 1086 grade teachers, ranking as second assistants, instead of the $1700 maximum proposed by Supt. Withers, at a meeting of the Grade Teachers' Association in the auditorium of Central High School Friday evening.

Will Appeal to Board.

It was pointed out that the higher rate of school tax authorized at the special election last November was represented to the voters as being primarily for the financial benefit of the grade teachers, and the second assistants, representing the largest percentage of that class of teachers, believed they should be dealt with liberally.

Resolutions asking for a revision of the Withers schedule will be presented to the Board of Education for its consideration at Tuesday night's meeting.

The Grade Teachers' Association will meet in the auditorium at Central High School, Grand and Finney avenues, tomorrow, at 8 p. m.

FORMER GOV. COMER NAMED U. S. SENATOR FROM ALABAMA

He Will Serve Until a Successor to John H. Bankhead Is Chosen in Special Election.

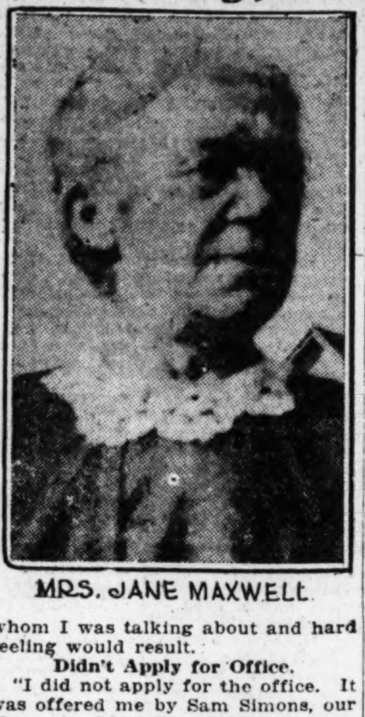
By the Associated Press.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 6.—Braxton Bragg Comer of Birmingham, former Governor of Alabama, last night was named United States Senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator John H. Bankhead.

He will serve until a successor to Senator Bankhead has been elected in a special election.

Smiling 'Grandma,' 62, Is Town Marshal at Percy, Ill.

Mrs. Jane Maxwell, Who Enforces Law Armed Only With Star, Says She Can Make Arrests, but Dislikes to Do So.



MRS. JANE MAXWELL

The statutes of the State of Illinois and the ordinances of the village of Percy, Randolph County, Ill., are being enforced by Mrs. Jane Maxwell, better known as "Grandma," who goes about armed only with a bright star, inscribed "Special Police," and an engaging smile. She is 62 years old.

Percy is a mining town of about 1400 inhabitants, 67 miles southeast of St. Louis on the Mobile & Ohio railroad. Nearly everybody works in the mines, including the Mayor and the six Aldermen.

In the month that she has been Marshal, Mrs. Maxwell has had little to do except quarantine influenza patients, see that the quarantines are kept, and make out and turn over to the local justice of the peace reports on the cases. All police business is under her jurisdiction, however, and she says that she is ready and willing to meet any emergency that may arise. "I do not say that I could handle every case, alone," she said yesterday, "but I have the power to deputize, and I am sure I can handle the situations satisfactorily."

Shooting Brawls Once Frequent.

Mrs. Maxwell has lived at Percy since she was 17 years old, and has always taken a prominent part in forward movements of the town. Four years ago, Percy was a typical mining town. Shooting brawls and fights were frequent, saloons and gambling houses flourished and tramps and loafers hung around the street corners. Today Percy is a quiet little town, where nearly all the residents own their homes. The saloons are gone, the peace is seldom disturbed; there are no gambling houses, and most of the residents go to church.

Mrs. Maxwell is a little above medium height. Her hair is brown, tinged with gray, and she has mild blue eyes. When she talks she continually smiles.

"I have not made any arrests," she said yesterday, "but there have been several cases in which I might have made some. I do not like to make an arrest unless I have to. I would rather settle things peaceably. I want the people I deal with to see the thing in the right light. If I use force, I gain my end, of course. But, if I bring about a peaceable settlement, I gain my end, and also do the offender some good."

She said she would rather not mention the cases referred to "Everyone knows everybody else, in a small town, like this," she said, "and if I said anything about these cases, everybody would know just whom I was talking about and hard feeling would result.

Didn't Apply for Office.

"I did not apply for the office. It was offered me by Sam Simons, our Mayor, and the Board of Aldermen. At first, I thought they were joking. When I learned that they meant it, however, I saw no reason, why I should not accept. I am a widow, and while the remuneration is not extremely large, it is an acceptable increase in my income.

"I do not anticipate any trouble. More than half of the people in this town know me as "Grandma," and I know they are always ready to help me. Since I have been Marshal I have not seen a drunken man, nor a fight."

Asked if there were any Federal agents in the town, she replied, "Only the Postmaster, and I have quarantined him with influenza."

Residents of the town said Mrs Maxwell was offered the office because she had always worked for a cleaner and better town. They said that she was instrumental in having the town voted dry in 1915, and that after the saloons disappeared, the gambling houses and other establishments of vice followed. She is noted for her willingness to nurse the sick until they recover, regardless of the time required. The town has been made more orderly than ever before since she took office they said.

Mrs Maxwell lives with her son, Duncan, 36 years old, and her granddaughter, Lillian Butler, 18. "They know they have to behave now," she said, "with the Town Marshal in the house."

Thomas Leming, Mrs. Maxwell's father, who is 90 years old, lives at Percy with his second wife, who is 80. The couple were married eight years ago. In spite of his age, Leming is still very active, and walks to and from the stores every day. With the exception of a slight impairment of his hearing, he retains full possession of his faculties. He has lived in the town for 45 years.

WEBSTER GROVES VOTES SCHOOL BOND ISSUE

Junior High School Site to Be Purchased—Additions to Buildings Planned.

The $183,000 Webster Groves school bond issue was voted yesterday, carrying by a 12-to-1 majority of the 975 votes cast. The bonds will be on the market within two months in denominations of $1000 and $500, it is said, and the proposed work is expected to be well under way by next autumn. Options on a 250x180-foot site at Selma and Standish avenues for a junior high school, facing the present high school, have already been taken, and the site will be purchased as soon as the bond proceeds are available.

The site will cost $10,000. The high school will have additions costing $20,000, including finishing of the Webster Armory, adjoining, and $95,000 will be spent on finishing the Bristol School and $58,000 on the Avery School.

"It was the school children who put the election across," said Frank D. Beardslee, treasurer of the School Board. "For two weeks they have been campaigning, and despite the cold Saturday morning they were up before 7 a. m., meeting the St. Louis-bound trains and cars, asking the men to vote for the bond issue when they returned. They were out with boys as sandwich men and the girls in automobiles. There were drum corps, and from 7 to 8 a. m. the school bells rang at five-minute intervals. Each pupils has been speaking to two voters a day about the issue."

Another bond issue will be voted on next autumn, it is said. The present issue had been planned for $260,000, but because of a legal technicality could not. The money will be expended under the direction of William B. Ittner, St. Louis school architect, who has designed the additions for the Webster Groves schools, and who made a survey of the city's school needs.

Miss Amelia C. Fruchte, for 50 years a public school teacher, who died Jan. 23, left an estate consisting of personal property amounting to $6826.91. She had Liberty bonds with a value of $2876.75, cash $2450.16 and life insurance for $1500.

The residue of the estate was bequeathed to Miss Eva Ella Fruchte, 5589 Bartmer avenue, a niece.

SAYS WHISKY THIEVES PUT HIM OUT OF AUTO

Expressman, Claiming Machine, Declares He Reported Loss in County Friday Night.

John Woods, proprietor of an express business at 1302 North Broadway, yesterday claimed the automobile which was used by the thieves who stole two barrels of whisky, valued at $2560, from the Government bonded warehouse at Valley Park, St. Louis County, Friday night.

Woods called at the Carr street police station at 3 p. m., and related that the night before three men hired him to drive them from Fourteenth and Cass avenue, to Grand avenue. He said that, when Grand avenue was reached, one of the men threatened him with a revolver, and told him to drive to the St. Charles rock road.

He said he obeyed the order, and that he continued out the rock road until a cemetery was reached. There, he said, the men ordered him to stop and get out, telling him not to worry, as they would leave the car when they were through with it.

The car was abandoned on the Meramec Bottom road, after shots fired by a watchman at the warehouse had punctured the gas tank and the cooling system of the machine. The whisky was left in the car.

The license tag, when compared with the records, showed that Woods was the owner of the car. At the time when Woods called at the Carr street station, policemen from headquarters were looking for him, to inquire about the car, and a man who was found driving another car belonging to Woods had been detained by the police, to be questioned. This fact was not known at the station, and Woods left the station after making the report.

When he was asked why he had not reported to the police sooner, Woods said he had made a report by telephone to the Sheriff of St. Louis County, and that he thought this was all he would need to do, as the car was taken from him in the county.

Deputy Sheriff Conrey, in charge of the Sheriff's office at Clayton last night, said there was no record of such a report in the office. It was thought that the report might have been made to a constable, who would not necessarily have forwarded it to the Sheriff's office.

CHIEF O'BRIEN LECTURES POLICE ON 'SAFETY FIRST'

Welfare of Children and Pedestrians Sought in Series of Addresses to Members of Force.

A campaign to impress on policemen the necessity of "Safety First," especially in guarding children and pedestrians, has been started by Chief of Police O'Brien with the aid of Barney Verheyen, secretary of the police Efficiency Bureau and an officer in the safety first council here.

Personal lectures by the Chief to the entire 1600 members of the Police Department are underway and will be continued until all have been warned and instructed.

The Carondelet, Wyoming and Soulard street policement were gathered at the Wyoming street station Friday and heard the first lecture by the Chief. Yesterday platoons from the Magnolia, Laclede and Dayton street districts were gathered at the Laclede avenue station for another lecture. Monday the Deer, Newstead avenue and Page boulevard, will gather at the Deer street station. The lectures are arranged among the platoons either at the beginning or end of a tour of duty so that none of the men are taken off their beats for instruction.

Captains, lieutenants and sergeants gather with the patrolmen to hear the speakers.

The police are warned by the Chief to see that children do not roller skate in the streets, "hop" automobiles, wagons or street cars, play in the street, hang on behind automobiles on their bicycles, to see that they are protected at crossings and at all times to safeguard the pedestrian as far as possible.

Traffic rules are gone over and the proper handling of automobiles discussed. Secretary Verheyen furnishes the figures to show that in 1910, while there were 400,000 automobiles in the United States, two and one-third persons out of every 100,000 were killed. In 1917 he says there were 3,000,000 automobiles in the United States and nine and one-sixth persons out of every 100,000 were killed by automobiles. This year, he says, 9,000,000 automobiles and trucks will be in use.

Chief O'Brien tries to impress on their minds the importance of safeguarding the children and uses the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival at the Coliseum as a picture to draw on their minds the seriousness of this mission of watchfulness.

"Just picture those 12,000 tots enjoying themselves at Christmas tide," he said. "Then just picture in your mind that the life of a child, just like every one gathered around that big tree, will be snuffed out in the coming year—and on the streets of cities in these United States. For that is exactly what happens. Twelve thousand children are killed every year in accidents, automobiles, wagon, train or otherwise.

"Just picture the misery their deaths bring to the homes of their loved ones. Just take it home to yourselves. Pucture your own little ones in a dangerous place and then go out and do your full duty to the little ones in St. Louis."

COHEN GROCERY CO. SEEKS TO ENJOIN SUGAR LICENSE ACTION

Application for an Order Against Assistant Attorney-General Set for Hearing March 25.

Application for a restraining order forbidding Special Assistant Attorney General Higgs from proceeding further in an action begun Friday to revoke the license of the L. Cohen Grocery Co. to deal in sugar, was made by the company to Federal Judge Faris yesterday. The petition attacks the authority of Higgs.

In asking leave Friday to file an injunction suit, Chester H. Krum, attorney for the company, declared that the Lever act makes no provision for the President delegating enforcement powers to any agency.

Judge Faris said, at that time, that he had studied the Lever act and that in his opinion it was constitutional as a war measure. He said that the Supreme Court had ruled that the war still was legally in progress and that he would not open that question. He declared that he would not issue a temporary injunction, but that Krum might file an application for an injunction proceeding in equity. Hearing on the application for a restraining order was set for March 25.

WILL OF WOMAN, 79, UPHELD

Son Said Mrs. Marie Lampkemeir Could Not Read English.

A jury in Judge Hartmann's division of the Circuit Court yesterday afternoon returned a verdict sustaining the will of Mrs. Marie Lampkemeier, who died Aug. 27, 1918, at the age of 79 years. Suit to set aside the document had been instituted by her sons, Henry and George Lampkemeier, Henry having received a bequest of $1000 in trust and George $200.

The estate, estimated by the plaintiffs as being worth $30,000, was bequeathed by Mrs. Lampkemeier to another son, William, and her daughter, Elizabeth, who lived with her above her grocery store at 1404 Salisbury street. Mrs. Lampkemeir explained in her will that her daughter was more dependent upon her than the sons. The plaintiffs allege that Mrs. Lampkemeier, because of her age, did not realize what she was doing and that, although their mother did not read English the will was written in that language.

TWO MEN CAUGHT WHO ROBBED TWO WEST END HOMES

Pair, Taken on Suspicion, Admit Daylight Burglaries When Part of Loot Is Found in Their Rooms.

Two young men held last night at the Page boulevard police station admitted having committed two daylight burglaries in West End dwellings within the last two weeks. The police will try to learn whether other such robberies—some 20 have been reported within two weeks—can be traced to the pair.

The prisoners said they were Wade Callicott, 21 years old, of 1537 Olive street, and Earl Edgar, 24, of 1807 Olive street. The police say Callicott is under parole from the State Reformatory at Boonville, and that Edgar has served a workhouse term for burglary.

Stolen Goods in Their Rooms.

They were arrested at Westminster place and Sarah street, Friday afternoon, while they were seen surveying houses as if with a view to entering them. When their rooms were searched articles of jewelry and clothing were found. These included articles described in the reports of two robberies, and the owners identified the goods, after which the young men admitted having committed the robberies, the police say.

The articles identified were taken from the home of Miss Laura Conway, 3954 Lindell boulevard, which was entered February 21; and from the apartment of Herbert Jackson, in the Cumberland apartments, 4254 Olive street, which was robbed last Tuesday afternoon. The loss reported by Miss Conway amounted to $800, and that of Jackson to $300.

Sold Part of Loot.

Besides the articles recovered, the prisoners said they had sold other parts of the loot from the two places. They told of having sold in a poolroom, for $13, a fur-lined coat taken from the Conway residence, the value of which was given in the report as $250. A search was begun by the police for some of the articles described.

In Callicott's suit case the police found a sharp steel band 12 inches long and a half-inch wide, which might be slipped into the catch of a door, to open a door locked, but not secured with a bolt.

The police did not try to obtain further admissions from the prisoners last night preferring to wait for evidence.

WOMAN FINED $5 FOR DRIVING PAST STOPPED STREET CAR

Policeman Did Right in Arresting Mrs. A. G. Douglass, Judge Ittner Tells Her Husband.

Mrs. A. G. Douglass of 5206 Washington boulevard was fined $5 in Police Court yesterday on a charge of driving past a street car which had stopped for passengers at Delmar and Union boulevards at 9:30 a. m. Friday. The fine was stayed on payment of costs.

Douglass, who is president of the Douglass Loan and Investment Co., in a statement to the Court in his wife's behalf, said: "I think the policeman needlessly humiliated my wife by riding with her to a police station. I passed the same corner this morning and there was a very courteous policeman who asked automobilists not to pass street cars which had stopped."

"The policeman who arrested your wife did right," said Judge Ittner, "and the policeman on that corner this morning was not compelled to courteously ask automobilists to to stop. They should be arrested if they do not stop."

1500 ENUMERATORS TO BEGIN SURVEY FOR CHURCHES TODAY

Canvassers Will Visit West End Homes to Gather Information About Families.

A church survey of the West End district will begin at 2 p. m. today, with 1500 men and women acting as enumerators and gathering information about individuals and families. The work is being done, in connection with other districts of the city, jointly by the Church Federation of St. Louis and the Interchurch World Movement.

Pastors of the 21 West End churches participating in the survey will devote a portion of their services today to a consideration of the importance of the move and details of the work. Lunches will be served to enumerators in many of the churches, and in some of them they will gather at supper, where reports of progress will be made.

EXHIBITION OF PAINTINGS TODAY

Display at Artists' Guild Open to Public.

An exhibition of paintings by Albert Bloch will be opened to the St. Louis public at 3 p. m. today at the Artists' Guild, Union near Enright avenue.

Bloch, for several years was art critic on a local newspaper. About 1908 he decided to abandon his writing and pursue a newer form of art, and with that end in view he left St. Louis for Munich. He remained abroad for more than 10 years painting and developing a style of art apart from the recently heralded cubism.

On Tuesday and Thursday Bloch will give readings from manuscript of an unfinished book. These two readings are open to the public and will be held in the Little Theater of the Artists' Guild.

ANSWER FILED IN SUIT FOR CONTROL OF BLANKE ESTATE

St. Louis Union Trust Co. Contends Trust Established for Property Valued at $800,000 Is Legal.

An answer was filed yesterday by the St. Louis Union Trust Co. in Circuit Judge Calhoun's court, in which it opposes ending its trust over the property of the late Mrs. Mary Jane Blanke, valued in excess of $800,000. The answer is to the suit of Mrs. Blanke's daughter, Mrs. Ida Mary Loud of 3219 Russell avenue, who seeks to have the trust terminated on the ground that the provision in the will creating it is in violation of the law prohibiting a perpetual trust.

Mrs. Loud is the only lawful heir of the testatrix and she asks that the entire estate be turned over to her without restriction of any kind.

Receives $20,000 a Year.

The will provides that Mrs. Loud is to receive $2000 a year from the income, or $4000 a year in the event of the death of her husband. The trustee, however, can use discretionary power in increasing the allowance, bearing in mind that the daughter is to live modestly and not extravagantly.

The filing of the answer discloses that the trustee has exercised such discretion and is now paying Mrs. Loud at the rate of $20,000 a year.

According to the will the income not needed for administration expenses, or for Mrs. Loud's allowance is to be applied on the principal. After the daughter's death the income is to be paid to her three children—Archibald C., Harold L. and August B. Loud. At the age of 35 years each is to get one-half of his share absolutely and at 40 the other half.

The trust also makes contingent provision for any child which may be born to Mrs. Loud after the death of her mother, creating similar limitations as to time as in the case of the children now living.

Theory of Mrs. Loud's Suit.

The clause in respect to children yet unborn is what makes the trust void, according to plaintiff's theory. It is pointed out that Mrs. Blanke could not lawfully continue a trust for a time longer than a life in being or 21 years thereafter.

In the answer the trustee contends the trust created by Mrs. Blanke is within the law. The answer states that the interest of each child of Mrs. Loud was determined and vested at the death of the grandmother and that the interest of any child which may be born to plaintiff after the death of her mother would be vested at Mrs. Loud's death. Furthermore, the answer recites, there has been no child born to the plaintiff since the death of her mother, and she is now 58 years old, the answer states.

Mrs. Blanke was the widow of J. August Blanke, a candy manufacturer. She died May 12, 1914.

SOLDAN HIGH PRINCIPAL FILES SUIT TO HAVE DEED SET ASIDE

J. R. Powell Alleges Purchasers of His Home Misrepresented Their Ability to Pay.

A suit was filed yesterday by John Rush Powell, principal of Soldan High School, and his wife, to set aside a deed signed by them May 2 last by which they conveyed their former home at 5467 Maple avenue to Dr. and Mrs. Samuel K. Nweeya. The consideration mentioned in the transaction was $13,000.

The Nweeyas, it is set forth, made a first payment of $175 and were to make another payment, amounting to $5000, when the interest of Mrs. Nweeya in the estate of her father was settled, which, it was expected, would be soon. Meantime the deed was to remain in escrow with the Title Guaranty Trust Co.

It is alleged by the plaintiffs that the defendants misrepresented their financial resources and their ability to fulfill the agreement, and that a substantial sum has not yet been paid.

The defendants occupy the property as their home and have subjected it to mechanic liens, to the damage of the plaintiffs, the petition also charges.

The court is asked in the first instance to cancel the deed and set aside the agreement. If it is found that this cannot be done legally, then the plaintiffs asked that a partition decree be entered and their interest in the property determined.

THREE FINED $500 EACH FOR SELLING WHISKY

Judge Faris Advises Downtown Saloon Man to Return to Italy if He Dislikes Law.

Joseph Marre, saloonkeeper at 617 St. Charles street; his bartender, Louis Solari, and Alex Moretta, saloonkeeper at Sarah street and Cook avenue, were fined $500 each in the Federal Court yesterday for selling whisky to prohibition enforcement officers. They had pleaded guilty.

Marre and his bartender were arrested Feb. 20, after Federal agents had purchased several drinks of whisky from them. Three bottles, labeled "champagne cider," found beneath the bar, and two one-gallon varnish tins, found in a back room at the saloon, were confiscated. The bottles contained whisky of 58 proof, and the varnish tins were filled with 106 proof whisky. Marre was charging 50 cents a drink from the bottles, which evidently were replenished with a dilution of the higher proof whisky.

When an attorney representing Marre and Solari asked for leniency, on the ground that the defendants had never before violated the law, Judge Faris replied that they apparently were not in accord with the prohibition law.

"I would advise you two men," the court said, "that if you do not like the laws of this country you had better return to Italy."

Moretta was charged with having sold five gallons of whisky to Federal agents.

GOVERNOR BLAMES KANSAS CITY PUBLIC FOR CRIME WAVE

Says After Conference That Attitude of People Destroys Morale, and Funds Are Inadequate.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 6.—Gov. Gardner today sent an open letter to the presidents of the Bar Association and the Chamber of Commerce in Kansas City, in which he defended the city police department and declared the attitude of the public and lack of funds were responsible for the crime wave there, which Kansas City newspapers have declared is unprecedented. The Governor's communication is the result of a crusade which has been waged by newspapers and civic organizations there, until the situation became so acute he felt compelled to visit Kansas City and call the heads of the city government into conference.

He found, he says, that the funds available for police protection were entirely inadequate and that the attitude of suspicion maintained by the public toward the police department was destructive of the morale. He points out that, although the area of Kansas City is equal to that of St. Louis, the former has 352 patrolmen, while St. Louis has 1246. Policemen in Kansas City, he says, work 12-hour shifts and if necessary to appear in court against prisoners, they do so on their own time, while in St. Louis the police work 8-hour shift, except in emergencies.

The Governor also compares the Kansas City police salaries of $1080 minimum and $1360 maximum with the $1200 minimum and $1500 maximum in St. Louis. Even the St. Louis salaries, he shows, are smaller than the average in six large cities which he names.

ALIMONY SUBJECT TO REVISION

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 6.—Alimony, like wages, is subject to revision on account of the high cost of living, the Kansas Supreme Court held today. It affirmed a decision of the Shawnee County District Court in which Mrs. Grace Nixon brought suit for an increase in alimony from her former husband, Ira Nixon. She pointed out that he was able to pay more alimony because he was receiving a larger salary than when she obtained the divorce.

JAMES HUTCHINSON, SUGAR BROKER, DIES

He Had Been Engaged in Same Business Here 54 Years—81 Years Old.

James Hutchinson, 81 years old, of 3809 Washington boulevard, who was said to have been the oldest sugar broker in the United States and, acording to sugar men, "the best salesman that ever walked Second street," died at his home Friday morning at 5:30 p. m., following a three weeks' illness from pneumonia. At the time of his death he was head of the firm of James Hutchinson and Sons, sugar brokers.

Hutchinson was born in Toronto, Canada, and came to St. Louis from New York in 1866. Since that time he had been engaged in the brokerage business and never handled any thing but sugar. He represented the Belcher Sugar Company until the time of its dissolution and was also the representative of the American Sugar Refining Company from the date of its organization until 1916. He sold the first bag of beet granulated sugar ever sold in this district and was largely responsible for the removal of the prejudice that existed against it at that time. Several years ago he made the largest sugar deal ever made in this district, acting as broker in a $450,000 deal.

He is survived by his three sons, George, William N., and James Hutchinson, who were asociated with him in business, and by three daughters, Mrs. J. B. Knox of Los Angeles, and Misses Gertrude and Eleanor Hutchinson. His wife died five years ago. The funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m., from the residence, with the Rev. Edward S. White, of the Church of the Holy Communion officiating. Interment will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

CORN FUTURES HAVE GOOD RISE IN WEEK

Heavy Consumption on Farms Factor in Advance—Shorts Take to Cover.

Reports of immense use of corn on farms have done much this week to force a lively ascent of the corn market. Compared with a week ago, corn quotations showed a net gain of 5¼c to 6½c, oats were up 2⅝c to 3¾c@3⅞c, and provisions 25c to 82c.

Announcement from authoritative sources that farm consumption of corn between Nov. 1 and March 1 was the heaviest on record took a majority of traders by surprise, and proved more than an offset for estimates of large reserves of corn in the hands of growers and for assertions that the return of railroads to individual ownership would mean a better distribution of cars. Unfavorable prospects for winter wheat intensified bullish sentiment, and so, too, did a sudden big upturn in sterling exchange together with talk of credit relief for Germany based on security to take precedence of all other liens. At this juncture and during a blizzard scare, nearly all deliveries of corn reached the highest prices yet this season. Then profit-taking by holders caused something of a reaction.

A sharp falling off in the visible supply total gave independent strength to oats.

Provisions sympathized with the upturns in grain, notwithstanding big surplus stocks.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Cash corn in the market here yesterday was strong and 1c to 3c higher.

Spot oats were unchanged to ½c lower, with offerings fair.

No. 2 red winter wheat, $2.55@2.57; No. 4 hard winter, $1.57; No. 3 corn, $1.54; No. 4, $1.51@1.52; No. 2 yellow, $1.58; No. 3 yellow, $1.56; No. 4 yellow, $1.52@1.54; No. 5 yellow, $1.50@1.54; No. 6 yellow, $1.46; No. 2 white, $1.58; No. 3 white, $1.56; No. 4 white, $1.52; No. 2 white oats, 92c; No. 3 white, 91@92c; No. 4 white, 90½@91c.

SHARP NEW UPTURNS IN CORN ON CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, March 6.—Sharp new upturns in the value of corn took place today largely as a result of proposed huge flour sales to Europe on credit. The market closed strong, 2¼c to 3⅝c net higher, with May $1.44½ to $1.44¾ and July $1.35⅛ to $1.38½. Oats gained ½c to 1¼c. In provisions the outcome was a setback of 7½c to 35c.

All deliveries of corn except May rose to the topmost figures yet this season. May went to the highest point since last August. Commission houses were persistent buyers, and there was no important selling other than from longs who were taking profits. The fact that receipts here totaled only 100 cars gave additional impetus to demand based on the announcement by Federal Wheat Director Barnes that flour sales to Europe to the extent of $50,000,000 would soon begin, even though Congress did not authorize a loan to finance the sales. A drop of 5 points in sterling exchange led to a little hesitancy in the corn market at the opening, but then was quickly lost sight of.

Oats rose with corn, although lagging somewhat owing to canceling of export purchases that were replaced with Canadian oats at 5 cents discount.

Provisions lacked any aggressive support.

NEW YORK COTTON MARKET UNUSUALLY QUIET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, March 6.—Today's cotton market was unusually quiet even for a short session. Owing to the storm many brokers were absent, while orders from out of town were also much restricted and the business consisted chiefly of local and Liverpool trading, or the execution of overnight orders. Under these circumstances price movements were narrow and irregular, with mid-morning declines under realizing followed by rallies on covering. May contracts sold off from 35.96c to 35.64c or 18 points net lower, but closed at 35.82c, with the general market closing steady net 4 points higher to 15 points lower.

The market opened steady at an advance of 15 points to a decline of 5 points on Liverpool buying, while there also appeared to be some overnight buying orders here from the South. The better feeling as to foreign exchange and reiterated reports that Germany was seeking to obtain raw materials here probably led to some scattered buying but the demand was soon supplied, with March selling off from 39.20c to 39.05c and July from 33.10c to 32.80c during the middle of the morning under comparatively small offerings. October was relatively weak, declining to 30.05c or 23 points net lower, but sellers found no encouragement in the weather news and the general list steadied in the late trading on covering. Week-end reviews of the goods situation attracted very little comment, while expectations of continued full exports for the immediate future were promoted by the report of 291,371 bales on shipboard awaiting clearance compared with 143,510 last year.

CATTLE REGAIN ALL OF RECENT DECLINE

Receipts Lighter and Demand Brisk—Hogs Are on the Upturn.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	For Week.	Week Before.	Year Ago.
Cattle	15,882	19,244	22,866
Hogs	70,556	84,500	66,593
Sheep	7,364	4,686	6,181
Horses and m.	4,370	6,664	4,396

After sending cattle values a K. O. the preceding week, packers came back strong last week, putting on all they took off. A scant weekly supply brought them face to face with the most acute shortage of beef of the season. The advance in most cases amounted to $1, with many sales of kinds just suitable to an order selling even higher. A top of $13.50 was made with heavy Missouri cattle, while a spread of $10 to $12.50 caught the big end of arrivals.

Heifers and yearlings were also $1 higher, in spots even more. Packers were strong contenders, but were seconded by city butchers, who all appeared to be in need of yearlings. The offering moved with brisk action each session, selling from $8 to $11.50, with a few of the toppy grades going at $13.

Cow sales showed a 50c to $1 advance, with the most advance on the better kinds. Best heavy beef cows sold from $9.50 to $11, while plainer grades sold upwards from $7.50. The canner market continued weak, with the low end of the thin, shelly kinds down to $4.25 and a spread of $4.50 to $5.50 catching the big end of sales. Bulls were slightly changed. In spots they were 25c higher, but the market closed a trifle weak.

A better demand and smaller supply forced a 25c to 50c advance on stockers and feeders. The call came chiefly for lighter weight, suitable to go on rough feed and then turned on the grass this spring. Bulk of sales were from $8 to $10, with one load of weighty cattle making $10.75 early.

Vealers opened $1 lower than the preceding week's high time, but the close was about steady. The high mark was $17, with the late top falling to $16.25. Yearlings averaged about steady, selling from $5 to $6.50.

There was a marked advance in prices on hogs the past week, top closing at $16, which equals the highest level since January 27. Compared with a top of $15.45 the Saturday before, this price indicates an advance of 55c per cwt. On strong weights and heavies the advance was even more noticeable, amounting to $1 to $1.25 per cwt. Receipts, while moderate, were heavier than a year ago, totaling 70,556 head.

During the fore part of the week market was up and down in dribs of 5c to 10c, with shipping demand light and practically no inquiry from packers, but later the market was benefited by falling off in receipts. Bulk of the best light hogs sold from $15.65@15.90 on the close, with medium weights from $15.50@15.75, strong weights to heavies $15@15.50 and extremely heavies from $14.50@15. Strong weight pigs closed around 50c higher, with $19.75 taking the best. Light pigs and peewees, on the other hand, showed that much decline. Rough sows closed on a $13 basis, as against $12.75 a week ago.

Receipts at the sheep house the past week, while showing a marked increase, were largely consigned direct to the killers, being lambs shipped from other markets, where lower prices prevail. The result was that the big houses curtailed their purchases, causing a dull, listless tone and lower prices. Best lambs were quotable at $19.50 on the close, as against $20.25 a week ago. Fair to good lambs are worth $18.50@19; medium kinds $16.50@18, and culls, $8@16. Fat sheep were scarce and higher, reaching the highest point of the season. At this time best ewes are worth from $13.50@14, with canners from $4@6 and choppers and bucks from $7@9 per cwt.

Receipts of horses were fairly large and the market displayed a lower trend. Principal losses were on plain farm mares and geldings on the farm type, while medium priced horses and mares with some size have not declined to any marked extent and top farm mares and big horses have shown little change. The southern trade has a fairly good tone, although receipts have not been very heavy. Cavalry horses are still being bought for the United States Government.

Supply of mules was rather liberal and with only limited order trade was not especially brisk. In spots the market was very quiet, with a weaker undertone on the plainer kinds. Receipts ran largely to thin and rough haired mules and dealers think if the liberal runs of those continue there will be a lower trend. Conditions look fairly good for extra good mules and miners, according to dealers.

London Market Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, March 6.—If there were definite evidences of a changed attitude on the part of Germany toward all questions involving international principles and civilization itself, an international loan in favor of that country, such as is being discussed, would be possible. It was impossible at Versailles, in view of Germany's attitude, to make the terms of the treaty, including the reparations clauses other than severe and comprehensive.

But anyone with the slightest knowledge of the characteristics of the American and English people must know that the question of modifications lies largely in German hands. From the standpoint of politics, social wellbeing and of finance, world-wide good will is essential. Germany, in the present questions affecting justice and honor, has a great opportunity to secure a return of good will and actual assistance from other nations.

Continuance of your gold shipments to Argentina is not surprising, because you are doubtless liquidating French and possibly English indebtedness there, New York being a free gold market. France imports heavily from everywhere, including South America, with inconvenience to you and us.

Credit is obtained in London through sales of securities and by other means. Proceeds of these sales are partly used to command gold withdrawals.

Higher money rates, such as this market has been experiencing, are neutral at this time. Tax revenues are pouring in at the end of the fiscal year, while the Government is selling more freely its realisable assets left over from the war. These are largely bought by traders, who resell a considerable portion to impecunious countries of Europe on long credit.

Hence there is, first, a depletion of floating credits through the ingathering of taxes and the sale of assets, and, second, an increased demand on the banks to finance these exports. Even the "outside" banks themselves are borrowing from the Bank of England on Government securities.

Though this means a species of inflation, it increased the likelihood that the bank will raise its discount rate in self-defense. Much dearer money would ,indeed, be a certainty but for the fact that if the banks refuse to renew the treasury bills in wholesale fashion, the Government would be driven back to financing its needs through ways and means advances.

There is a possibility, according to views held here that there may be a fall in freights and commodities sooner than had been generally expected. Freights already look toppy, heavy and some developments in trade are strongly suggestive of liquidation, which might suggest a temporary but sharp fall in prices. Against these considerations, however, it is well to remember the magnitude of Europe's need of commodities.

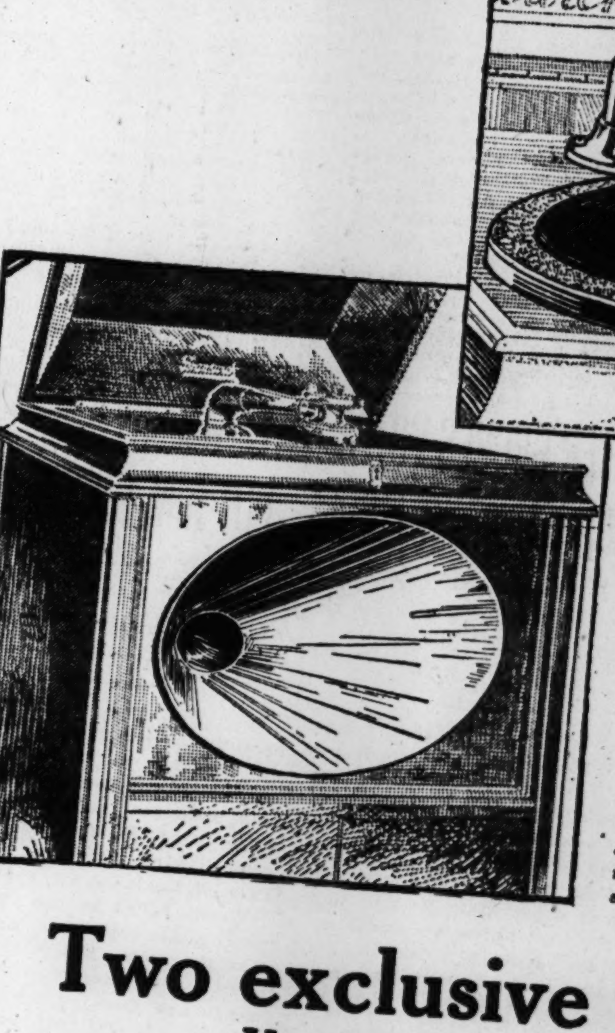
BRUNSWICK
Method of Reproduction

The Ultona, an exclusive all-record reproducer, is to be obtained only on The Brunswick. It plays all makes of records at their best. Not an attachment, but a built-in part.



The Brunswick Tone Amplifier, made entirely of moulded wood, like a fine violin. Gives added richness and fullness to tone. Does away with metallic sounds.

Two exclusive features

You can't buy elsewhere

THE reason so many critical music lovers prefer The Brunswick is not hard to find. It is all due to the Brunswick Method of Reproduction, two features of which are pictured above.

Tone is the chief reason for so many friends for Brunswick. And tone depends largely upon the reproducer and the tone amplifier.

In both of these features Brunswick has gone far in advance. The Ultona plays all records, not confining you to one make. And it plays each exactly as intended, with the proper diaphragm, the proper needle. Best of all, it is not a hastily contrived makeshift, but a basic invention.

The Brunswick Tone Amplifier is built entirely of wood. Not merely the part you see, but the throat between the reproducer and amplifier. The usual way is to make this throat of cast metal, a faulty way that brings metallic sounds.

You'll appreciate how far in advance The Brunswick is; you'll admire its superior tone, once you hear and compare.

Go today to a Brunswick dealer, let him play The Brunswick for you and help you make comparisons.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

EXCHANGE MART MAIN FACTOR IN STOCK TRADING

Appreciating Foreign Money Rates Infuses New Life Into Wall Street.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"The week's extraordinary rise in sterling exchange probably reflected consumption of plans by the British Government to establish credits at New York, in advance of the Anglo-French loan's maturity next autumn. That $500,000,000 loan could be taken up either through placing a new loan for the same amount or through establishing the necessary credits beforehand at New York. The one impracticable recourse, from the viewpoint of intelligent finance, would be to draw exchange on London for the payment.

"Now the placing of a new loan was possible but for two reasons inexpedient. The market for such loans was not favorable and outstanding European Government bonds, were selling at a heavy discount. The $250,000,000 United Kingdom 5½s placed here last November at 98 for the three-year issue, and 96¼ for the 10-year issue, have been quoted within the last few weeks at 90. But the Anglo-French loan was in a position of relative disadvantage, in the matter of convenience of redemption, first because it was not a collateral secured loan like the 5½s which mature in November, 1921, and outstanding notes. All this was a ity of the English and French Governments.

"This division of responsibility made the question of substitution or extension awkward. But on the other hand the joint liability would somewhat simplify the plan of exporting gold to New York as part of the plan for establishing the necessary credit. However handicapped the market may be in other days, the Bank of France at least holds 5,500,000,000 francs in gold; which is not like the great part of the Bank of England's gold, specifically, pledged, against outstanding notes. All this was a matter concerning the disordered mechanism of exchange rather than the credit of the Governments involved. But the uncertainties which surrounded the exchange market aspects of the operation may easily have played their part in the fall of sterling to $3.18. From one point of view, that great decline might be disordered as the markets conjectural forecast of the effect on rates, if the British Government had undertaken to draw bills on London for the money needed to pay off the Anglo-French 5 per cent on the same supposition, this week's violent recovery in sterling would reflect the market's sudden conviction that the loan would be taken up in other ways.

"But the sterling markets action, a month ago and the present week, cannot be wholly separated from the financial state of mind. It is not often that a financial and economic problem is discussed with such black pessimism as that which has lately been bestowed on the European situation. The nearest approach is Wall Street's feeling about the United States itself in January of 1895 or September of 1914. These recent counsels of despair did not limit themselves to public credit or international exchange; they covered the whole field of European industry, trade and politics.

"The man who opened his conversation by remarking that 'I know a pessimist is unpopular,' and who then proceeded to paint the picture in the darkest colors which his imagination could suggest, had become a familiar figure.

"Possibly the financial world in general and our own market in particular are now beginning to emerge from that sort of hysteria. When they have got fairly away from it, they will probably pay more attention to the genuine economic recuperation which has been quietly going on in Western Europe; to the distinct turn to practical sense in the allied premiers attiture towards Germany's finances, and to the fact that the hard winter (which was to test Europe's capacity to survive) is now ending without catastrophe and with evidence that political conservatism is returning both in Europe and America."

New York Curb Market.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Trading on the Broad Street Curb was highly irregular all through the week, with market movements of a confused character, there being an absence of uniformity, and stocks in various groups moved in different directions at the same time. Some of the motor issues were extremely weak, and while General Motors new stock, which was transferred to the exchange yesterday, was in demand, ranging from 25 to 23½. Willys Corporation sold at 24 to 19. Some new issues appeared, among them Cuba Cane Sugar stock, which was traded in when issued at prices ranging from 42½ to 39, and American Radiator when issued was traded in at 80 to 78. Most importance was attached to General Asphalt, which after selling at 79 moved up to 89½. The shipping stocks were strong late in the week, New York Shipbuilding selling at 37 to 45 and Todd Shipbuilding being traded in at 160 to 163. Submarine Boat advanced from 13 to 17.

Heavy trading was noted during the week in the oil stocks which developed strength in the last few days. One of the prominent features was Gilliland, which ranged from 40 to 44. Houston Oil advanced from 95 to 110 and International Petroleum moved up from 67 to 74, followed by a reaction to 71. Simms ranged from 35 to 38, but later reacted to 36¼. White Oil was steadily bought, ranging from 28½ to 30¼. Merritt Oil sold at 17¾ to 19½. Superior Oil was influenced by the expectation that it will soon be listed on the exchange and rose from 13¼ to 19¼. Cosden and Company new stock sold at 40. The old stock ranged from 8 to 8¾.

Following is a list of the day's high, low and closing prices for the most active stocks dealt in on the Broad Street Curb:

Foreign Exchange.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Intense confusion prevailed in the market for sterling exchange this morning before actual transactions were made, the market being full of offerings ranging from 3.63 to 3.60 for demand and the first sale was made at 3.60. A stronger tone quickly followed and another sharp upturn occurred in the early forenoon. Continental exchange was unsettled by the opening loss of 5 cents in sterling and material declines were sustained in French and Italian rates. Stockholm showed a firmer tone, rallying from the low levels recorded in the late trading yesterday.

Today's closing rates of exchange on all the principal foreign markets were as follows:

Sterling demand, 3.61; sterling cables, 3.62¼; bankers' 60 days, 3.57; bankers' 90 days, 3.56; commercial 60 days, 3.56; commercial, 90 days, 3.55; France checks, 13.81; France cables, 13.79; Belgium checks, 13.17; Belgium cables, 13.15; Germany checks, 1.04; Germany cables, 1.05; Austria checks, .40; Austria cables, .42; Holland checks, 37¼; Holland cables, 37⅜; Italy checks, 18.02; Italy cables, 18; Swiss checks, 5.92; Swiss cables, 5.90; Stockholm kroner checks, 19.60; Stockholm kroner cables, 19.75; Christiania kroner checks, 17.60; Christiania kroner cables, 17.75; Copenhagen kroner checks, 15.90; Copenhagen kroner cables, 16.05; Spain checks, 17.80; Spain cables, 17.90; Buenos Aires spot, 101.70; Canada dollars, 88.

STORM CURTAILS OPERATIONS ON NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Business on the Stock Exchange today dwindled to meager proportions, trading being delayed half an hour because of the storm. Wire communication was much interrupted and helped to curtail the operations of the brief session, but the tone turned firm soon after the heavy opening, with moderate strength at the close.

There was little inquiry for rails, steels and equipments moved narrowly, with nominal changes at the end. The only backward issues were oils, but short covering repaired most losses in that division. Sales amounted to 235,000 shares.

Motor shares and their specialties provided most of the diversion at extreme gains of 2 to 7¼ points, but metals of the secondary groups, also food shares and specialties of the class represented by Famous Players and Loew's, were fairly active, advancing 1 to 5 points.

Sterling.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Demand sterling opened today at $3.60¼ or 5c below yesterday's close.

FOREIGN BONDS

Those who are "thinking" of making investments in foreign securities will regret not having "acted" before another six months have elapsed. All of the latest news from Europe tends to show that the League of Nations is trying to adopt sane business policies in working out the European situation—along the line of justice and sound economics.

Great strides are being made toward a solution of the German situation, and it is our opinion that the solution of the Russian problem will be well under way before the close of 1920. When those two countries again become "going concerns" the Austrian troubles will easily be solved. England, France and Italy can take care of themselves if they are not handicapped by their neighbors, Russia, Germany and Austria.

We deal in the bonds of all foreign countries and cities, which if purchased at present prices should ultimately show a profit of from 30% to 1000%.

Brownies Wallop Fort Worth Club By 19 to 4 Score

Burke's Charges Pound Three Texas League Flingers for Total of 17 Hits.

YOUNGSTER MULLEN STARS

Third Sacker Raps Out Four Safeties—Sisler and Williams Get Homers.

FORT WORTH, Tex., March 6.—The Browns today piled up a record score in the opening game here against the Fort Worth (Texas League), club, defeating Jakie Atz's men, 19 to 4. Hard and timely hitting by the St. Louis team was the outstanding feature of the battle. Burke's men collected 17 safe hits for a total of 27 bases.

Although Fort Worth has been in training for nearly three weeks, not one of the three pitchers trotted out by Manager Atz was able to hold the Browns in check.

Bill Mullen, the youthful St. Louisan, had a good day with the stick, getting four hits, a pass and being hit in six trips to the plate. His fielding record was perfect.

George Sisler, Kenneth Williams and Joe Gedeon shared equally as well as Mullen in batting. Sisler had a home run and two singles; Williams made his second home run of the training season, and also rapped out a single. Gedeon collected a double and two singles. Bill Burwell hit Kraft for a single and double.

Brinkop Fort Worth Star.

Brinkop, a St. Louis boy, who is playing here under the name of Burns, starred for the locals, both at bat and in the field. He made two hits, a double and a single, and handled 12 chances at first base cleverly.

Horace Leverette started on the mound for the Browns, pitching the first three innings. Three singles, coupled with a walk, a sacrifice and hit batsman allowed Fort Worth to score two runs in the second. In the third, a double by Brinkop and a single by O'Brien gave Fort Worth another run.

The final run for the locals came in the fifth against Lefty Leifield. A single by Sears, error by Gerber, sacrifice, walk and sacrifice fly by Hack, the St. Louis boy, scored it.

One Hit Off Burwell.

Bill Burwell pitched the final three innings of the game and he held the locals to one hit, a triple by Brinkop.

Singles by Mullen and Sisler in the first round, coupled with an error, gave the Browns one run. In the third, Gedeon's double, a fielder's choice and singles by Sisler and Williams resulted in a pair of tallies.

Mullen's single, Gedeon's walk and an error by Johnson gave the Browns one in the fifth.

Jacobson started the sixth with a single and he closed the round with an infield out, the Browns scoring seven runs. In this frame Gedeon and Jacobson got singles, Sisler a home run, and walks were issued to Gerber, Collins, Mullen and Tobin. Hack helped along with a passed ball.

A walk to Billings, Gerber's triple, singles by Burwell, Mullen, Tobin and Williams' homer resulted in six runs in the seventh. Burwell's double, Mullen's single and a single by Gedeon sent the final two runs across for the Browns in the eighth.

The same teams meet again tomorrow. Bob Quinn arrived here today and witnessed the slugfest.

Midget Fighters to Battle For World's Title, Friday; Wilde Favored Over Mason

Briton's Great Record and the Fact That American Was Once Stopped by Bantam Champion Pete Herman, Contribute to Make Foreign Flyweight Popular Choice.

By John E. Wray.

THE biggest little fight in all the world will be battled at Toledo, Friday night, when Jimmy Wilde of England, and Frankie Mason of Fort Wayne, Ind., mingle for the flyweight title. Wilde has added the "world's" prefix to his British laurels, but utterly without reason, since Mason is the American title-holder and has made just as many concessions to large men as has the English terror.

It is true Mason's record bears no such wonderful total of knockouts as that of the Briton; but he is a clever, dangerous fighter—one who has held his own among the best bantams, with one exception, because he was too good for all the little men at his weight.

The exception noted is that of Champion Pete Herman, who forced Mason to quit in the fourth round of an encounter held over a year ago. It is the only time in Mason's history that he has been compelled to lower his colors to a foe, of any weight.

This defeat does not invalidate Mason's right to claim the world's championship equally with Wilde. Only a meeting between them can determine which is entitled to supreme honors.

Wilde Will Be Favorite.

AS TO the outlook between these dynamic pigmies, Wilde will unquestionably have the call with all those who have seen both men at work, as well as with those who hold by the records.

Wilde, in addition to being a cleaner fighter and a more scientific boxer than Mason, owns an unquestioned knockout explosion in his right hand. Both men are cool, experienced fighters and it is a question as to which is the better general. Wilde is slightly younger and, although inclined to shift about the ring flat-footed, is a fast, accurate hitter. His record leaves little doubt of his equality with or even his superiority over Mason, and many persons would deduce from it that he was the American's superior.

Thus, in punch, hitting accuracy, clean fighting, and the quality of the men he has decisively beaten, Wilde is entitled to first consideration as the potential winner of Friday's contest.

Too Short for Knockout.

THE bout, however, will be of only 10 rounds' duration and it is hard to conceive of an experienced man like Mason being tucked away within that limit.

Both boys have fought a local celebrity—Babe Asher. Babe met Mason first, and by some critics was credited with a draw. Later, after adding to his experience in several good fights—notably two in which he easily outclassed Young Zulu Kid—Babe fought Wilde and was very fortunate to come through without being knocked out. After the first half of the opening round Wilde had his measure.

From this it appears that Wilde is entitled to be made favorite for the next title show. But until the bout is over and the Briton has won, he has no legal claim to call himself world's champion flyweight.

One Afraid, the Other Dassent.

THE most interesting world's championship boxing match in which Jimmy Wilde might figure as a principal is hanging fire, with little hope held out that the points of disagreement will be adjusted. This bout would bring together Pete Herman, world's bantam title holder, and the formidable little British fighter.

Notwithstanding a 10 or 12 pound discrepancy, the clash between these little fellows would hold more interest for the boxing public generally than any other event outside of a Dempsey-Carpentier struggle.

At present there are two hopeless obstacles to a meeting between the champions. Herman will not accept the $20,000 offer of a London promoter because Wilde will not consent to an American referee. The weight for this event, 118 pounds at 2 o'clock the day of the fight, is satisfactory to Herman.

Wilde will not fight Herman in America because he has pledged Charles Cochran of London that he will fight Herman only in England. In addition Wilde's manager declares he positively will not oppose any boy in America who weighs over 116 pounds ringside.

Big Advantage for Herman.

AS between the two positions, one can hardly blame Wilde. Herman, in fighting abroad with his own referee, in addition would have a weight condition favoring him by many pounds. Our bantamweight limit is 116 pounds, ringside. One hundred and eighteen pounds at 2 o'clock would let Pete enter the ring weighing 120 pounds. He would be a lion at the figure and would outweigh Wilde 12 pounds—an enormous advantage over so small a man. Herman could well afford to concede the referee, since he knows how to fight cleanly and according to British rules.

On the other hand, if he fought in this country at 118 pounds, he would have a triple advantage over the Briton in that he was fighting on home soil, with an American referee and his own weight conditions. Neither alternative seems fair to Wilde.

Wilde Risks No Title.

HERMAN contends, on the other hand, that Wilde is fighting under favorable conditions no matter where the bout takes place. He holds that Wilde has nothing to lose, since he is not bantamweight champion, while Herman is risking a world's title. Wilde would still be world's flyweight champion, if defeated; but Herman would lose all his honors, should Wilde win.

As the promoters, not Herman, are soliciting the bout, he holds the whip hand.

Calhoun Trims Mahl in Sprint

Coach Fitzgerald Thinks Soldan Star Will Shine for New Club.

Local athletic stars have formed a new club, the Japri A. C. and will compete under that name in the Municipal Track and Field carnival to be held at the Coliseum, March 27. This became known yesterday. The organization was formed out of appreciation for Paddy Fitzgerald, who is coaching the athletes three times a week at the Central Y. M. C. A.

Among the leading track performers who will compete under the colors of the Japri A. C. are Irwin Mahl, Al Boeddeker, George Puchta, Bob Probst, Mel Calhoun, Arch Trumm and seven others. Tommy Ryan, a high jumper, formerly of Salt Lake City also will enter from the Japri A. C.

One of the surprises sprung in the recent preparation for the meet was the defeat of Mahl at the hands of Mel Calhoun, the Soldan High School flyer, in a trial 50 yards dash. Fitzgerald figures that Calhoun will develop into a great sprinter.

Five municipal champions have already announced their intentions of competing in the March 27 meet. They are Loren Murchison, 50 yards dash; Al Boeddeker, quarter mile; Bob Probst, half mile; Drake, high jump. The St. Louis A. A. relay squad will defend its honors as the Japri A. C.

Commission Bans Beloit.

TAMPA, Fla., March 6.—President Clark Griffith of the Washington American Baseball Club announced tonight that the National Commission had ruled that no club associated with Organized Baseball would be allowed to play the Beloit (Wis.) team. The National Commission, Griffith said, took this action when the Washington club complained that player Ed Gharrity had repudiated his agreement to play with the Washington team and notified Griffith that he would play on the Beloit team.

Browns to Admit Boys for Quarter

Phil Ball Decides to Make Special Pavilion Price for Youths Under 14.

While the major league owners at the recent meeting held at Chicago raised the prices of admission to the parks this season, the Cardinals have already announced that they will again take care of the Knot-Hole Gang the coming campaign. While the Browns have made no arrangement of this sort the youngsters will nevertheless be taken care of.

Business Manager J. A. Robert Quinn had in view a plan to set aside a section in the bleachers for the youths. However, this was vetoed by Owner Phil DeC. Ball, who decided that he wanted to take care of them in the pavilion.

His present plan is to admit all youths up to and including 14 years of age for 25 cents—22 cents admission and 3 cents for war tax. The Browns' owner is at present trying to get the O K of the other clubs on this plan. President Ball announced that he expected no trouble in putting through the idea.

In all probability a special window will be opened at which the boys will be able to buy their tickets.

The admission prices at the Browns' Park this season will be as follows: Bleachers 50 cents; pavilion 75 cents, grandstand $1, second tier boxes $1.25, front boxes $1.50. All these prices include war tax.

It has been decided by officials of the Cardinals that seats in the left field uncovered pavilion, which last season sold for 50 cents, will go for 75 this year. The Knot-Hole gang will use the same stand as in 1919.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL FIVES WILL PLAY FOR TITLE

The first games in the Grammar School Basketball League to decide the championship will be played next Wednesday, with the following schedule: Meramec vs. Laclede; Henry vs. Ashland. Thursday—Irving vs. Fanning. Games in Group C last week resulted as follows: Bates 6, Field 8; Irving 7, Bates 5.

Hoppe Declines Chance to Play At Monte Carlo

Cue Champion Sought by European Promoters as Opponent for Frenchman, Cure.

Willie Hoppe, who stands out in the cue world like a Kohinoor among rhinestones, has refused to meet the French billiard champion, Cure, in a world's balk-line title match at Monte Carlo, Monaco, according to Manager R. B. Benjamin, who is in St. Louis arranging for the title-holder's exhibition series here this week with Peterson, Greenleaf and Keough as chief aids.

Benjamin explained that he did not want Willie to compete under Monte Carlo auspices, because of the gambling environment, but he thought the plan to play Cure would result in a match in the United States this fall with the French expert as Hoppe's rival.

Hoppe will enter the next annual balk-line tournament at the Astor Hotel ball room, unless something unforeseen prevents the holding of the event.

Hoppe has been playing as wonderful billiards on the tour as at any time during his remarkable career. Exhibiting on all sorts of tables his grand average runs into the late forties and Peterson, his balk-line opponent, although himself a 20 grand-average player, has won only a game or two during the entire tour.

Only Two Champions Here.

The present trip originally involved the winners of three cue championships: Hoppe, balkline; Greenleaf, pocket-billiards; Cannefax, three-cushions. Cannefax recently was dropped for refusing to obey instructions. Hoppe and Peterson will play afternoon and evening matches here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday; Greenleaf and Keough will play Thursday, Friday and Saturday, two exhibitions daily.

Greenleaf, the new pocket champion, has been declared a greater player than Frank Taberski, the previous title holder, who refused to compete in the last tournament and thereby lost his honors by default. Taberski previously had successfully defended his title against Greenleaf; but at the time, the present champion (then challenger) was only 17 years old.

Circuit of Rooms Planned.

Benjamin said yesterday that he could get backing for a plan which he hoped to put through within a year. This was to establish a chain of 30 billiard rooms, he said, all with standardized appointment, superior to anything now in this country. Each would be equipped with an exhibition hall, seating about 500 and the various cue attractions would make the circuit of this chain of halls to keep up the interest and maintain exclusive control of all noteworthy players. All four of the cue stars at present making the tour would be shareholders in the enterprise.

Hoppe Earns $25,000 a Year.

The present tour is under the direction of Benjamin. The average weekly salary and expense list, including Benjamin's allowance, totals $2000. Benjamin said they had not failed in a single instance to keep above the maximum and had made money over and above this sum, in a majority of cases. Formerly Hoppe and Benjamin divided the profits. This year Hoppe is retained at a flat salary of $25,000. Greenleaf, a mere youth, is drawing $250 weekly.

Benjamin said that San Francisco has been cut out of the circuit of the champions because the only suitable hall there was conducted in the interest of a billiard "academy," which made a business of gambling. In this academy Young Jake Schaefer, Welker Cochran, Yamada, John Horgan and other champions and near champions are stars. Horgan is manager of the Academy.

Benjamin stated that next year for the title tournaments only invited players could compete and that none of these, unless they lived in foreign countries, would be paid expense money from their homes to the scene of the contests. He asserted that the three-cushion tournament would be dropped by the promoters and that if a championship were held it would have to be conducted by the "outlaws."

NAVY WATER POLO TEAM WINS FROM PENN, 22-6

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 6.—University of Pennsylvania met defeat in a water polo game, played this afternoon with the Midshipmen swimmers, in the Naval Academy tank. The score was 22 to 6, Pennsylvania led in the first half, 4 to 6.

The visitors were the first in possession of the ball and Haldermann took it through the Navy goal for a touch goal in a manner that indicated Pennsylvania was due for a win. But this and a foul goal, which also came in the first period, was the only marking done by the visitors.

In the second half the Navy came through with a punch that soon settled the contest. Much of this was due to Graham who scored the first points for the Navy on a thrown goal and later scored again by this method and by two touch goals.

PENN TO CHALLENGE CHICAGO FOR TITLE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 6.—The University of Pennsylvania will challenge the University of Chicago to a post season series for the national collegiate basketball championship, it was announced tonight. Chicago, it was stated, has won the Western Conference Championship and Pennsylvania clinched the intercollegiate league title in the East last night.

Navy Gymnasts Winner.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 6.—The Navy team of gymnasts defeated Haverford College this afternoon in the academy gymnasium with a 40-to-14 score. Hales, Navy captain, was first on the rings. Long and H. W. Arrowsmith each finished second on the horizontal bar and in tumbling. If permission can be obtained from the Navy Department the academy hopes to ented a team in the intercollegiate meet.

Lawler to Fight Frankie Tucker At Rialto A. C.

Matchmaker Randall Announces Fine Fistic Card for Next Thursday's Show.

Rialto A. C.'s Boxing Program for Thursday

MAIN EVENT.
Jack Lawler, Omaha, vs. Frankie Tucker, Tulsa, Ok., eight rounds, 130 pounds at 3 o'clock.
SEMI-WINDUP.
Pete Macklin vs. Kid Alberts, both of St. Louis; eight rounds.
PRELIMINARY.
Boise Potthoff vs. Ora Dean, both of St. Louis, six rounds, 142 pounds.
CURTAIN RAISER.
John Collins, East St. Louis, vs. Jimmy Wallace, St. Louis, or Jimmy Kerns, East St. Louis; six rounds.

Eddie Randall yesterday announced that he had matched Jack Lawler, Joe Levy's promising Omaha lightweight, and Frankie Tucker, who defeated Tommy Teague here last week, for the main event of his Rialto Athletic Club's show, next Thursday at the Armory.

Randall had bad fortune last week in that the best card he had ever arranged (scheduled for tomorrow night), went to pieces owing to Ray Long's illness. Long, who was matched with Harvey Thorp in what it was thought would prove a great scrap, was reported ill and canceled his contest. Long, shortly after the match was first made, asked a postponement on the ground that he was to undergo an operation on his nose.

The Tucker-Lawler match promises to rival the one postponed in interest, as both boys have reputations above the average. Lawler is fresh from fighting Johnny Dundee at Atlanta, Ga., where the newspaper critics overruled the draw verdict given by the referee and unanimously agreed that Lawler had won. Lawler is matched to fight Benny Valger, Kilbane's conqueror, at Atlanta, March 23. Lawler also gained a newspaper decision over Kilbane, it is stated. He is under the management of Joe Levy, who brought out Joe Rivers from obscurity into championship fame, a few years ago.

Tucker's most recent appearance here was at the South Broadway A. C. where he outpointed Tommy Teague, a boxer who previously had made a hit here. Tucker is fast, clever and very hard to hit. Lawler is said to be the most promising of the new crop of lightweights able to do 133 ringside or less.

Future City Has No Match.

Matchmaker Tommy Sullivan of the Future City A. C., has been trying to arrange a fistic card at the Coliseum for March 23, the club's next date, but has been unable to sign the fighters he is after. He wanted Kabakoff and Regan, but the latter refused to battle again without resting several weeks. Sullivan is trying to find a suitable lightweight opponent for Kabakoff.

Kid Bandy's hand has recovered, but none of the local lightweights appears eager to test it out in a match.

Amateur Star Is Injured.

Will Gockenbach, the hard-hitting and clever St. Louis amateur boxer, suffered an injury recently that may prevent his appearance in a ring for some time. He fell on an icy sidewalk and hurt his leg. He also suffered a severe cut on the head.

One-Round Garrison Retires.

The Herman Heitzenroeder—"One-Round" Garrison match appears to be definitely off for all time, since "Garrison" went into the restaurant business. Heitzenroeder, who is matchmaker for the South Broadway A. C. as well as a slugging, heavyweight boxer, wanted to arrange a card for the club. He journeyed to Garrison's Restaurant and walked in on his rival. Here's one version of the encounter:

"Say," said Heitz, "are you ever going to fight me? I'll guarantee to knock you out quick and make it easy for you."

Garrison put the counter between himself and Heitz and shook his head.

"It wouldn't do my business no good," he said.

"Nor your face neither," returned Heitz as he retired, giving up the task as hopeless.

Scholz Ties U. S. Record in Sprint At Illinois Meet

St. Louis Boys, Representing Missouri U., Finish One, Two in 75-Yard Event.

ARMORY, CHAMPAIGN, Ill., March 6.—John V. Scholz of Missouri, sprint champion of the Missouri Valley Conference, established a new carnival record and tied the American amateur record, running 75 yards in 7 3-5 seconds, here last night. Massengale, also of Missouri University, finished second and Prescott, Illinois, third. The occasion was the third annual relay carnival of the Illinois University.

Both Scholz and Massengale are from the St. Louis district. Massengale starred at Webster Groves High School and Scholz was a Soldan High School athlete.

The brilliant work of Captain Carl Johnson of Michigan, who won three events and established a new American record in one, also featured the carnival. The Wolverine won first places in the 75-yard high and low hurdles and in the running high jump. After equaling the carnival mark of 9 3-5 in the 75-yard high hurdles he won the low barriers in eight seconds. The distance to the first hurdle was 20 yards, with a similar distance between the flights, and 15 yards to the finish. As it was a distance with hurdles set differently, the mark will stand as a new amateur American record.

Three Other Records Fall.

Aside from Johnson's record in the low sticks four other relay marks went by the board. Chicago was the first to score a signal victory when its team won the two-mile relay in the record breaking time of 8:04 4-5. It was a beautiful race and Captain Speer of Chicago nosed out Captain Emery of Illinois by inches.

Ames' four-mile relay team took the event in 18:40 3-5 which is a new carnival record.

Stone, anchorman for Ames, came from behind and won the race for his team on the last relay.

Slaughter of Michigan and Frost of Kansas Aggies tied for first place in the pole vault at 12 feet 2 1-2 inches which is a new carnival record. Illinois took the one-mile relay through the great running of Phil Spink on the last relay.

Georgetown took the two-mile relay medley through the great running of Connolly on the last relay, one mile. Legendre, the Eastern schools representative in the 75-yard low hurdles was beaten by Johnson of Michigan.

The games were witnessed by 6,000 persons.

Brutus Hamilton of Missouri took the all around competition with 4958 points. Osborn of Illinois was second with 4913 points and Bradley of Kansas third with 4894 points. Lewis of Missouri was fourth with 4536 points.

Pikers Win City Basketball Title, Beating Billikens

Washington Quintet Lands Second Straight Victory by Score of 26 to 20.

Washington University closed its basketball season last night with a 26—20 victory over St. Louis University on the Francis gymnasium court. The conquest gives the Pikers the local collegiate championship. It is the sixth straight time the Pikeway has gained this honor. The score at the end of the half was 13—9.

Last night's contest was one of the poorest played on the local court this season. The Pikers played a listless game. There was a great deal of fouling and wrangling among the players.

Last night's game was the final for Capt. Russell, guard, and Marquard, forward, for Washington. Both these athletes graduate in June.

Webber, the Billiken forward, was the chief point-getter with 14, eight from the foul line. Kraehe and Mueller were ejected from the fray for committing four personal fouls. In the last two minutes the Pikeway substitutes were given a chance.

Reinhart Pitches Cardinals to 6-5 Victory at Dallas

ROGERS HORNSBY STARS

Slugging Infielder Drives In Two Runs With Double and Another With Single.

DALLAS, Tex., March 6.—Playing in weather more suitable to football than baseball, the St. Louis Cardinals handed the Dallas, Texas League club a 6—5 trimming today.

Art Reinhart, former Texas Leaguer, started the game for the Cards and went the entire route. He was wild at times, but escaped in all except three rounds, when he was hit safely for five runs.

Dallas started the scoring in the third session. Slattery and Mattick garnered singles and Palmer's out to first tallied Slattery.

Dallas found Reinhart for three markers in the fifth. Coombs hit to center and took second on Janvrin's fumble of Mattick's slow roller. Palmer singled to center, scoring Coombs. Mattick counted on Scoggin's fly to right, and Kerns laced a double to right center, scoring Storey, who got on through a fielder's choice.

Hornsby Again to the Fore.

The Cards launched another attack in the eighth good for three runs and put the game on ice. Reinhart doubled to left, and took third on Shotton's out at first. Heathcote walked and stole second. Landry, who replaced Flynn in the fifth, walked Smith, loading the bags. Hornsby scratched a hit to third and Reinhart tallied. McHenry drove one to Storey, who cut Heathcote off at the plate. Janvrin then singled over second, scoring Smith and Hornsby. Reinhart set the Dallas club down one, two, three in the eighth, fanning Dale, pinch hitter, and Hahn.

Lavan started the ninth with a double off Wood, who replaced Landry. Reinhart fanned and Shotton walked. Heathcote hit to Palmer, who booted, Lavan counting. Smith fanned for the third out.

The locals rallied in their half but fell short one run of tying the game. Mattick singled and scored on Palmer's two bagger to right.

MUELLER'S HOME RUN GIVES SUGDEN'S TEAM WIN OVER BARRETT'S

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., March 6.—A home run drive to center field with a man on base by Clarence Mueller, the South St. Louisan, broke a 13—13 tie that had existed in the ninth inning and brought a 15—13 victory to Joe Sugden's Grays over Charley Barrett's Whites in today's inaugural nine-inning game on the Brownsville Field. The pitching, fielding and hitting, clearly indicated that the players are not yet in shape.

A total of 23 bases on balls were allowed by the pitchers of both sides. Jimmy Hatchard, with seven, and Frank Woodward with eight were the chief offenders.

Jimmy McLaughlin, playing third base for Sugden's team, had his right eyelid injured when he collided with Ed Bogart in a play at third base. McLaughlin, however, played out his string. Mueller's work was attractive. Besides nicking Goowin for a home run in the ninth, he scored four runs in as many times at bat and pulled down three hard chances in the outfield.

Fred Hunter umpired the game, being assisted by Freddie Schupp, who rendered the base decisions.

Trumbulls Defeat Prendergasts for Fairground Title

Tailors' 1-0 Victory, Gained in Snowstorm, Entitles Them to Play in Eliminations.

BEGGANS SAVES THE DAY

Goalkeeper of Successful Eleven Plays Fine Game Under Heavy Bombardment.

Sensational defensive play by Beggans, goal-keeper, and Burke, left fullback, enabled the Trumbulls to defeat the Prendergasts, 1—0, for the championship of Fairground No. 2 at Fairground, yesterday afternoon. Beggans and Burke played the stellar role in the closing period, thereby enabling the Trumbulls to hold a one-point margin gained in the waning moments of the first half. The winners will compete in the Municipal Soccer League elimination Series which opens today.

Yesterday's clash between the Trumbulls and Prendergasts was the result of a ruling of the Executive Committee, following numerous protests filed by the managers of both elevens.

Despite the inclement weather—the game was played from start to finish in a snow storm—it was a good contest to watch, and thoroughly enjoyed by some 500 shivering fans who braved the pneumonia weather. Although there is great rivalry between the two elevens, the battle was cleanly played, only four fouls being called by Referee Paul Murphy, all for handling the ball.

Trumbulls Score in First Half.

At the start of the game, the advantage was with the Trumbulls. They had a heavy wind at their backs and they made the best of it. Prendergast fullbacks were unable to boot the ball any distance. As a result, the Trumbulls were forcing matters. However, the Prendergast backfield threw up an impenetrable defense and it was not until 20 minutes of the initial period had elapsed that the Trumbulls were able to score.

About this time, Paddy Burke, passed to Carl Connor, at outside right. The latter put all he had in his right foot behind the kick. Aided by the wind, the sphere surved into the upright, out of the reach of Madsen for what proved the only count of the game.

Wind Slows Up Prendergasts.

In the opening period, the Prendergasts did not have a shot at goal, but their followers figured that it was because of the strong wind which favored their opponents.

But starting the second half it was the same. The Trumbulls rushed and five minutes after the start had a great chance to score, which was lost when "Buss" Connors, overanxious, kicked to one side of the goal posts.

It was after this that the Prendergasts found themselves. Also about this time, Burke and Beggens started playing one of the best games of defensive soccer ever witnessed on a local field. For a time it looked as though the defense must ultimately crack. The Trumbulls forced one corner kick after another, while the mouth of the Trumbull goal was literally covered with Prendergast players.

But with each assault, it was either Beggans or Burke, who drove the ball to safety. Late in the game, Madsen of the Prendergasts made a great stop of a shot from McGann. The game ended with play in Prendergast territory.

Clark Plays Fine Game.

Center Halfback Clark played a good game for the winners. He seemed to know exactly where to play and used more judgment than most of the other kickers.

The lineups:

Trumbulls.	Postions.	Prendergasts.
Beggans	Goal	Madsen
Mason	Fullback	Kavanaugh
Burke	Fullback	Fitzgerald
Brennan	Halfback	McSkimming
Clark	Halfback	Pepper
Streaton-Stephens	Halfback	Gockel
McGann	Forward	La Barge
J. Connors	Forward	Meyers
Bus Connors	Forward	O'Neill
Fitzgerald	Forward	Croak
C. Connors	Forward	Hyson

Goal—C. Connors. Referee—Paul Murphy. Time of halves—30m

PEABODY WINS AMATEUR SQUASH RACQUET TITLE

BOSTON, Mass., March 6.—Charles C. Peabody, Massachusetts' champion, today won the national amateur squash racquet title, defeating Stanley W. Pearson of Philadelphia, who had held it for three years. The score of the match was: 4—15, 11—15, 15—12, 15—11, 15—11.

The match was one of five in a Boston-Philadelphia inter-city tournament, in which Pearson and Peabody were captains of the opposing teams.

The champion's hard hitting brought him the first set easily, with Peabody, who has been undefeated this year, winning only four games. Pearson's forehand stroking gave him the second set. Peabody squared the match by winning the third and fourth sets.

In the final set, Pearson called on his resources of backhand and tried to score decisive points with corner shots. But the Boston captain had the better endurance. He forced his opponent out of position and by his speed discounted the strategy which the champion sought to employ.

Sand Greens, Not Grass, Advocated For Public Links

Former Municipal Star Says Reconstruction Should Follow This Suggestion.

By John E. Wray.

That the Forest Park Golf Club should abandon its effort to maintain grass greens, when the course is reconstructed, and should substitute sand greens, was the opinion expressed to the Post-Dispatch by a member of one of the local country clubs, himself a graduate of the Forest Park links.

This player, who refused permission to use his name, gave it as his view that the park authorities should not attempt to maintain a course up to regular championship standards, owing to the fact that the bulk of the public course players, for whose use and pleasure the links were laid out, are not sufficiently advanced to compete over a difficult course. He added:

"As to the Forest Park greens, it has for years been found impossible to play them intelligently or accurately. The number of persons using the links is too great and the force at work for the golf department is so inadequate that the maintenance of good grass greens seems hopeless.

"Sand greens have been used with success in many places in this country and England. They do not require nearly as much care, can readily be repaired and are fine for putting purposes. The disadvantage of sand greens lies in the fact that where it is necessary to pitch on to a green and hold the ball thereon, the ball will not stop dead but overrolls the green.

No "Pitch" Shots Required.

"However, practically no pitch shots to the green are to be found, on the public course, all of them being 'roll-ups,' to which the sand greens are exactly suited.

"I have heard a number of complaints that the new course, as pictured in a recent issue of the Post-Dispatch, making old No. 9 hole the new No. 1, old No. 5 hole the new No. 15, 'abandoning the first four holes, etc., will be lacking in 'sporty' features and will not be strong enough for a tourney, and will therefore not be suitable for holding the annual city championship.

"My view is that no public links ought to be of championship strength. If it is, many holes will not be playable for the general public. This is the case today, on several Forest Park holes, notably the lake hole, No. 17, where an impossible condition confronts the average golfer. This hole involves a 140-yard carry over the water, onto a very small green surrounded by trees. I have seen good golfers drop balls into the lagoon or have good shots rebound from trees or from the stone coping into the lake. Most of the ordinary municipal golfers simply pass by this hole. There are other holes on the present course too difficult for a vast majority of municipal players.

"The new course is nicely laid out and will afford good competition. Some of the holes need alteration, particularly the new No. 15, which formerly was No. 5. But in the main it will be a good enough test of golf for any but championship players.

No Place for Title Event.

"As to holding the city championship at Forest Park, that idea ought to be given over. The course has always been inadequate and always will be for this purpose. It is unfortunately so exasperating to play over that most of the local district players will not take part at all, as winning is a mere matter of luck, not golf. I doubt if more than three or four players other than members of the Municipal Association take part in the event this year, if it is held over the Forest Park course.

"In order to be a real city championship, the tournament should be held elsewhere. Almost any one of the local clubs would be willing to lend its course for the occasion, in order to make the affair a real city championship, instead of merely a second municipal event."

Lee Magee, Declaring He Was Blacklisted, to Sue Magnates, He Says

CHICAGO, March 6.

NO one in authority connected with the Chicago Cubs could be induced by word of mouth or wire to discuss the statement issued by Lee Magee yesterday, asserting that he had been "blacklisted" and "railroaded" out of major league baseball by pressure of National League owners and that he intended to bring suit to regain his standing.

In the course of his statement Magee declared the Cubs had written him they would exercise their option on him by notification last December, but had never mailed him a contract and, subsequently, had unconditionally released him. He said no one connected with the club had ever preferred charges of improper betting against him.

Magee's case attracted attention at the February meetings in Chicago, when it was unobtrusively given out that he had been allowed to slip out of major leaguedom.

Magee started with the Cardinals and at various times since 1910 played with the Brooklyn Feds, the New York Yankees, the Browns, the Cincinnati Reds, the Dodgers and the Cubs. He has been in the major leagues 11 years.

The Blue Birds, champions of Fairground No. 3 and the Eckhardts, pennant winners in the Carondelet Park division, are scheduled to fight it out this afternoon at Sherman Park in what should be the feature battle of the opening round of elimination contests in the Municipal Soccer League. Three other games are scheduled to be played.

Both the Blue Birds and Eckhardts went through their group battles without suffering defeat. The Blue Birds, composed of many former professional league kickers, won 15 and tied 2. The Eckhardts captured 16 straight contests. All the referees of the Municipal circuit are of the opinion that the winner of this contest will be the ultimate champion for 1919-20. The Trumbulls are the present title-holders.

The Blue Bird-Eckhardt clash will be the second of a twin-bill at Sherman Park, starting at 3:15 o'clock.

Officials of the Municipal League figure that the eight teams starting in the eliminations today are the best that have ever represented the organization in title contests.

The complete schedule is as follows:

Sherman Park—Paul Muellers, Sherman Park, vs. Stuarts, Forest Park; 1:15 o'clock. Referee, Oliver Miller. Blue Bells, Fairground No. 3, vs. Eckhardts, Carondelet Park, 3:15 o'clock. Referee, Richard Wall.

Fairground No. 4—Keen Kutters, Saturday division vs. Thumbulls, Fairground No. 2, 2:30 o'clock. Paul Mueller, referee.

Fairground No. 2—St. Leos, Fairground No. 4, vs. Wagner Starters, Wagner League, 2:30 o'clock. Marty Byrne, referee.

Rules for the contests call for 45-minute halves. If the score is tied at the end of the 90 minutes, extra 15-minute periods will be staged until a decision is reached.

Soldan Clinches Basket Title by Beating Yeatman

Score Was 28 to 19, but Victors Were Behind at Close of First Half.

Soldan High School clinched the Interscholastic League basket ball championship defeating Yeatman, 28—19, in the feature game of the double-header played at the Cleveland High gymnasium yesterday afternoon. In the opening contest Cleveland nosed out Central, 21—19. The victory was the sixth straight for Soldan.

For a time it seemed that the North Enders would hand the champions their first defeat of the season. Soldan's play in the first half was very slow, while Yeatman played one of its best games of the campaign. At one time the North Enders were ahead, 10—3, while the first half ended 13—8 in their favor.

One of the features of Yeatman's play in the opening period was the passing of Weinel, at center.

After the start of the second half Soldan spurted and brought the score to 13—13. Here Stephenson netted a basket from midfield and thereafter the Soldanites were never headed. In th final five minutes of the contest, the West Enders found themselves and played as they have in previous battles this season.

Left Forward Stephenson of the winners was the individual star of the game, with five field goals and eight free throws to his credit. Three of his field goals came from near midfield. Weinel's work stood out for Yeatman.

Cleveland Subs Play Well.

Despite the fact that Cleveland started the first half with a substitute team, the five was able to hold Central, which played its best game of the year to a 10—10 count in the opening period. The Mid-City aggregation ran up an early lead, but Cleveland came with a rush near the close. Central players for the first time followed the ball accurately.

Starting the second half, the Cleveland regulars were sent into the game and went out in front never to be headed. Central, however, was always dangerous.

The star of the game was Gammeter, left forward for Cleveland. The player is only 17 years old, but stands 6 feet 4 inches. He played only the first half and scored four field goals. Gammeter would walk up to the basket and hand the ball over the rim.

Following the completion of yesterday's games, it was the opinion of coaches and officials that the season should be ended, now that Soldan has clinched the title. An official ruling is expected some time this week.

To Get Strong and Put on Flesh

People who have tried it say that one of the quickest and surest ways in which those who are weak, thin, nervous and run down can grow strong and put on pounds of solid, stay-there flesh is to take a 5-grain tablet of Blood-Iron Phosphate with each meal. This is doubtless due to the well-known fact that Blood-Iron Phosphate quickly builds up depleted nervous energy and at the same time supplies the iron necessary to make rich, red, strength-building blood. If you are weak, thin, nervous, or are lacking in the old-time vigor, endurance and optimism, go to Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co. or any other good druggist and get enough Blood-Iron Phosphate to last three weeks and take as directed. If at the end of three weeks you don't feel one hundred per cent better and aren't in every way satisfied you can have your money back for the asking. Fair, isn't it? Better try it today.

Duck Shooting With a Rifle

Sportsman Tells of Day's Hunting on Alberta Lake, Where 250 Cartridges Brought Down 14 Ducks and One Goose.

By Paul Page

Did you ever shoot ducks on the wing with a 22 rifle?

Some shooting and some sport where the birds don't know what a gun or man is! I covered that Alberta Lake with chunks of lead. Sometimes, a few times, I got a bird I shot at, and several times one that got in the way and that I did not shoot at.

I did get into the Wild Bill—Dr. Carver class with a big Canada honker. He came drifting down the lake and when opposite me at about 30 yards and 50 feet high I cut into him. He staggered and fell a few feet, gathered himself and started directly away from me. I shot again and again he twisted and fell but gathered himself up and turned in and toward me and crossed to fly around me and back up the lake. I got him on the turn with the third shot and he came down in a lump. I dressed him later and found one shot went through his breast just below his neck, one through his back and out at the wishbone, and another through his body in front and close to his legs.

The next shot I doubled up a redhead and nearly landed him in the boat from a straight overhead at all of 60 yards.

I was sure some rifle shot just then. Later I changed my mind about it.

Double Out of a Flock.

Once in a while when a bunch of mallards swung in to have a closer look at my bunch of outlaw decoys I got results and once I made a double out of a flock and these did not come in any too good, either.

It is amazing the amount of room that there is around a big duck. I could pick out a certain feather on one of those big mallards and shoot at that one feather at 30 yards and nothing doing. I might do the same thing at the next bird and get its partner flying several feet behind it and perhaps, but not often, I would get so close to that particular feather that I would commence talking to myself and wondering how Dr. Page would sound.

While busy spattering lead over the landscape the beautiful trumpet call of a swan came to me and held me spellbound. Four of these great birds were coming into the lake from the south. They started my way and I dropped the rifle; no, not for the shot gun, but for the camera. On they came, wheeled in behind me and started for the blind not four feet over the grass.

I twisted and turned and tried my best to get those birds in the finder, but could not do so, although they swung out over the clear water not 40 yards from me.

Shooting With a Camera.

I fooled for an hour or more trying my luck with ducks of all kinds and one splendid chance at a large flock of brant, but the best I got was some dots that looked like fly specks. All the rest developed blanks.

If I ever hit that lake again I am going to have some kind of a camera gun that I can point at a bird and get results. I tired of the camera and took up the 22 again.

A great number of swan came into the lake and lit. They came from the south and high up. They evidently were coming in for water and for the night.

One bunch of sandhill crane came in and lit on a mud bar.

One big swan, I believe he would have measured 9 feet from wing tip to wing tip, came by the blind at not over 20 yards and less than that number of feet from the water. I covered him with the rifle and I know I could have hit the feather I aimed at and my finger itched to pull the trigger. The Alberta law says hands off of swan and crane and it was hands off with me.

There is an end to everything and the end came for me when I ran out of 22 shells.

I shot 250 and got 14 ducks and one goose. Not much of a record, and yet some record. Try it sometime.

"Some Good Shooting."

I picked up my ducks and poled to shore where I was met by my host. He looked over my back-breaking load of ducks and geese. I do not remember of saying how many ducks I shot with the shot gun. He said, "If you want to get some good shooting try Buffalo Lake. My brother lives there and I will give you a note to him."

Some good shooting! I wonder what he calls shooting? Two hundred and fifty picked shots at ducks at not over 40 yards away, a few geese thrown in for good measure; not quite as many shots with the camera is some little day's [illegible]ting.

If you have not already done so, try this rifle duck-shooting game sometime when you get where ducks are tame. No use to try it on birds that have been shot at until they are wild, as they jump too much, and when they do it is out of the question to get them covered, and when you do get a bird under such conditions you do not feel that you have done anything but a lucky fluke.

Hurrah—my friends ran over their best dog and put him in the dry dock for a week and only got three sharptail.

I am the duck sharp in that bunch right now, and my map has moved up to the head of the class.

There were no "I told you so's" when I got back that same evening.

Jim Barnes Favorite Over Walter Hagen to Win $1500 Match Today

NEW ORLEANS, March 6.

JIM BARNES has been installed the favorite in the early wagering on the outcome of his match with Walter Hagen, national open champion, scheduled to be decided on the links of the New Orleans Country Club tomorrow. Barnes recently played several "best ball" matches and won much favor with golfers here. Besides, he has been here since Wednesday and is more familiar with the course than his rival.

Hagen arrived late Friday night, played in the morning 18 holes with Nelson Whitney, Southern champion, and W. C. Hunt of Houston. He also played the first nine in the afternoon.

The Country Club course is 6110 yards in length with par 71. The record is 70, held jointly by Whitney and Reuben Bush, amateurs.

Sunday's match is for a purse of $1,500, of which the winner is to receive $1,000. Barnes announced that he would not meet Hagen again after tomorrow's match, before going to England for the British open.

MASTER'S REPORT FAVORS CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TRUSTEES

Opinion Filed Holds That Publishing Society Is Not Under Control of Directors of Mother Church.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, March 6.—The trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society may not be controlled by the directors of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in the opinion of Judge Frederic Dodge, whose findings, as Master in the Christian Science suits, was filed with the Supreme Judicial Court of the State today. The Master also finds that the directors had no legal right to remove John V. Dittemore from their own board, or Lamont Rowlands of Picayune, Wis., from the Board of Trustees.

The original draft of the Master's findings was prepared two months ago and since then counsel for the directors have endeavored to reopen the case so far as it affects Dittemore, and also to have the findings amended. These requests were refused.

The directors already have indicated that they proposed to continue the fight before the full bench of the State Supreme Court.

Statement By Directors.

As soon as the Master's report was filed the Board of Directors, with the exception of Dittemore, issued a statement declaring that the fight was not ended. They said in part:

"In the suit brought by the trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society against the directors of the mother church, the Master now has filed a report of his findings and conclusions. Much of the report is unfavorable, but it is not a final decision; it is subject to review by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts—first, by a single Justice thereof, and later by the full court of five Justices. At least some months are likely to elapse before their final decision can be obtained. Mrs. Eddy's work, as the discoverer, founder and leader of Christian Science, only needs the clear understanding and active co-operation of Christian Scientists.

"The discernment, steadfastness and unity of Christian Scientists have been tested before. So once more we may be assured by these words of our beloved leader: Built on the rock, our church will stand the storms of ages.'"

Substance of Master's Opinion.

"The trust deed of 1898," the master says, referring to the deed creating the publishing society trustees, "seems to me to contemplate a church whose voting members were to elect the new members and make its bylaws, and a publishing society in close alliance with, but not under the rule of, the church or its officers."

Dodge, who formerly was Judge of the United States Circuit Court here, was appointed as master by Judge Loring of the Supreme Court to determine the facts at issue, and also to interpret two deeds of trust made in 1892 and 1898, respectively, by Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science Church. In the first trust deed Mrs. Eddy named four trustees, since designated as directors, and in the second she provided for trustees who should have charge of all publications intended to promote the growth of the Christian Science movement.

The trustees of the publishing society claimed that under their deed they were independent of control by the directors. The directors contended that under the bylaws of the manual of the Mother Church they were the supreme authority over all its activities.

Judge Dodge upholds the ground taken by counsel for the trustees and for Dittemore that the bylaws of the church did not confer powers upon the directors possessed by "deacons" or "wardens" of churches incorporated under the statutes of Massachusetts. These bylaws, in the opinion of Judge Dodge, are simply a contract created by the signed applications for membership in the church.

He denies the contention of counsel for the directors appointed under the deed of trust of 1892, that these directors and those created by the church bylaws are one and the same body, having equal powers and authority to dismiss one of their own members as well as a trustee of the publishing society.

The master rules that at present there are two sets of directors of the Christian Science Church, each having the same name, one constituted by a board of four under the deed of 1892, and the other of five members acting under the bylaws made by the directors in 1903 after "first members" of the church had transferred their powers to the directors.

Removal Held Unlawful.

In deciding in favor of Rowlands, Judge Dodge says that his removal by the directors was unlawful, because there was not concurrent action on the part of the first members of the Christian Science Church as required by the deed of Mrs. Eddy relating to vacancies.

If the "first members" had the power to abolish themselves and transfer their duties to the directors, says the master, those directors were the ones appointed under Mrs. Eddy's deed and not the directors since created by the bylaws of the church.

The only two directors, he says, who had a right to vote to remove Rowlands were Adam H. Dickey and William R. Rathvon, and their votes were not a majority of the board. Edward A. Merritt, a bylaw director, Judge Dodge finds, had no right to vote; James A. Neal's attempt to vote by telephone was illegal, and Dittemore, who was present at the meeting, did not vote.

The Judge further declares that the charges against Rowlands were not made in good faith, in that the directors hoped that the remaining trustees would refuse to fill the vacancy and thus give cause for their removal also.

The First Church of Christ Scientist, in Boston, has never been incorporated under provisions of the Massachusetts statutes," says Judge Dodge. "It has been from the first and now is an unincorporated religious institution."

Interdependence of Board.

Of the interdependence of the two boards, the master says. "Close alliance and complete accord between the board of directors controlling the church, as it has since 1901, and the publishing society trustees, are obviously necessary to the success either of the church or of said trustees in that part of the work of promoting and extending Mrs. Eddy's doctrines for which each body was established and now exists.

"Without the publishing society's activities, the church would want adequate means of ready access to the widely dispersed believers of its teachings beyond its immediate congregation or membership, or to the general public among which it seeks to spread its teachings."

"Without the church's support and alliance the literature issued by the publishing society would lose that character which recommends it to the great body of its readers.

"Neither in the terms of the deed nor in the subsequent by-laws do I find anything of dissension between two boards composed of firm, loyal and consistent believers in her doctrines as would require the express subordination of one to the other in order to secure the necessary co-operation between them."

Before Judge Dodge filed his report with the court, counsel for the Christian Science directors sought to have him eliminate from it 25 rulings of law which they claimed were beyond the scope of the rule of reference to the master.

Judge Dodge declined, saying:

"These and all rulings in the report are believed by the master to be rulings required for the purpose of finding the facts as directed by the rule of reference. They were made because believed to be so required, subject, of course, to the approval of the court and intended, in any event, as advisory only."

MEETING WEDNESDAY NIGHT AT ODEON IN INTEREST OF PROPOSED $24,000,000 BONDS

Campaign Plans for Municipal Issue Include Raising of $15,000 Fund—Slides to Be Shown at Movies.

The first of a series of meetings in behalf of the $24,000,000 municipal bond issue will be held at the Odeon Wednesday night, under the joint auspices of the West End Business Men's Association and the Associated Engineering Societies.

Plans for a vigorous campaign, leading up to the special election May 11, are being made by the Campaign Committee, of which Thomas H. Lovelace, assistant secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, has been made chairman.

At the committee's organization meeting held at Hotel Statler Friday night, with about 50 persons present, Mayor Kiel called attention to the difficulties which must be overcome if the program of improvements is to be put through.

The 18 items of the bond issue will be voted upon separately, and each one, to carry, must receive more than two-thirds of the votes cast. It will be possible, therefore, for some to carry and others to fail. Such a result is not desired by the committee, which intends to give active support to all the items.

$15,000 Fund Planned.

The Mayor said that there are always obstructionists, and that their opposition, and the difficulties which may arise from the rivalry between different districts of the city, would have to be overcome by hard, aggressive campaigning.

It is planned to raise a fund of $15,000 to $20,000. A secretary, a treasurer and a chairman of the finance committee are to be chosen by a committee consisting of John F. Sueeny, M. E. Holderness and Charles H. Biel. Chairman Lovelace, who was organizer of the 1913 campaign for the last Free Bridge bond issue, made several suggestions for the campaign at Friday night's meeting.

Among Lovelace's proposals was one that a "primer" be published, containing the facts about each of the 18 items proposed in the bond issue, and giving the reasons that make each desirable. He also said that a fuller book of information would be issued to speakers.

Theaters to Show Slides.

Vice chairmen will be named, he said, to organize many elements, such as former soldiers, labor unions, city salesmen, neighborhoods, automobiles and other factors that may contribute toward winning the election. Pastors of all the churches will be asked to advocate from their pulpits, the Sunday before election, the passage of the measure. Slides will be shown at the movies. Numerous meetings will be held. Committees will work among factory and office employes. A house-to-house canvass will be made just before the election.

Harland Bartholomew, engineer for the City Plan Commission, explained the nature of some of the projects which would be provided for by the bond issue, and President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service, explained others, and also the system of financing.

Some citizens have thought, Kinsey said, that the River des Peres improvement, instead of being included in a bond issue, should have been paid for by special assessment. He said, however, that special assessment work costs 15 per cent more and that, as the city would have had to pay seven-eighths of the cost, it would have cost the city more by special assessment than a bond issue will cost.

Bonds Sold in Installments.

Another point he emphasized was that such bonds are not all sold at once, but in installments.

"Only the other day I vouchered out the last of the bills for work done under the $11,000,000 of bonds issued during Mayor Wells' administration," he said. "These things don't go all in a lump."

Mayor Kiel said that all the money paid out under the bond issue would come back in the form of improved property values and taxes. He referred to the fact that Chicago recently passed a $20,000,000 bond issue for parks and playgrounds alone, and said it would be shameful if St. Louis refused to vote $24,000,000 for all purposes.

MARY WILL NOT MARRY ANY MORE EXCEPT IN THE MOVIES

Miss Pickford Says She Got Divorce to Be Free and Will Devote Rest of Life to Pictures.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 6.—Mary Pickford will never marry again, but will devote the remainder of her life to motion pictures, according to an interview she gave here to the Los Angeles Times.

She obtained a divorce from Owen Moore Tuesday at Minden, Nev.

"I sought a divorce because I wanted to be free," Miss Pickford said. "Mr. Moore is a charming man and most genial—but there are many instances where even two genial persons cannot agree.

"Some people think my divorce was obtained to permit me to marry again," she continued. "This is not so. I merely wanted to be free. Mr. Moore and I have been separated for three years and I have wanted a divorce, but it was simply to avoid such a situation as I found myself in today that I put it off so long."

EPISCOPAL CHURCH IN FAITHFULNESS DRIVE

Bishop Tuttle Asks All Members Attend Services for Next Four Sundays.

A concerted program begins today in all the Episcopal churches of the city. Bishop Daniel S. Tuttle has issued an appeal to all church members to attend Holy Communion every Sunday for the next four Sundays for the "spiritual emphasis of the nation-wide campaign," the appeal states. One communion service will be held in every church at 11 a. m. for the four weeks and in many of the churches there will also be an early celebration. Today all rectors will preach on "The Needs of the Hour" at the 11 o'clock service.

The nation-wide campaign is one to make the entire church membership "100 per cent faithful."

Tuesday night there will be a dinner at 6:30 p. m. at Christ Church Cathedral for all the clergy, wardens and vestrymen of the local churches, at which campaign plans will be announced. Vincent L. Price and George M. Block will speak.

TWO MISSOURIANS CONVICTED OF MURDER IN OKLAHOMA

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Ok., March 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Earl Blanchard of Nevada, Mo., were convicted here today on a charge of murder in connection with the killing of Police Chief Charles Stricker of Commerce, Ok., October 22, 1919, and were sentenced to life imprisonment.

WIGHTMAN TO MANAGE M'JIMSEY'S CAMPAIGN

Springfield Editor to Make Strong Bid for Votes of Former Progressives.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 6.—Announcement here today by E. E. E. McJimsey, editor of the Springfield Republican and candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, that he had selected Frank A. Wightman of Monett, former member of the Missouri Public Service Commission, as his campaign manager, is taken by Republican politicians as an indication that McJimsey expects to make a strong fight for the votes of former Progressive, who generally have been counted upon to line up almost unanimously with his opponent, Arthur M. Hyde of Trenton.

Wightman in past years has had a strong personal following, being the only Republican who ever was twice elected to State office in Missouri. He was elected Railroad and Warehouse Commission in 1904 and re-elected in 1910. Although maintaining his "regularity" as a Republican in the troublous days in the Republican party in 1912, he was not sufficiently active to arouse the ill will of the Progressives.

Associate of Hadley.

He was closely associated politically and socially with former Gov. Hadley, who was the head of the Progressive spirit though not of the Progressive party in Missouri, and was in touch with many men who logically would be for Hyde for Governor over McJimsey. Fifteen years ago Wightman was a conductor on the Frisco, and since his retirement from State office in 1915 he has been Director of Safety of the Frisco.

McJimsey's supporters who are close to him if not in his full confidence have until the past week or two refused to consider Hyde a serious contender for the nomination, having apparently been content to believe that the support of McJimsey by the Republican machine in St. Louis and the support of the Republican organization in most of the counties south of the Missouri river was a sufficient assurance that McJimsey would win easily.

This attitude has been changed to a considerable degree since the publication recently of a statement by John Schmoll, chairman of the Republican City Committee in St. Louis, to the effetc that the reason he was supporting McJimsey was that McJimsey was "wet."

Schmoll Tips "Secret."

The McJimsey men wanted Schmoll's support and would not think of alienating it, but they insist they can see no reason why Schmoll should have told such an inside campaign secret. They refuse to believe that the mere fact that Schmoll and other members of the St. Louis committee were supporting McJimsey would have been sufficient notice to "wet" St. Louis that McJimsey was "all right," and yet would not have forcibly brought to the attention of the out in the State voters, most of whom are supposed to be "dry" the satisfaction of the "wets" with McJimsey.

McJimsey has not taken occasion so far to make any public statement on the "wet and dry" issue.

Some of his supporters have even said that Schmoll's statement would cost McJimsey fully 25,000 votes out in the State without adding anything to his vote in St. Louis. The situation is somewhat similar to that in the general election campaign of 1916 when Gov. Gardner was induced by St. Louis Democrats to issue a statement two or three days before election that he would veto any prohibition bill passed by the Legislature.

Although the statement reached St. Louis voters there was not sufficient time for the Gardner statement to gain wide circulation in the country before election. However, managers of his campaign said that even the slight publicity it received cost him several thousand votes.

Hyde Openly "Dry."

Hyde has not attempted to conceal the fact he is "dry." He told Collector Koeln of St. Louis at a time when Koeln was thinking of supporting him that he had a dry record and saw no reason to change his attitude.

Hyde so far has given no attention to St. Louis, though his friends say he has by no means abandoned his expectation of making a campaign in the city. He has been taking the position that he can attract such strength in the country that the St. Louis organization will have to come to him before the primary in order to escape being with the losing side. This has not been taken seriously by the St. Louis politicians who believe they can control the primary in St. Louis for McJimsey and get such a large vote for him that with the organization vote in the country he will win.

The defeat of Thomas R. Marks, Republican boss of Kansas City, in the primary there yesterday has given the Hyde forces added confidence. Marks is a supporter of McJimsey, and while the primary technically involved only city affairs, the State Convention actually had a considerable part in it.

C. H. Brown Not in Belligerent Mood.

C. H. Brown of 4141 McPherson avenue, who was mentioned in an article in Friday's Post-Dispatch describing a meeting of the official board of the First Christian Church, last Tuesday, at which complaint was made concerning a note written by the pastor, the Rev. C. Emerson Miller, to a young woman in his congregation, has written the Post-Dispatch that he (Brown) was not in a belligerent mood when he arose in reply to a statement of the pastor. Brown expressed the opinion that the article had inferred he was about to attack the pastor.

ROOSEVELT ESTATE TO PAY $8891 INHERITANCE TAX

Former President's Property Totals $727,713 After Deductions Are Made.

By the Associated Press.

MINEOLA, L. I., March 6.—The State of New York will receive $8891 as an inheritance tax from the estate of the late Col. Theodore Roosevelt, according to the report of James N. Gehrig, State Inheritance Tax Appraiser, filed here today. The official transfer tax appraisal shows that the former President left an estate worth $727,713 after all expenses and debts had been deducted. The total value of the estate was placed at $781,082 divided between $630,107 personal and $150,975 real property.

Col. Roosevelt's widow, Mrs. Edith Kermit Roosevelt, has a life interest in the estate placed at $724,763, the remainder being divided between the children, with the exception of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, as her father in his will, said that she had been amply provided for previously.

YARD CLERK KILLED BY TRAIN

Ferdie R. Coplin, 20 years old, of 1009A Morrison avenue, St. Louis, a yard clerk employed by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Co., in its yards in East St. Louis, was run over and killed yesterday afternoon by a train of cars when at work.

Employes of the company say they did not witness the accident, the body being found after it had been run over by several cars, which were in charge of a switching crew. Coplin was a son of Charles Coplin of Hematite, Mo.

PROHIBITION APPEALS SET FOR TOMORROW

Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Kentucky Cases To Be Argued in Supreme Court.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The prohibition amendment and portions of the enforcement act were attacked as unconstitutional in a brief filed in the Supreme Court today by the Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Co., in appeals from Federal Court decrees holding the acts valid.

The brief alleges the amendment invades the sovereign powers expressly reserved by the Federal Constitution to the states; that three-fourths of the states have not ratified it because in 12 it had not been submitted to a referendum as state statutes provide, and that both the amendment and the Volstead act take property without just compensation.

The brief also alleges that the prohibition resolution was not constitutionally adopted by the House and Senate because the affirmative vote for the resolution was not two-thirds of the membership in each body, but only two-thirds of those present.

Solicitor-General King, in a brief filed today in support of Federal Court decrees dismissing injunction proceedings against the Volstead act in Massachusetts, contended that the eighteenth amendment annuls all conflicting state and Federal laws previously passed. The amendment, the brief added, does not take from the states authority to enact similar enforcement legislation, except to the extent that the conferring of a concurrent power upon Congress may be a limitation."

These contentions were designed to refute arguments that the amendment operated to abolish all powers which either Congress or the states had previously exercised over intoxicating liquors.

Appeals in the case will be argued Monday with the Rhode Island suit and the Kentucky distilleries case.

DAVIS COMPANY BUYS LAND NEAR INDUSTRIES

Sites Well Suited to Homes or Specuation Being Offered at Relatively Low Prices.

The Davis Realty Development Co., of which Everett Davis is president, has acquired a tract adjacent to the new industrial district, of which the General Motor Co.'s $5,000,000 plant, now under construction on Natural Bridge road, will be the center. The tract, which was recently purchased by Davis for his company, has been platted into lots. These are being offered for a relatively low price, with a view to expediting their sale.

The land is attractive for both homesites and speculation. It is rached by the Cass avenue cars, running direct to Belt and St. Louis avenues, 5600 west.

The Davis Realty Development Co. is today presenting Motor Heights for the first time, in an inspiring advertisement which will be found elsewhere in this part of the Post-Dispatch, and which sets forth the speculative advantages of this section of the St. Louis realty market. The "ad" is in a class by itself and vibrates with force and energy.

The subdivision enterprises of the Davis Realty Development Co. have constituted a dominant influence as a factor in the St. Louis real estate field.

INDUSTRIAL PLANS HELPING SALE OF SOUTHAMPTON LOTS

One of the strongest appeals which property in Southampton makes to investors at the present time, according to C. C. Willmore, general manager of the Olive Street Terrace Realty Co., is the virtual certainty that Southwestern St. Louis is to have an industrial district similar to that which has sprung up in the northwestern part of the city, and on a much larger scale.

Between Southampton subdivision and the River des Peres, which runs along to the city limits more than a mile to the westward, lies at least 2000 acres which it is planned to convert to industrial uses. Options are said to have been taken on large tracts of this land in order that it may be offered at reasonable prices to manufacturers desiring to locate here. The plans for this industrial district, it is predicted, will cause a boom in residence property in the Southampton district in the next few months similar to that which took place in the vicinity of Union avenue and Natural Bridge road.

OIL-GAS BURNER COMPANY LEASES PINE STREET BUILDING

The Oliver Oil-Gas Burner and Machine Co. has leased the three-story building at the sontheast corner of Twenty-first and Pine streets, comprising more than 25,000 square feet of floor space.

Five Leases in Holland Building.

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports the following leases in the Holland building: A. R. Sheffer & Co., entire western half of first floor; Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis Railroad, entire front half of sixth floor; Harper-Woofter, suite on sixth floor; Robert Durphy, quarters on fourth floor; C. H. L. Becker & Co., quarters on sixth floor. All these leases were handled by T. J. Mullen.

BANKER PAYS ABOUT $40,000 FOR WESTMINSTER PLACE HOME

The Geo. F. Bergfeld Realty Co. announces the sale of 4474 Westminster place, a large residence to J. L. Johnston, president of the Liberty Bank. The price paid it is understood, was around $40,000.

This agency also reports having sold 5082 Cabanne avenue for H. R. Culling to Rufus B. West.

SUBDIVISION AGENTS PLAN BIG SPRING SALES DRIVE

Sales at the subdivisions on Natural Bridge road by Prettyman & Knobeloch was a marked feature notwithstanding the inclement weather the past week.

These agents are perfecting plans for a big spring sales drive to include several new properties in the General Motors' district, for which negotiations are pending. They sold 46 lots during the past week.

ORCHARD COURT APARTMENTS ON HAMILTON AVENUE SOLD

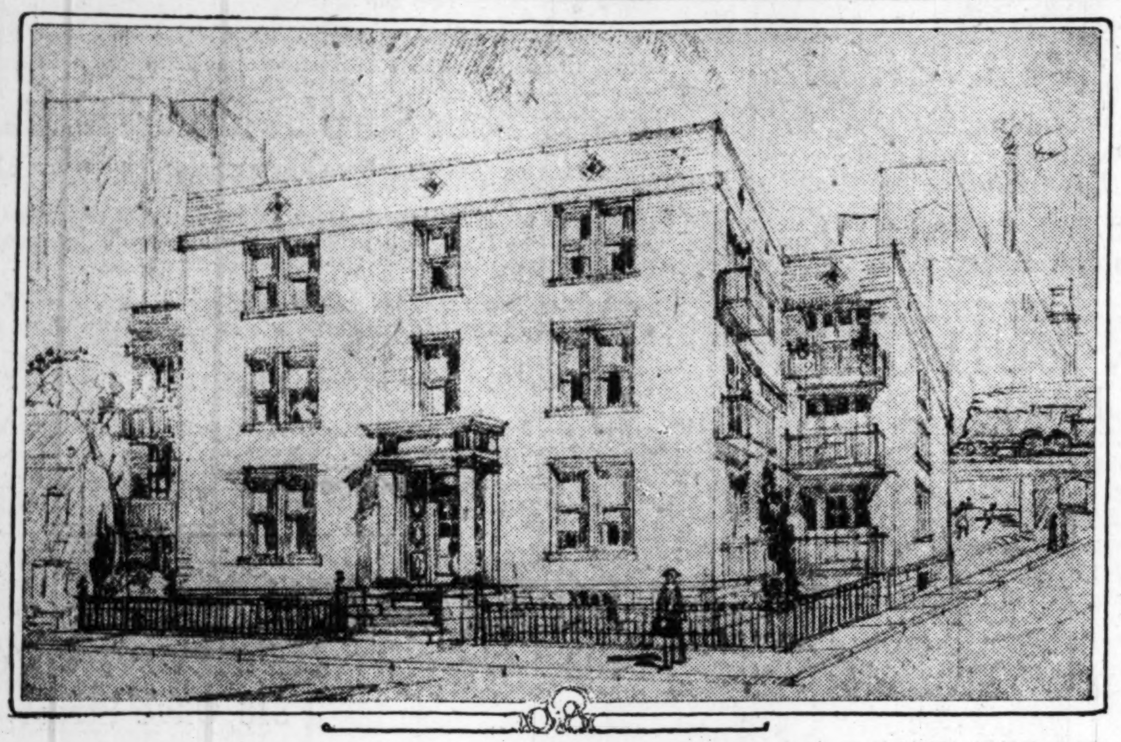
The Paul Jones Realty Co. reports having sold the Orchard Court Apartments, on the east side of Hamilton avenue south of Page boulevard, for Charles Kurlander to Joseph E. Kopelowitz, Dr. J. C. Kopelowitz and Samuel S. Simons.

The property consists of three eight-room apartments, three seven-room apartments and six six-room apartments, under lease for $10,000 a year.

Western Union Leases Storage Bldg.

The Western Union Telegraph Co. has taken a 15-year lease of the four-story reinforced concrete building at 1324 Franklin avenue, which is to be used for storage purposes. The lease was effected by the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co.

Apartments Which May Mean Eventual Redemption of River Front



THE apartment building in course of construction at the corner of Third and Cedar streets for the Crunden Manufacturing Co. promises to solve the acute housing situation. The objects attained by the erection of such a building in this locality are two-fold, according to the T. P. Barnett Co., which designed it.

In the first place, it provides a modern habitation with latest conveniences in close proximity to the industrial plants employing great numbers of artisans. While the building contains all conveniences, the rentals will be far more reasonable than those charged throughout the West End. It also eliminates the cost of transportation to and from work. At the same time, the residents are in close touch with churches, schools and all forms of entertainment.

The second accomplishment is the rehabilitation of the neighborhood. Under a widening of this policy, the blighted districts would soon disappear and in their places would be modern, sanitary habitations for the conservative and middle-class citizenship. In addition, buildings of this character will yield a reasonable rental on property now practically valueless.

It is a matter of comment why wealthy St. Louisans will build palaces in the near vicinity of the malodorous River des Peres, abandoning beautiful sites on the bluffs once occupied by the old families of the city. In Boston, Philadelphia and along Fifth avenue, New York, are found the homes of many of the best people there, and the fact that they live in localities where business and apartments have entered does not seem to have altered their desire to live close to the center of things.

GROCER FIRM LEASES 8TH STREET BUILDING

A. Moll Company Expects to Be in New Quarters by June 1.

The A. Moll Grocer Co. has leased the five-story building at 411-13-15 North Eighth street, through the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co.

The Moll Grocer Co. started in business in 1858 under the name of Heidsieck & Moll, on Third street between Market and Chestnut, and in 1861 moved to 620 Franklin avenue. In 1863 Heidsieck retired from the business and A. Moll became sole proprietor. In about 1870 Moll purchased the ground at 614 Fanklin avenue and erected a three-story building, which is still used in his business. The business grew until in 1880 the present four-story and basement building at 616-18 Franklin avenue, was erected.

In 1893 the company was incorporated as A. Moll Grocer Co., A. Moll being elected president, Louis Idler vice president and K. V. Moll secretary.

The new location will afford about double the floor space the company now has. Extensive alterations will be made to the building and it is the intention of the grocery firm to get into their new quarters June 1.

The Eighth street property is owned by Geo. T. Riddle Real Estate Co.

SILVER COMPANY LEASES THIRD FLOOR OF COMPTON BUILDING

The Maschmeyer-Richards Silver Co. has leased the third floor of the Compton Building, at Seventh and Locust streets. This firm opened in a small way in the Carleton Building in 1906 and its new quarters contain 10,000 square feet of space. The lease was effected by Cornet & Zeibig, who have the management of the Compton Building, formerly the Mercantile Club, which has been remodeled at a large outlay.

WEEK'S SALES BY ONE FIRM TOTAL MORE THAN $100,000

Kommers, Johnson & Johnson report having sold more than $100,000 worth of property during the past week. The sales include 22 lots in Bircher Heights, scores of lots in Columbus Park and a number of lots in Blakemore. These additions are located near the industrial district on the north side of Natural Bridge road.

This company also sold several business sites in that district.

Sign Company Leases Building.

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports having leased the two-story factory building at 4024-26 Easton avenue for the Schaefer W. and E. Corp. to the General Advertising Sign Co. The building has a floor space of 30,000 square feet. Edward H. Riesmeyer is president of the new company, and M. C. Fritschle vice president and general manager.

Joins Father in Realty Business.

John A. Reardon has joined his father, John J. Reardon, in the real estate business. He was formerly with the purchasing department of the Wabash Railway Co.

MATERNE MANUFACTURING CO. BUYS SITE FOR $67,000

Acquires Christopher-Simpson Iron Co. Plant at Park Avenue and Eighth Street.

The Materne Manufacturing Co. has purchased the structural iron plant and site, 120x365 feet, at the northeast corner of Park avenue and Eighth street from the Christopher-Simpson Iron Co., for $67,000. The sale was effected by the Switch Property Department of the Mercantile Trust Co.

The purchaser now operates a plant at Eighteenth and Gratiot streets. It will take possession of its new plant about July 1, when the Christopher-Simpson's new plant, being erected on the 35-acre site in Maplewood at Big Bend road and Missouri Pacific Tracks, at a cost of $500,000, will be completed.

The Eighth and Gratiot street plant is housed in a one-story building with high clearings.

BECK REALTY DEVELOPMENT CO. ENTERTAINS STAFF AT DINNER

The Beck Realty Development Co., with offices in the Carleton building, celebrated Friday night with a banquet at the American Hotel, at which about 60 of its salesmen and friends were present. The principal speakers were Mayor Kiel and Paul Brown, editor of America at Work.

A feature of the evening was the presentation of prizes awarded to salesmen, which was done by Mayor Kiel.

The concern, which was recently organized and which is composed of C. W. Beck and S. C. Hardin, have already sold more than $600,000 worth of property, according to its claims.

Each building contains 10 rooms. The sale price was about $30,000.

20-ACRE SITE BOUGHT FOR $500,000 PLANT

Koken Barber Supply Co. Plans Big Factory at Morganford Road and Oakhill R. R.

The Koken Barber Supply Co. is having plans made for the erection on the east side of Morganford road, at its intersection with the Oakhill railroad, of a factory for its wares to cost $500,000.

The site, comprising 20 acres, was purchased yesterday, R. J. Dyas representing the Koken company and Cornet & Zeibig, agents for the former owners of the land, which is situated just east of the plant of the Parker-Russell Mining and Manufacturing Co., at 3300 Morganford road.

The Koken company has a plant at Sidney street and Texas avenue, which was a great source of supply for the army during the war.

UNITED DRUG CO. 'BABY NOTES' FINDING A READY MARKET

Sales of the "baby notes" of $100 denomination, backed by first mortgage of $1,7500,000 on the extensive plant being erected by the United Drug Co. at King's highway and San Francisco avenue, are finding a ready market, according to J. B. Moberly, real estate loan officer of the Mercantile Trust Co., which has underwritten the issue. The notes are also in $500 denomination. All yield 6 per cent per annum. The plant is on a site embracing 14.6 avres.

The notes mature annually on Aug. 15, from 1920 to 1933, thereby liquidating the entire indebtedness in 14 years. The total issue is $1,750,000, secured by property worth $3,000,000 and in a district where ground is doubling and trebling in value. The notes are offered at par and accrued interest, and will be delivered to any postoffice, at the risk of the Mercantile Trust Co.

Each apartment will contain eight rooms and two baths, including sun parlers. CITY REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

Build, or Let Us Build for You in Beautiful Maryland Terrace
(Adjoining Washington University Campus)

Have your architect design a house to suit you—your taste. We will build it for you, or you can select your homesite and build it yourself.

Maryland Terrace is without doubt the most pretentious and the most beautiful residence park ever developed in the city. It contains upwards of 100 acres, every lot is 190 to 220 feet deep, facing wide boulevards, with deep building lines holding the houses well back from the streets.

In Maryland Terrace there can be no congestion—no crowding. Every home is different, brick and stucco residences are artistically intermingled.

Invest Your Surplus Money in Maryland Terrace—

Let the Tremendous Growth of the City Make Profits for You

There is an alarming scarcity of high-grade residence property in the Washington University district. Big profits are being made by investors who are watching the city's growth.

$50 a front foot will be made immediately on every Maryland Terrace lot, so great is the demand for this property and so alarmingly short is this class of homesites.

Phone or Come to the Office for Interesting Illustrated Circular

If you are ready to build, let us tell you about this property, show you plans, tell you what your house will cost and how you can finance it.

Perhaps one of the houses we are now building in Maryland Terrace will suit you. Drive to the property and see the Maryland Terrace homes we have for sale.

Drive to Pennsylvania Av., the west boundary of the campus, then west on either Maryland or Westmoreland Drives. University car direct to property. Phone Olive 535, or Central 337.

SENSATIONAL PROFITS! OPENING MOTOR HEIGHTS!

—the Heart, the Most Centrally Located Property in That Tremendous Industrial District

Nearly FIFTY (50) of the BIGGEST MANUFACTURING PLANTS, employing tens and tens of thousands of people, are to the left and in front of Motor Heights. Think of it! Nearly fifty plants, and soon there will be more than fifty, are in walking distance!

Motor Heights is the SENSATION of the market. It was purchased for SPOT CASH at a very low figure. It is beautifully laid out, and priced FAR BELOW the present market prices.

Motor Heights business property, Motor Heights residence property, Motor Heights apartment house property COMMAND, OVERLOOK and DOMINATE this entire MANUFACTURING AND INDUSTRIAL DISTRICT.

Here a city the size of Little Rock is being built, and MOTOR HEIGHTS, with its COMMAND of the important approaches, is the HEART AND CENTER.

St. Louis will almost double in population the coming few years. Under no circumstances NEGLECT buying property like MOTOR HEIGHTS. Buy from The Davis Realty Development Company, so that you can have the full advantage of its advice, its resources.

OUR ADVICE TO YOU TODAY is to BUY EVERY LOT you can possibly carry in MOTOR HEIGHTS. Your profits will be quick—certain. It is property you will be glad to own.

Come to the office—or phone for circular. Really know the big profits you can make now in Motor Heights. It costs nothing to investigate. Phone today and circular will be mailed promptly, in time for you to make selection of lots in case you have the money to invest.

To Customers and Friends:

We must apologize for being utterly unable to first submit MOTOR HEIGHTS to you. We had intended all along to bring this wonderful investment first to your attention, letting you first select the lots you wanted at the present low opening prices, and then make the public offering of the property.

But we find we haven't the facilities to do this. There is such a demand for the properties of the Company, and the Sales Department is so busy, we simply can't get around to our nine hundred customers.

We do want you to get first call on Motor Heights. And you can, if you will come to the office this week and look over the plats. We will appreciate this co-operation on your part. You will make big profits on Motor Heights, and our overtaxed Sales Department will be better able to do its work.

Come in this week—see the plats. You have already dealt with the Company. You know how we take care of customers. You also know that no salesman can remain with the Company who would dare misrepresent.

You therefore know that when we say MOTOR HEIGHTS is the Sensation of the year, IT IS SO. We ask you to buy every lot you can NOW in MOTOR HEIGHTS.

THE DAVIS REALTY DEVELOPMENT COMPANY,
By EVERETT DAVIS, President.

PHONE FOR MOTOR HEIGHTS CIRCULAR

You should have it. You may want to mail it to out-of-town friends. It is interesting, instructive.

Phone today and the circular will be mailed to you.

You can phone Olive 535, or Olive 536, or Central 537. When you receive the circular, study it carefully, for it means profits.

There can be only one excuse for failing to make profits in Motor Heights, and that is YOU HAVEN'T GOT THE MONEY. When you get the circular and see the property—you will know the profits are there.

If you have $200 or more cash, or if you can pay all cash, buy Motor Heights property.

Lots are from $700 up. Five per cent is allowed for cash, and a proportionate discount is allowed for half cash.

DON'T FAIL TO PHONE TODAY FOR CIRCULAR. While you are waiting others are acting and making money. You know the city is growing—you know those big factories are being built. Let the growth of this INDUSTRIAL DISTRICT make PROFITS FOR YOU.

"History Repeats Itself. As the Civil War made Chicago, so the war just ending is making St. Louis. Twenty-five years after the war's end Chicago was the second city of the United States. It seems wholly reasonable to suppose that twenty-five years after the ending of the present war that position will be occupied by St. Louis." Taken from that brilliant magazine, "America at Work," which every St. Louisan should subscribe for and read. It is edited by Paul Brown, whom everybody knows for his vision and clear thinking.

St. Louis is awakening to its great opportunities. It is breaking all records for growth and expansion. Almost every day's paper tells of some new industry locating here. No American city is attracting the industries St. Louis is, and no other large city will grow as rapidly, now that the war is over, and the entire world is calling on St. Louis and St. Louis' trade territory for everything that can be made, mined and grown.

If you knew that you could make $200, $500 or $1000 PROFIT you would not hesitate to take the Cass avenue car and ride to Belt avenue (5600 west), or drive to Belt and St. Louis avenues (5600 west) today. Rain or shine, you would come. This profit is here for you. And, rain or shine, you should come today and see for yourself.

COME—SEE MOTOR HEIGHTS. Be the first to take advantage of the low opening prices. See the INDUSTRIAL DISTRICT from the high elevation of MOTOR HEIGHTS.

Ladies—you, too, are invited to come whether it is raining or shining. You can make this profit if you have the money and the NERVE TO BACK YOUR JUDGMENT. Some people are failing to make PROFITS today out of good St. Louis real estate SIMPLY DUE TO THE FACT THAT THEIR NERVE IS NOT AS GOOD AS THEIR JUDGMENT. Back your JUDGMENT on MOTOR HEIGHTS with your NERVE. Let St. Louis' enormous growth make profits for you. Don't fail to get the circular.

BIG MONEY IN EARLY TABLE GRAPES
SMALL INVESTMENT—HEAVY YIELDS
HIGH PRICES—QUICK RETURNS.

At Santa Rosa, Florida, they are raising some of the finest Early Table Grapes in the world—big, rich, luscious grapes of exceptional flavor. They are ripe and ready for market before similar grapes raised in California, therefore, they command top notch prices. In 1919 the same kind of grapes sold for 20c per pound wholesale. It is conservatively estimated that a fully developed vineyard such as are grown at Santa Rosa will yield more than 8000 pounds of grapes per acre, which at 20c per pound amounts to $1600. These grapes begin to bear the second year and will last practically a lifetime. Demand unlimited. Prohibition will not affect this industry. No special skill or experience required. Grape failures very rare. Safest, most secure and profitable investment we know of.

Santa Rosa is an ideal place to live. Finest all-the-year-round climate in United States. Salt water on two sides. Sunstrokes unknown. Very healthful spot. Good, pure drinking water. Best soil in Florida. Two and three crops per year. Plenty of rainfall. Irrigation unnecessary. Good schools, churches, stores, hotel and northern people—no negroes. Superb boating, bathing, fishing and hunting. Lumber at wholesale prices. Land prices still low and good 10-acre tracts available for those who act quick. Beautiful illustrated literature, maps, etc., sent free.

Also 40-acre tracts and up for General Farming, Stock Raising, etc., and Beautiful Winter Home Lots with Water Frontage. Address Santa Rosa Plantation Co., 1067, 537 S. Dearborn st., Chicago. (c99)

LAND—Brewster County (Tex.) land sacrificed, 640 acres, $640; buyer to assume $1.10 acre due State in 40 years, but can pay any time; unimproved grass land. As State Geologist declares this "oil land," State retains one-sixteenth oil royalty; buyer gets 15-16ths; am invalid, need some money now, reason for sacrifice, but am keeping enough to make me rich if big oil strike comes, as seems likely. Northern oil men have leased most of county. One company has 130,000 acres. My land surrounded by leases. Over 40 derricks being erected; some already drilling. Over 50 geologists working county declare it Pennsylvania formation, like that producing other big Texas oil fields. If you want this, have your bank wire me you've put up $50 guarantee you are able and willing to carry out contract and will send them perfect abstract and warranty deed, with draft attached for $640, for examination. Sold tract offered last Sunday to Illinois man sight unseen, by wire. Land sells there $2 to $5 acre; trades sight unseen for four times price asked. Development caused by speculators buying all up makes land advance monthly. F. Osborne, Athens, Tex.

We have for sale in Brewster County, Tex., and other counties 5 year oil leases; also farm in Palopinto County, near oil and also 15,000-acre ranch in Crockett and Upton counties to trade for city property. Texas Land & Leasing Co., 719 Title Guaranty Bldg., 7th and Chestnut.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

F. W. K.—The N-C 4 left St. Louis Nov. 22, 1919, for Hannibal.

MRS. L. B.—Almost any shoe shining parlor can clean the light tops of your shoes.

H. C. H.—A nickel 1 cent piece dated 1858, with a flying eagle is worth from 1c to 5c.

E. ROBERT.—No, the fact that you have never voted would not disqualify you for jury service.

AN ANXIOUS MAN.—Insanity arising after marriage is not a ground for divorce in Missouri.

JANE H.—You must muzzle your dog whenever the Health Department orders that they wear muzzles.

J. E. F.—If you wish to find out whether the case went through the Probate Court ask the Clerk of that court.

M. M. S.—We do not give business addresses in this column. You could probably find out upon inquiry.

MRS. McC.—If you will saturate the perspiration stain in your waist with ammonia it will probably disappear.

G. R.—The City Ordinances prohibit the raising of hogs within the city limits. This includes Walnut Park.

O. H.—Apply to the Army Recruiting Station, Customs House, 9th and Olive, for information regarding your bonus.

J. R.—You had better return the phonograph, telling them that you understood the cash price was $75.50, and ask them to return your check.

E. C. E.—A 50-cent piece of 1831 is worth from 50c to 55c. We do not know how many were minted or how many are in circulation at the present time.

MRS. N. B. N.—Yes, you are legally married under that name. Under the circumstances your husband cannot get a divorce from you without paying alimony.

PIEDMONT.—If the owner of a Liberty Bond dies leaving two sisters and a brother, the one sister cannot take possession of the bond or sell it without the consent of the others.

INQUIRER.—If the tenants' month began on the 15th the notice to vacate should have been served (that is received) before that day. Notice received on the 15th would not be good.

B. O. P.—You cannot inherit a heart murmur. It is generally caused by diseased valves. You cannot outgrow it, if it is from diseased valves, but many people live long lives with such valves and die without knowing they had them.

R. A. J.—Knowingly receiving stolen property is an offense punishable by the same penalty as the theft. The owner can recover the goods.

JANE.—If your father gave you the furniture for a wedding present and you can prove the gift and are in possession you would not have to divide with your sisters and brothers on your father's death.

M. S.—If the note was executed by you without consideration, but solely as an accommodation, and if this was known to the bank and to the "indorser," you are not liable on the note, since it has not been negotiated. You had better consult a lawyer or the Municipal Legal Aid Bureau.

J. J.—If the property is in both the husband's and wife's names it cannot be taken for the husband's debts while the wife lives, and not after her death if she lives longer than her husband. It would cost about $5 or $10 to have a deed put in the wife's name. Any lawyer can draw the deed.

NEW YORK.—If you intend to have a mail order business selling formulae you will need a license. The formulae may be copied from a copyright book only if you own the copyright or have permission from the owner. State income tax returns are due March 1. The blanks are obtainable at the City Hall. The Federal returns are due March 15. Blanks are obtainable at the Customs House, Ninth and Olive.

CHARLES T. GRANBY.—The Pari-mutuel machines at race tracks might be compared to cash registers which show at any time the number of tickets sold or the amount of money wagered on all the horses. As the bets are placed the money is registered by the attendant. At the end of the race the money wagered, minus the percentage which goes to the "house" is divided among the winning tickets. Thus the odds paid depends on the amount of money wagered. One can bet as much as one wants.

ARTISTIC AND SCIENTIFIC.—The words of the Miserere d' Un Alma, from Verdi's Il Trovatore, are:

Miserere, the deathword of the dying!
There's no return from whence his spirit flying!
Miserere! to heav'n for pity calling,
His soul to save from punishment appalling!
That sound and that praying,
So sadly betraying,
In terrible accents, A soul must depart!
My breath is impeding, My warm blood receding,
From out of my veins, and from out of my heart,
From out of my veins out of my heart!
Alas! that death as ever, Lingers IN coming nigh,
When one desires, when one desires but to die!
Leonora, Adieu, Leonora, Adieu.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be answered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

UNHAPPY.—We do not know of anything to suggest.

A. Z.—If there are no germs it is likely that the trouble is in the gland.

E. H.—We would advise you to let your eyelashes alone. Dyeing hair always brings regret.

PINKY.—This numbness denotes a nerve disturbance. Have your nose, ears and teeth examined.

GEO. MUSICK.—If this preparation is still on the market some wholesale druggist could tell you where to get it.

AN INVALID.—If you will put cocoanut oil on your hair you will be able to get the snarls and tangles out very much easier.

MARIE.—The morphine habit is difficult to cure, yet cures that are permanent undoubtedly occur. In any event association could ndt endanger you.

E. W.—There is no preparation that you could use that would reduce your nose to its normal size. Any relief that might be given would have to be surgical.

MANY, MANY THANKS.—These dark spots on your face require for removal a careful study of the exciting and predisposing causes. Cases of this character should be treated by a dermatologist.

READER.—Hodgkin's (not Hodgens) disease, is an anemia, accompanied by enlargement of the lymphatic glands, involvement of the spleen and other glandular organs, but it is not associated with an increase in the white blood corpuscles. The cause is not definitely known. Depressing influences of all kinds are believed to favor it. Scrofula has sometimes preceded it. It is not contagious. There is no difference between a contusion and a bruise.

We pray for the redemption of their souls.
Most sorrowfully mourned by the father.
JOHN H. RHEINLANDER, 2636A Lafayette.

In memory of our devoted wife and mother, Emma Boge-Lenz (nee Meyer), who departed this life one year ago March 8, 1919.

A loving mother, true and kind;
No friend like her on earth we'll find.
God called her home—it was his will—
But in our hearts she lingers still.
For all of us, she did her best;
God grant her eternal rest.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN. (c)

In loving memory of P. Knichel, who died March 9, 1918.

Two years have gone since you passed away.
We saw you suffer, heard your sighs,
With aching hearts and weeping eyes;
We saw you sinking hour by hour,
Yet could not stay Death's awful power.
But now he calmly sleeps at last.
All pains, all aches, all suffering past.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Katherine Bringman, who departed this life one year ago, March 6, 1919:

Rest in peace, thy cares are ended.
Rest in peace, thy work is done.
Thou art gone where those who love you
Soon are coming, one by one.

Sadly missed by daughters,
MRS. IDA WILLMAN AND MRS. CLARA HUELSEWEDE.

In loving memory of our dear baby, Dorothey Hoehle, who passed away March 3, 1919.

Another little lamb has gone
To dwell with him who gave;
Another little darling girl
Is sheltered in the grave.
God needed one more angel
Amidst his shining band,
So he bent his loving smile
And clasped our darling's hand.

Sadly missed by
PARENTS AND SISTERS. (c)

In loving memory of our darling baby, Walter Housman Jr., whom the Lord called home one year ago, March 18, 1919, aged 6 years 8 days:

A bud the great gardener gave us,
A pure and loving child.
He gave to our keeping
To cherish undefiled.
Just as the bud was opened
To the glory of the day,
Down came our Heavenly Father
and took our darling away.

Sadly missed by a heart-broken
MOTHER AND FATHER.

In memory of my dear husband, Adlis E. Daugherty, who died suddenly March 2, 1919.

Sadness will come o'er me,
Tears of silence often flow,
For memory keeps you ever near me,
Though you died just one year ago.
I could not realize or understand
When the message came saying you were dead.
But God who loves you best,
Has taken you home to rest.

Sadly missed by
WIFE, CHILDREN, FATHER AND SISTER

In memory of our dear daughter, Minnie Stahl, who died March 9, 1919.

Silently the shades of evening
Gather round our lonely door.
Silently they bring before us
The dear face we see no more.
So often we go to her grave,
Lingering there, and trying to be brave!
But, oh! 'tis hard to bear,
To go away, and leave her there.

Sadly missed by her parents,
MR. AND MRS. JOHN STAHL.

In memory of our darling baby, Dorothy Grab, who departed this life three years ago, March 3, 1917.

A bud the Gardener gave us,
A pure and loving child;
He gave unto our keeping,
To cherish undefiled.
Just as the bud was opened
To the glory of the day,
Down came the Heavenly Father
And took our darling baby away.

Sadly missed by Parents, Brother, and all who loved her.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear son and brother, William H. Bowen, who departed this life March 3, 1919:

One year has passed; sad and broken-hearted are we all;
We little thought that on that day that our dear brother would pass away.
We could not realize what it meant,
When the message came that he was dead.
Rest in peace, thy work is done;
You are gone where those who loved you soon are coming one by one.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER, BROTHERS, SISTERS AND NIECES.

In loving memory of Sylvia Mason, who died March 2, 1917:

Her chair is still by the window,
Her picture is on the wall,
And we seem to hear the echo
Of her voice through room and hall.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, CHILDREN AND PARENTS.

In memory of Mrs. Philopine Loeblein.

'Twas just one year ago.
Since the hour you passed away,
The time you spend on earth in pain
Can never come to you again.
'Twas very hard to part with you,
But God knew what was best to do;
You did your part and did it well.
So He took you where the angels dwell.
Although you've gone and a place in heaven you've filled,
Your memory will always linger and cling to us still.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

In loving remembrance of my dearly beloved husband and our dear father, August V. Merkel, who departed from us two years ago, March 12, 1918.

Surrounded by friends, I am lonesome,
In the midst of my pleasures I am blue,
A smile on my face, still a heartache,
Aching and longing for you.
There are griefs that cannot find comfort,
And wounds that cannot be healed,
There are sorrows so deep in the human heart,
They cannot be half revealed.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of my dear children, Elizabeth Buskuehl, who died March 2, 1919, and Clara Dameris, who died March 4, 1919.

In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lie the ones I love most dearly,
In their silent, lonely graves.
Peaceful be your sleep, dear Elizabeth and Clara.
It is sweet to breath your names.
In life I loved you both so dearly;
In death I do the same.

Sadly missed by your devoted
MOTHER. (c)

In loving remembrance of my darling babies, Lillian L. Forster, who died March 3, 1915, and Melba Forster, who died Jan. 13, 1916.

In silence unseen I mourn my loved ones, and dwell on the memory of joys that have been.
Many days of happiness passed and vanished; nothing left but their sweet memory to remember all through life.
Unknown and forgotten by some they may be, But the grave that contains them is sacred to me.

Sadly missed by their mother,
MRS. CATHRYN JOHN.

In loving remembrance of our dear daughter, sister and aunt, Louisa Winter, who departed this life one year ago, March 7, 1919.

In her lonely grave she's sleeping,
As the shadows onward fall;
And our lonely hearts are weeping;
No more her presence can we call.
Do not ask us if we miss her;
Oh there's such a vacant place.
Oft we think we hear her footsteps,
Or we see her smiling face.
Not gone from memory,
Not gone from love,
But gone to a fatherly home above.

Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTER MARY AND NIECE FLORENCE, AND THOSE WHO LOVED HER. (c)

In loving remembrance of Fred Vermeersch, who departed this life one year ago, March 9, 1919.

We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own;
One year has passed away,
We grieved when he departed;
Time was too short to say farewell
To those he knew and loved so well.
We miss his coming footsteps,
We miss him everywhere.
Home is not what it used to be,
Since he is not here.

Sadly missed by his WIFE, MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHERS

In loving memory of our dear daughter, sister, grandchild and niece, Henrietta Reifschneider, who departed this life March 9, 1919:

Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow,
Love shall always keep you near us,
Though you were called one year ago.
Never shall you be forgotten, never from our memory fade.
Our loving hearts always linger around the grave where you are laid.

Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTER, GRANDMOTHER AND AUNTS.

In memory of our dearly beloved brother, Louis E. Browne, who departed this life suddenly at Tacoma, Wash., March 8, 1918:

Days of sadness still come over me,
Tears of silence often cloud,
For memory keeps you near me,
Though you died two years ago.
I could not realize or understand
When the message came saying you were dead.
But God, who loved you best,
Has taken you home to rest.

Sadly missed by sister, MRS. L. E. WHITE; son, ELMER J. BROWNE, Youngstown, O., and nephew, LOUIS E. HENNESSY. (c)

In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, Martha Wieners, whom the Lord called home five years ago, March 9, 1915:

A bud the great gardener gave us—
A pure and loving child.
He gave to our keeping
To cherish, undefiled.
Just as the bud was open
To the glory of the day,
Down came our Heavenly Father
And took our darling girl away.

Sadly missed by parents and brother and all those who loved her.
MR. AND MRS. HUGO WIENERS, 2704 South Tenth street. (c)

In loving memory of our darling daughter, Hilda May Scheetz, who departed this life one year ago today, March 6, 1919:

In Zion softly sleeping
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly
In her silent, lonely grave.
Peaceful be your sleep, dear Hilda,
It is sweet to breathe your name.
In life we loved you most dearly,
In death we do the same.
Just one year ago you left us;
How we miss you, Hilda, dear.
Days of sadness oft come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow;
Love shall always keep you near us
Though you left us, Hilda,
Just one year ago today.

Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER AND SISTER and all those that loved her.

When the trumpet calls in the early morn,
And the sea gives up its dead,
And the graves ope' up their earthly doors,
And the sun shines bright and red.
When we all shall rise, when we hear the call,
In the morning sweet and clear,
I will look for the friends I used to know,
And I'll soon find you, Lanphear.
When they look for those who bear the cross,
Of the ailing in this land,
Who worked with brain and heart and soul,
With a free and offered hand—
Then the Kansas City Hospital,
Where you walked the halls and wards,
Will come up for recognition, and ask for its rewards.
Those operations, thirty-two, and only two who paid,
They're spread on record now, and they were careful made,
Will show were done by surgeon who had courage and no fear.
Then the Angel smiles and says:
"I know that's you, Lanphear."

FRANK WISE GOODELL, M. D. Add. U. M. S. C.

We believe that there are many young women (some married) with business inclinations staying at home who would like the chance to help out on such occasion for the business experience they would get from this experiment. Such persons would be welcome in this Anniversary whether they have had previous experience or not, and will be given several days' training, with pay, in the store's salesmanship school, preparatory to the sale. You can work short hours from 10 to 4 or all day, as you please, under the most pleasant surroundings. Apply Supt. of Employment.

10 Reasons Why

YOU SHOULD PURCHASE A SLIGHTLY USED AUTOMOBILE FROM

Huber-Wilson Motor Car Co.

1—You will not see our display at the Used Car Show, as space is not available to properly exhibit our highly desirable line.

2—We specialize in the resale of current model standard automobiles, selling only such cars as will pass our rigid exaction as to condition.

3—We cannot afford and will not attempt to resell an automobile that will not bear rigid inspection by someone of your own selection, qualified to pass expert judgment.

4—We quote prices which cannot be equaled on the class of automobiles we merchandise, due to the prevailing high prices of new automobiles.

5—You do not pay an excess price for any car you buy from us in order to make up for poor judgment on trade in allowance on new cars.

6—Remember, we are not obliged to make heavy allowances on exchange cars. Advantageous purchases for cash, with proven experience, enables us to offer the greatest values at all times.

7—Our motto: "Volume sales and small profit."

8—Our resources enable us to offer an attractive easy payment plan, whereupon, paying a small deposit down, the balance is distributed over monthly payments, at your convenience.

9—A close inspection of our stock—a thorough investigation of our merchandising policy—and you will be convinced.

10—Don't fail to visit all used car displays during coming week; then see us for comparison and let us show you from $100 to $400.

We have on hand at the present time the best and most desirable line of used cars in the city of St. Louis, consisting of coupes, cabriolets, roadsters, sedans, touring cars, five and seven passenger and light commercial cars. The latest models and guaranteed as represented.

Second Floor Used Car Sales Show

As leaders in the Used Car field, we take particlar pride in the fact that we have done and are doing more to place the Used Car in its proper commercial position. Under our leadership the time has arrived, in so far as we are concerned, when the customer may select his Used Car with the same confidence in the dealer and in the quality of the merchandise, as he has in choosing a new car at the necessarily higher price.

We appreciate the confidence shown in us by thousands of customers in St. Louis and surrounding territory, and we are earnestly striving to merit the continued patronage of old friends and the acquisition of new ones.

A DIFFERENT KIND OF A USED CAR HOUSE

Different—in many ways. Not content that a car merely looks good—it must run good. Selling you precisely the car you want, and come to get. Seeing to it that our service to you goes beyond the mere sale. And, last, but not least, absolutely guaranteeing to you the best value in St. Louis for the car you buy from us, quality considered.

We want you to link up the name of with dependability—to know this as a different kind of a used car house. Will you come and see?

QUALITY NEWELL

Our Used Cars Are Correctly Priced

As distributor of the Paige and Stearns we devote all our energies to the sale of new cars, but at times conditions necessitate our acceptance of used cars as part payment on new ones.

In such cases we allow no false values, but appraise the used cars at their actual worth, as it would otherwise mean loss of profit to us, when we came to resell the used car.

For our time can be used to better advantage in selling new cars, so we allow on the used cars only what we know we can get for them. That is why we usually have so few on hand.

In selling used cars we pursue the same safe policy, making no attempt to inflate the resale price, as the car represents to us only the amount we allowed on it. For this reason any used car purchased from us is invariably good value for the price.

WHEN THE CAMERA TELLS A PRETTY FIB

This photograph, which attempts to visualize the prehistoric days when an unknown race dwelt in what is now the new Zion National Park, Utah, is an example of ultra-modern illustrative art. The model posed in Los Angeles while the background is a section of the Utah wonderland. The two separate pictures are then so cleverly imposed, one upon the other, that when re-photographed, the combination cannot be detected.

How I Raised My Earnings From $30 to $1000 a Week

The Story of a Young Man's Remarkable Rise, as Told by Himself

THREE years ago I was earning $30 per week. With a wife and two children to support it was a constant struggle to make both ends meet. We saved very little, and that only by sacrificing things we really needed. Today my earnings average a thousand dollars weekly. I own two automobiles. My children go to private schools. I have just purchased, for cash, a $25,000 home. I go hunting, fishing, motoring, traveling, whenever I care to, and I do less work than ever before.

What I have done, anyone can do—for I am only an average man. I have never gone to college, my education is limited, and I am not "brilliant" by any means. I personally know at least a hundred men who are better business men than I, who are better educated, who are better informed on hundreds of subjects, and who have much better ideas than I ever had. Yet not one of them approaches my earnings. I mention this merely to show that earning capacity is not governed by the extent of a man's education and to convince my readers that there is only one reason for my success—a reason I will give herein.

One day, a few years ago, I began to "take stock" of myself. I found that, like most other men, I had energy, ambition, determination. Yet in spite of these assets, for some reason or other I drifted along without getting anywhere. My lack of education bothered me, and I had thought seriously of making further sacrifices in order to better equip myself to earn more. Then I read somewhere that but few millionaires ever went to college. Edison, Rockefeller, Hill, Schwab, Carnegie—not one of them had any more schooling than I had.

One day something happened that woke me up to what was wrong with me. It was necessary for me to make a decision on a matter which was of no great consequence. I knew in my heart what was the right thing to do, but something held me back. I said one thing, then another; I decided one way, then another. I couldn't for the life of me make the decision I knew was right.

I lay awake most of that night thinking about the matter—not because it was of any great importance to discover my- because I was beginning to discover myself. Along towards dawn I resolved to try an experiment. I decided to cultivate my will power, believing that if I did this I would not hesitate about making decisions—that when I had an idea I would have sufficient confidence in myself to put it "over"—that I would not be "afraid" of myself, of things or of others. I felt that if I could smash my ideas across I would soon make my presence felt. I knew that heretofore I had always begged for success—had always stood, hat in hand, depending on others to "give" me the things I desired. In short, I was controlled by the will of others. Henceforth, I determined to have a strong will of my own—to demand and command what I wanted.

But how shall I begin? What shall I do first? It was easy enough for me to determine to do things—I had "determined" many times before. But this was a question of will power, and I made up my mind that the first step was to muster up enough of my own will power to stick to and carry ou tmy determination.

With this new purpose in mind I applied myself to finding out something more about will power. I was sure that other men must have studied the subject, and the result of their experience would doubtless be of great value to me in understanding the workings of my own will. So, with a directness of purpose that I had scarcely known before, I began my search.

The results at first were discouraging. While a good deal had been written about the memory and other faculties of the brain, I could find nothing that offered any help to me in acquiring the new power that I had hoped might be possible.

But a little later in my investigation I encountered the works of Prof. Frank Channing Haddock. To my amazement and delight I discovered that this eminent scientist, whose name ranks with James, Bergson and Boyce, had just completed the most thorough and constructive study of will power ever made. I was astonished to read his statement, "The will is just as susceptible to development as the muscles of the body!" My question was answered! Eagerly I read further—how Dr. Haddock had devoted twenty years to this study—how he had so completely mastered it that he was actually able to set down the very exercise by which anyone could develop the will, making it a bigger, stronger force each day, simply through an easy, progressive course of training.

It is almost needless to say that I at once began to practice the exercises formulated by Dr. Haddock. And I need not recount the extraordinary results that I obtained almost from the first day. I have already indicated the success that my developed power of will has made for me.

But it may be thought that my case is exceptional. Let me again assure you that I am but an average man, with no super-developed powers, save that of my will. And to further prove my contention, let me cite one or two instances I have since come across, which seem to show conclusively that an indomitable will can be developed by anyone.

One case that comes to my mind is that of a young man who worked in a big factory. He was bright and willing, but seemed to get nowhere. Finally he took up the study of will training, at the suggestion of Mr. W. M. Taylor, the noted efficiency expert, and in less than a year his salary was increased 800%. Then there is the case of C. D. Van Vechten, General Agent of the Northwestern Life Insurance Company, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Just a short time after receiving the methods in will development suggested by Prof. Haddock, he felt that they would be worth from $3000 to $30,000 to him.

Another man, Dr. H. D. Ferguson, residing in Hot Springs, Ark., increased his earnings from $40 a week to $150 a week in a remarkably short space of time after he began the study of will training. These are but a few—there are many other equally amazing examples which I personally know about. And aside from the financial gain, this training has enabled thousands to overcome drink and other vices almost overnight—has helped overcome sickness and nervousness—has transformed unhappy, envious, discontented people into dominating personalities filled with the joy of living.

Prof. Haddock's lessons, rules and exercises in will training have recently been compiled and published in book form by the Pelton Publishing Co., of Meriden, Conn. Mr. Pelton has authorized me to say that any reader who cares to examine the book may do so without sending any money in advance. In other words, if after a week's reading you do not feel that this book is worth $3.50, the sum asked, return it and you will owe nothing. When you receive your copy for examination I suggest that you first read the articles on: the law of great thinking; how to develop analytical power; how to perfectly concentrate on any subject; how to guard against errors in thought; how to drive from the mind unwelcome thoughts; how to develop fearlessness; how to use the mind in sickness; how to acquire a dominating personality.

Some few doubters will scoff at the idea of will power being the fountainhead of wealth, position and everything we are striving for, and some may say that no mere book can teach the development of the will. But the great mass of intelligent men and women will at least investigate for themselves by sending for the book at the publisher's risk. I am sure that any book that has done for me—and for thousands of others—what "Power of Will" has done—is well worth investigating. It is interesting to note that among the 400,000 owners who have read, used and praised "Power of Will" are such prominent men as Supreme Court Justice Parker; Wu Ting Fang, Ex-U. S. Chinese Ambassador; Gov. McKelvie, of Nebraska; Assistant Postmaster General Britt; General Manager Christeson, of Wells-Fargo Express Co.; E. St. Elmo Lewis; Senator Arthur Capper; E. L. Meredith, Secy. of Agriculture, and thousands of others.

As a first step in will training, I will suggest immediate action in this matter before you. It is not even necessary to write a letter. Use the form below, if you prefer, addressing it to the Pelton Publishing Company, 134-F Wilcox Block, Meriden, Conn., and the book will come by return mail. This one act may mean the turning point of your life, as it has meant to me and to so many others.

PELTON PUBLISHING COMPANY,
134-F Wilcox Block, Meriden, Conn.

I will examine a copy of "Power of Will" at your risk. I agree to remit $3.50 or remail the Book in 5 days.

SO THIS IS HAVANA!!

Cuban capital is not overflowing with thirsty Americans despite popular belief — But the island is glutted with prosperity, due to sugar prices, and gambling has reached unheard of heights — Per capita wealth four times that of this country and there is no income tax -o- -o- -o-

By KARL K. KITCHEN.

THE popular impression that Havana is the Mecca of the "Liquorly Disappointed" of our once land-of-the-free is incorrect. The Cuban capital is not crowded with Americans—drunk or sober. It is a "Rumhounds' Paradise," but comparatively few of my fellow citizens have knocked at its portals.

Havana, let it be known, is suffering from too much advertising. For weeks everyone has read about the enormous crowds which are flocking there, the swamped condition of the Passport Bureau and the high hotel rates. I know, because I was almost persuaded to go to Palm Beach because Havana was too crowded.

The hotel men of the Cuban capital have damaged their season by over-advertising it. In their anxiety to attract Americans they have overplayed their hands, with the result that more Americans have been deterred from visiting Cuba than have actually crossed over there.

Havana is not overcrowded. There is plenty of room in the hotels for American visitors and the rates are not prohibitive. In fact, they are much less than they are at the best hotels in Florida. No sympathy need be wasted on the Hotel Men's and Tourist Association of Havana. They inspired the stories of the 80,000 American passports and $20-a-day rooms. My sympathy is extended to those who didn't go to find out for themselves.

To show you how impossible it is for Havana to be overcrowded with Americans it is merely necessary to outline a few facts about the transportation facilities.

It is a physical impossibility for more than fifteen or eighteen hundred people to reach Cuba from the United States in any week. The ships on the Key West-Havana run cannot carry more than 200 people on each trip, and they run but six nights a week. The Ward line, United States Fruit boats and two or three others cannot bring in more than 600 a week, with every cabin filled. And, as a matter of fact, it is doubtful if more than a thousand Americans have arrived in Havana any week during the present winter.

Furthermore, the total hotel accommodations in Havana do not permit the entertainment of more than 1500 persons. So don't let anyone tell you that Americans are making Havana a gay place this winter.

Havana is the gayest place on the western side of this earth planet because of the Cubans themselves. Recent sugar crops have made the Pearl of the Antilles of Christopher Columbus an "isle of gold." With sugar selling at 10 or 11 cents a pound, planters have become rich. And this year the crop, which will aggregate 4,000,000 tons, or one-fourth of all the sugar in the world, will bring some $600,000,000 to the island. And there are crops of tobacco and a few other things.

As Cuban planters used to make big fortunes in the days when raw sugar sold for less than 3 cents a pound, it will be seen that not only have enormous fortunes been made, but that still greater fortunes are in the making. And as the sugar trade centers in Havana, the Cuban capital has taken on all outward characteristics of a mining town where pay dirt has been struck.

There is an orgy of spending which is manifested not only in the building of hundreds of costly homes and lavish expenditure for jewels, high-powered cars and expensive raiment, but in all the various games of chance which abound on every side.

There is almost every kind of gambling in Havana, and most of it is not only sanctioned but supported by the Government. The fact that Havana is the "Rumhounds' Paradise" is important only to Americans. The fact that it is a gamblers' paradise is of the utmost interest to the Cubans. They are the greatest gamblers on earth and "Cuba Libre" stands for everything it means.

First of all, there is the Government lottery, which nets the Government at least a million and a half a year. Lottery tickets are on sale on every street corner at all times of the day or night and are bought by everyone. Just what becomes of the money it is difficult to explain. "Chivo," which means "goat," is the Cuban word for graft, and my questions about the money made by the lottery always brought smiles, accompanied by shrugs of the shoulders and mention of the "goat." However, it is a relief to know that the lottery department is at least self-supporting.

PREMIER BORDEN of CANADA

Next to the lottery the races at Oriental Park give the residents of the Cuban capital the greatest opportunity to wager their money. During the winter season there are races six days a week, and at least $250,000 changes hands every afternoon. According to John McGraw, one of the managers of the present season, only 5 per cent of the bets at the track are made by Americans. And one has only to spend an afternoon there to verify his statement. The big betting is done by the wealthy Cubans. The American bets are largely piker bets.

The betting at the Jai-Alai games, which take place three nights a week and Sunday afternoon, is even more local than at the races. This Spanish game of "pelota"—a sort of glorified handball—is one of the most thrilling in the world, requiring the greatest amount of endurance and skill of any sport. The Fronton, or building where it is played, is filled with 4000 people at every contest, and it is not unusual for $100,000 to change hands on a single match.

At Jai-Alai the gambling fever of the Cubans may be seen at its height. From the start to the finish of the match it is a veritable orgy of betting, with odds changing every minute as the game progresses. The native sport, of course, is still cockfighting, and the amount of money which changes hands on the scores of mains which are held weekly is considerable, and at every bar there is a dice box, which is rarely idle.

This is merely the public gambling of Havana. And Havana, it must be remembered, has less than 600,000 inhabitants. There is an amazing amount of gambling in the clubs—roulette, baccarat and stud poker being the more popular indoor sports. Some of the smartest clubs are practically closed to Americans, so I have hearsay evidence about the huge sums which are won and lost on the spinning marble and the turn of a card.

But if gambling is the principal vice of the residents of the Cuban capital, they make a virtue of it.

When it is known that the per capita wealth of Cuba is four and a half times the per capita wealth of the United States it obliges one to revise his opinions about our prosperity. Of course, we are the largest and richest nation in the world, but in proportion to her size and population Cuba puts us in the class of an "also ran." With less than 3,000,000 people, her balance of trade last year was $260,000,000 in her favor. The ordinary revenues of the Government are so great that there is no occasion for a tax on incomes. Probably it is the only country in the world which has absolutely no financial problems. Already the Government has built a President's palace which makes our White House look like a dog kennel. And a House of Parliament is under construction which is costing millions. In fact, President Menocal and his Cabinet have to sit up nights devising new ways to spend the ever-swelling revenues.

Sugar, of course, is the basis of this wonderful boom, which is bringing hundreds of wealthy Cubans from Europe back to Havana and transforming the unpretentious capital into a great city of costly homes and palatial clubs. Sugar is giving the city a new personality, in addition to mere material wealth. A Cuban culture—not a "kultur," but a definite advancement in learning, appreciation and taste—is being developed. It is not an Americanization process. The Cubans are grateful to us for what we have done, but they have no desire to have our ideals forced upon them.

The reforms which have been instituted in the United States to standardize our habits and morals will not be welcomed in Havana. Cuban culture, based on the best French and Spanish culture, cannot be reconciled to many of the changes which have been brought about in America. And, contrary to the opinion of Americans, our influence in Cuba is not all-pervading. Havana today is far more foreign, from the American standpoint, than Paris, Berlin or Vienna. Its American colony doesn't number 5000 men, women and children. And in a city of some 600,000 that is trifling. To be sure, the United States exercises control of the sanitation, foreign relations as regards treaties and finances and one or two other things for the island republic, but it does not and never will be able to exercise any moral censorship over Cuba.

That is why Havana, the only city of any size on the island, expects to remain the gay, care-free, pleasure-loving city that it is today. And because Cuba has all the other ingredients besides sugar, it will be the Mecca for thirstily inclined Americans when the passport nuisance is abolished and big ferries are put on the Key West run.

No gentleman can finish a dinner that is worthy of the name without paying tribute to Havana because of his cigar and the sugar in his demi-tasse. The good things in life, if the things which encourage one's so-called bad habits may be so termed, are plentiful and cheap in this "paradise of pajamas," as James Huneker once called Havana. Wonderful Cuban coffee that is scorched instead of roasted, sweetened with Cuban sugar and followed by a 10-inch cigar, atones for many disappointments in even an eight-hour day. All of these, and more, too, are obtainable in Havana for a trifling sum.

Back to "Dobe" Bricks

when a wintry blast happened along. Where it was available, the early builders, especially the Indians, combined the soil with "tulle," a sort of a reed found in the swamps. This added material strength to the walls. Many of these cabins, reared more than a hundred years ago, are still occupied by the descendants of their designers. Among the foothills of Palomar are several villages of the Temecula Indians, whose huts, built of this formula, are still providing home and shelter. Where the mud bricks were placed in the walls without first being dried out thoroughly and mixed with some sort of a binder, they soon succumbed to the weather and disintegrated in time. Thus the original building of the San Gabriel Mission was reduced in time to a mere mound. This furnished an object lesson to the builders, who constructed the other mission groups of stancher compositions.

For many years one of the showplaces of Santa Barbara was the adobe mansion erected by Don Aguirre and known as "La Cassa de Aguirre." Within its hospitable walls Gen. Freemont was entertained on his first visit to that city, and in its later days it received and provided entertainment for the Princess Louise, when she made her honeymoon tour with the Marquis of Lorne. Don Aguirre was a rich Spaniard, who did not believe in practicing economy when it came to providing a home for himself and his descendants. He used adobe for his walls because that was the popular material of the time, but he made them as thick as the ordinary fortress; its windows deep as the ports for guns and protected from without with very heavy shutters. The shingles came from Honolulu and the furniture and tapestries from Spain. It contained a store, magazine, warehouse and court and in effect was a village within itself. The residence had 19 large rooms and its drawing room was known to the grandees from San Diego to Monterey for its receptions and parties, at which the Senora Guierre presided with all the grandeur of a Queen. The patio was 40 by 40 feet, the arches of adobe being supported by columns of artistic molding. The porch was fully 15 feet in width, extending the entire length of the court. This famous creation of adobe stood solidly, defying the ravages of time and weather extremes, until about 25 years ago, when a cloudburst in the mountains sent a cataract down on the place, tearing out the supports and starting the disintegration that caused its eventual ruin.

The adobe builders of 1920, while seeking some of the decorative schemes of the Spanish builders, are more intent on providing small homes rather than forts, and are not making their walls as thick as Don Aguirre deemed necessary. Durability and permanency can be insured without resorting to such massive walls, and as lumber and shingles can be secured for roofs and supports, it is not necessary to invite mishaps such as occurred in the 1812 earthquake. The saving in brick and tiles, the principal items in home construction, is a very important factor in the cost of providing the small home and the workers out in California and other Western states will find many others following their example in combating the high cost of building. That the women have found it pleasant employment mixing the mud and molding the blocks to go into the walls is also regarded as a promising augury that there will be many converts to the adobe plan.

Of course, all clays are not as well adapted as those in the Far West for adobe walls, but most cities have a variety of soils and tests should be made before the bricks are molded. In the vicinity of St. Louis some of the best brick, terra cotta and fireclay products in the country are produced, which means that there is a bountiful supply of material waiting to be taken out of the bosom of mother earth, for those who wish to experiment and build. The tests now being made by Architect Young and his associates are being awaited with interest by many persons who have lots, but lack the means to provide houses at the present record-breaking prices of materials of common usage. If the earth and its straw or other binder can be hammered and treated into shape to supply the walls, St. Louis will not be long in catching up with the California men and women, who are achieving results in their practical onslaught on the soaring prices of building supplies.

THAT $10 BILL PUZZLE

MANY interesting and ingenious explanations were sent to the Post-Dispatch to solve the mystery as to which person was the loser after Mr. Jones found a $10 bill. This bill, it will be remembered, went through various channels of trade and finally returned to the loser in another transaction. Then, when he attempted to deposit it in a bank, it was discovered that the bill was a counterfeit.

Bankers and clerks in the Clearing House Association are of the opinion that no one was a loser. If the bill had been genuine the finder would have been $10 ahead. That is clear enough. But since the bill was a counterfeit he neither gained nor lost. The fact that the money, in the meantime, had been used to pay various debts does not enter into the calculation at all. A piece of wrapping paper, with "I O U" written on it, would have served the same purpose.

For instance, if A owes B $10, and B owes C the same amount, and so on all the way through the alphabet, and then Z owes A $10, $260 worth of debts can be cancelled without a cent of money changing hands. Or, if a $10 bill is used, the bank note which A hands B will come back to him when Z pays A. A then has exactly as much money as he had in the first place, though he paid B $10 and 25 other persons had paid their debts with the same bill.

A Birdie in the House

Miss Della, where my two feet belong is right on the ground where the Almighty put 'em."

"That's me every time, Mr. Ganz, just so it ain't damp."

He leaned forward, talking beneath the din of the crowd and through the wool muffler directly into the concealed ear of Miss Meyer.

"Funny how—how we like the same things, ain't it, Miss Meyer?"

"Y-yes—ain't it!"

"Now, for instance, take me. I—I always say, Miss Meyer, let the highfliers do all the high flying they want, but my idea of real living, Miss Minna, my—my idea of real living is—is"——

"Yes, Mr. Ganz?"

"Is a—a little elegantly furnished, steam-heated nest for two, Miss Meyer, on the south side of Chicago, with—with"——

"Oh—Mr. Ganz! Oh"——

"It is, Miss Minna. I can tell you it ain't all sciatic pleurisy in my left side, Miss Minna. Since I met you it—it's just like you had taken a little arrow and shot me right in the heart. That—that's the kind of a pain I got there now. You—you get me, Miss Minna—Minna?"

"Mr. Ganz—M-max!"

Beneath the gray wool jacket their hands met and clasped. A rumble ran through the crowd. Miss Kessler shot forward like a streak, leaning dangerously beyond the rail.

"He's off!"

"Raugh! Raugh! Chee-e-e-e!"

• • • • • • • •

The pulse of the distant machine leaped suddenly into thousands and the winged monster, like the restored bulk of some antediluvian monster of earth and air, shot forward in a straight line, whizzing down the smooth face of the field. A shout went with it and the human hedge, five faces deep, was suddenly white with upturned faces.

"Raugh! Ch-e-e-e-e!"

Tip-tilting suddenly, as if it had drawn its talons up and under, it rose in perfect whirring flight.

"Oh, mommy! Mommy!"

"Gott in Himmel, a boy should take such chances!"

"He's testing the wind. See, the current is buffeting him a little."

"Oh, my God, his engine missed then! Hear? Oh, my brother! Hold my hands—Max."

With his face thrust whitely upward and his whisper with a raucous edge to it, Max Ganz leaned for the small hand drawn up into the gray wool sleeve.

"Just look at him, little one. It gives me a crick in the neck to watch."

"I'll lend you some arnica I always use, Max, dear. It's the muscles!"

"See, papa, he's picking up again. Now he's edging into the wind. His controls are working perfect. He's climbing. See him mount! See him mount! Oh, oh, oh!"

The throbbing of the engine was suddenly remote, then more remote, as if tulle portieres of air and space were drawing together as the machine flew through them into uncharted altitude.

Finally silence and only a white sea of faces turned upward to a black eagle, flying against a star-spangled sky and circling over the field once, twice, thrice.

"He's getting ready to loop. He's looping! Look, he's dipping for the first loop. Oh, mommy!"

"Gott in Himmel!"

"Oh, my brother!"

Suddenly the remote flying thing dipped a bit and from beneath its planes two streamers of fire streaked the sky.

A great booming shout arose.

"Oh, my brother! It's the fireworks I'm afraid of, Max!"

"He'll dip now. Watch, mommy, he'll dip now."

The machine fell forward into a loop, curving up again, down again, up again; the red comet-tails circumscribing its double course in fire.

"One!" rose in bombardment from the crowd.

The hieroglyphic of fire hung for a moment, then another vertical dive and another double circle of fire.

"Two!"

"Two!"

"Max, my—my poor knees won't hold me."

"Poor, poor little knees!"

"Three!"

"Max, dear, I think I—I'm going to faint."

"I'm here, little one, to catch you."

"What's that falling down? Chewing gum! Take a piece, Max, dear. It—it's good for you after meals."

Miss Della Kessler twined her small hands together and beneath that gale of voices, spoke quietly upward.

"Steady, Arch," she said. "Only once more, Arch. Steady! You've looped three and you can make it four. Steady, Arch! Steady!"

A light jeer rose from the crowd.

"'matter up there? Got cold feet? Three ain't four! What's got you? Dizzy? Loop 'er up there! Loop 'er up!"

"Once more, Arch! Steady, old boy!"

"Loop her up there! Che-e-e-e!"

"What if his engine is"——

"Four!" And with the great spiral of fire from the final loop still dragged across the sky, the hum of the descending engine grilling down again into the night, and the silent swoop of an engine volplaning, Miss Della Kessler stood quiet amid the tumult of a crowd gone mad, a booming in her ears but her little face still upward in the attitude of a flower.

• • • • • • • • •

Through the human swarm, which had burst the ropes and flowed like water from a broken main across the field and toward the aircraft just settling itself to earth, with its wings ever spread, Miss Della Kessler gouged, wormed, elbowed her little way. Men with their shouts still smoking on their lips resisted the small figure and granted her reluctant right of way. In the tight tangle immediately surrounding the machine, the crimson sweater was quite torn from her, but she emerged into the small guarded area about the still coughing draft, as if hurtled there out of the crowd.

From the heart of the winged monster, goggled, legginged and bulky of bulk in a double-breasted leather jacket, a figure moved simultaneously forward and a shout thundered up from throats long since raw.

"Arch!" cried Miss Kessler, and under cover of those shouts, speech became pantomime. "Archie-boy! Archie-boy-darling!"

Taking her hand in his gauntlet and regarding her through goggles clouded with sudden mist, he leaned to her under cover of that same shouting.

"Cutey!" he said. "Cutey, little sweetheart!"

A tremolo ran down his arm and through the gauntlet to her finger tips.

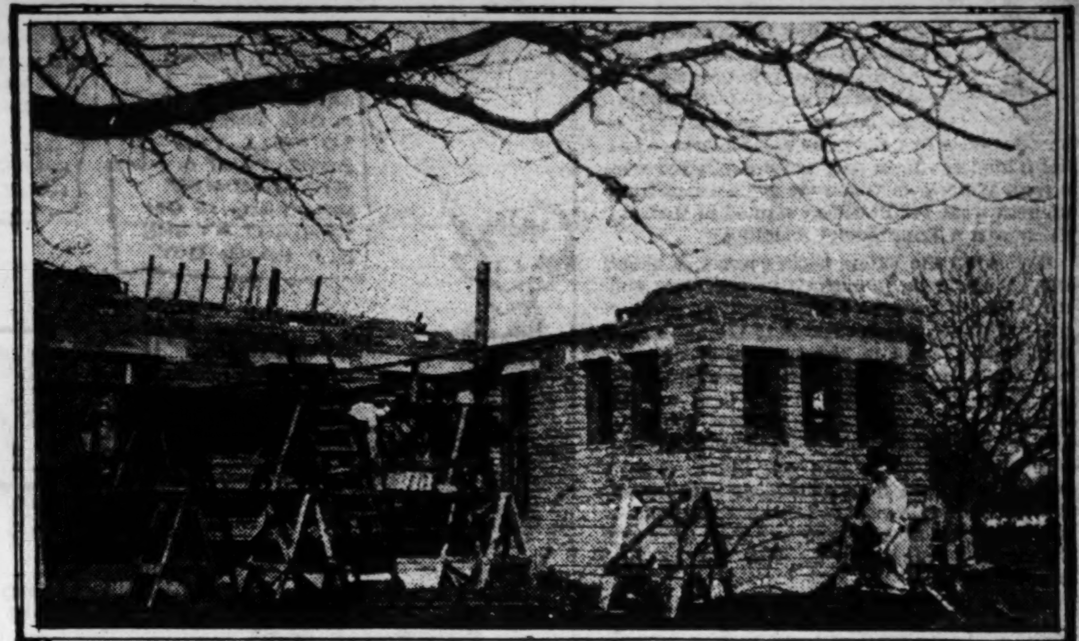
Women say La-may stays on better than any other face powder.

Up to the present time it has been almost impossible to get a face powder to stay on the face longer than it takes to put it on. You powder your nose nicely, and the first gust of wind or the first puff of your handkerchief and away goes the powder, leaving your nose shiny and conspicuous, probably just at the very moment when you would give anything to appear at your best. A specialist has at last perfected a pure powder that really stays on; that stays on until you wash it off. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder to make it stay on. This improved formula contains a medicinal powder doctors prescribe to improve the complexion. In fact, this powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores and irritations. It is also astringent, discouraging flabbiness, crow's feet and wrinkles. This unusual powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because La-may is pure and because it stays on so well it is already used by over a million American women. All dealers carry the large sixty-cent box, and many dealers also carry the generous thirty-cent size. When you use this harmless powder and see how beautifully it improves your complexion you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York. We will give you five thousand dollars if you can buy a better face powder anywhere at any price. Herbert Roystone, 16 East 18th St., New York.

BACK TO "DOBE" BRICKS BECAUSE OF HIGH COST OF OTHER MATERIAL

Los Angeles and other cities in the Far West set a real pace in utilizing the materials of construction employed so successfully by the Spanish Missions centuries ago — St. Louis experimenting with clays to find a substitute for brick, stone and tile—Architect T. C. Young's plan of "Pise" walls attracting attention :: :: ::



Young women design and build a home of adobe blocks at Huntington on the outskirts of Los Angeles, and find real excitement and recreation in their achievement.

CONCERTED effort to reduce the high cost of building small homes, so as to place them within reach of families of modest incomes, is being made in many places. Analytical chemists are finding their services in demand testing the various qualities of clay which it is hoped will furnish the durability shown in the adobe houses built by the early Spanish settlers in New Mexico, Arizona and California more than a century since. Many of these buildings still extant are as solid, if not more so, than they were when plastered together by their crude designers and constructors, long before the Louisiana Territory became an integral part of the United States of America.

In an article published in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine last Sunday, prepared by Thomas Crane Young, prominent St. Louis architect, attention was called to his plan to make a series of experiments with the clays in the vicinity of St. Louis, to see if small homes could not be provided with a sun-dried mixture of earth and straw, serving as a substitute for walls of standard brick or hollow tiles. These experiments are still under way and are being watched closely by those who hope for some satisfactory adjustment of the housing problem, which has reached an acute stage in St. Louis and most of the other large cities.

With building costs persistently advancing and rents keeping pace with this upward trend, a cheap material that would serve the purposes of lumber, brick, stone, tile or concrete would go a very long way in removing an admittedly serious menace. That the adobe is scheduled for a picturesque recrudescence is no longer a matter of speculation, as it has already been taken up on an intensive scale in Southern California, where some of the mission buildings constructed of earth still stand as a memorial to the constructive genius of the earliest settlers, who came chiefly from Spain.

Like the Indians and others who happened along first, they decided that homes were essential. Having no architects, builders or skilled mechanics they took advantage of the materials that nature supplied and molded their walls of mud, with sufficient straw or grass to make the binding force necessary to hold the mass together. Even where there was no timber available, they made supports of the same plastic material after subjecting it to a drying process in the hottest focus of the sun's rays. These pioneers molded the clay into blocks much larger than the standard bricks of the present day and used the soft clay instead of the lime or cement mortar used in modern construction.

Mud blocks with straw as a binder were shaped in goodly sizes and dried in the air and sun, before they were laid in the walls.

While the construction of the adobe house is a slow process, it is yet simple and requires no large working force such as is needed in the building of a home with brick, tiles or lumber. Out in California, where the adobe is coming back strongly, women and girls have turned builders and have reared some attractive-looking bungalows. They follow closely the style of the mission builders and work with a genuine zest once they get their houses under way. In the Huntington Park district, near Los Angeles, young women are giving time and study to their plans and are getting some artistic effects when it comes to the stucco work on the exterior of the walls. When the little homes are completed, it is planned to train vines that will spread all over the structures and add greatly to their picturesque beauty.

Though the Spaniards are credited with the development of the adobe, excavations made in ancient Assyria, Babylon and Egypt have disclosed the fact that the same material, mixed with straw and grass, was generally used for home building by these early races. They followed the same general process of molding the bricks or blocks to a uniform size and then drying them in the sun, before setting them in the walls. Where a stout building was desired a very thick wall was constructed, but most of the houses had but one thickness of the hand-molded forms.

The adobe of Southern California and Arizona in its crudest state has always been a delight to the artist. Part of the soil, not altogether lovely, but yet harmonious, they present a front of solidity and unobtrusive dignity that deeply impresses one at once. The first adobes built by the Indians who had little inclination for architectural beautification, were walls of mud heaped up in mass, with a piece of wood or a bunch of grass stuck here and there to give the mixture holding qualities. None of the walls were reared to any impressive height, and the aboriginals who found shelter there were never in any danger of being crushed should the structure collapse.

The early Spanish came along and studied the arts and crafts of the Indians with profit. They found many of the adobe houses in good condition and as other materials were not easily obtained, they began improvements on the original plan. They found that most of the soil of the country was well adapted for such uses and they gathered their workers together and proceeded to build their missions. They shaped the pliable clay into bricks 4 by 12 by 16 inches, and added a liberal measure of grass tc impart strength and prevent disintegration. These were piled up in the form of a parallelogram, the soft earth well watered, being placed between the interstices and over the joints. As timbers and shingles could not be obtained, they molded substitutes of the same mud composition and installed them in place. After the great earthquake of 1812, the Spaniards abandoned the practice of providing roofs of this material, as it was in that disastrous happening that the top of the mission church of San Juan Capistrano collapsed while the place was filled with frightened members of the colony. Many of the worshipers were killed by the falling blocks.

The walls of the early houses varied in thickness, some having a diameter of three and four feet, and the floors were made of the same composition. The adobes served the double purpose of keeping the occupants cool in the extremely hot weather and warm

TAMING A WILD BACHELOR

By HELEN ROWLAND

"FOR the love of Caruso!" ejaculated the Bachelor as he threw on the brakes and turned his car, just in time to avoid running down a stalwart young man wheeling a pink-ribboned baby carriage.

"Why—that was Jack Gaylord!" exclaimed the Widow, turning to gaze back at the pink-and-white perambulator, with startled eyes.

"The wildest young scapegrace that ever broke a heart or drove a racing machine!" appended the Bachelor, slowing down to recover his nerve. "And look at him—wheeling a go-cart! How do they get that way?" he groaned.

The Widow laughed and snuggled down into her furs again.

"Oh, it's a very gradual process," she assured him. "A wild bachelor isn't tamed in a day. A model husband, like that, doesn't spring full-grown from the altar. He is developed by the slow process of geological formation. Marriage is like the Greek cow, you know."

"The Greek cow!" The Bachelor regarded her with patient amazement.

"Oh, surely you remember that old story," the Widow rippled on imperturbably, "about the young Greek who won a Carnegie medal or something, by carrying a full-grown cow on his houlder. And, when everybody marveled at it, he explained that he had begun carrying that cow when it was a little calf, and had carried it every day since, and gradually accustomed himself to the burden. Well, that's the way a man gets used to carrying the burdens of matrimony—just little by little!"

"I see!" murmured the Bachelor. "First it's a box of flowers, then it's a grip, then it's a hat box, then it's a wheelbarrow—and then it's a perambulator!"

"Yes!" bubbled the Widow cheerfully. "First, it's a few bills and responsibilities added on, and then a few little habits and indulgences cut off—a tuck taken in his privileges here, a pleat let out of his vanity there, a wrinkle ironed out of his disposition today and a seam taken in his manners tomorrow. If the average bridegroom had to take all the burdens of marriage on his shoulders at once, he'd fall right down and die of astonishment or fright or discouragement. But he doesn't—if the bride is wise and tactful."

"And yet, we wonder why there are so many marital Bolshevists!" muttered the Bachelor sotto voce.

"ALL men are marital Bolshevists at heart," declared the Widow calmly. "Only, they don't know it. They go into a flirtation as the lambs go down into Wall street—just to play, and without the slightest intention of becoming seriously involved. And then, suddenly, they have lost their heads, or fallen in love, and before they know it they wake up to find themselves engaged"——

"Or married!" finished the Bachelor. "But AFTER a chap wakes up—what then? I often marvel, when I see a perfectly wild and irresponsible bachelor, who has never known the touch of a gentle hand on the reins, sinking down placidly into the shafts of double harness and preparing to grow bald with his wife's picture on his desk, and all that. I can understand perfectly how such a fellow foolishly or blindly GOT married—but how does he STAY married?"

"Oh, one doesn't 'get married' all of a sudden," explained the Widow. "One BECOMES married by degrees and gradual stages. First, there's the romance and the heady dalliance of the courtship, and then comes the excitement and distraction of the wedding. And, after that, there's the glamour of the honeymoon and the novelty of the bridal trip to Palm Beach or Europe, to tide him over for a while"——

"And before the anesthesia wears off she's got him out hunting an apartment, buying furniture and choosing wall papers and setting up what he thinks are his own 'household goods,'" rejoined the Bachelor bitterly.

"Yes," acquiesced the Widow, with delight. "And then comes the novelty of home cooking and home comforts and regular meals and fireside companionship."

"And all that lulls him into another state of coma, for a little while longer," groaned the Bachelor.

"Of course," agreed the Widow. "And before it wears off, or he has a chance to get restive or Bolshevistic, he finds himself working hard at the office—to buy baby shoes."

"And rolling perambulators!" finished the Bachelor with a groan. "Lashed to the mast!"

"No," laughed the Widow consolingly, "only broken to harness! But from then on, if the wife has ANY common sense and tact whatever and doesn't pull too hard on the bit or use the whip, he will probably trot along easily and comfortably—and quite happily—forever. And he'll be too busy struggling to pay off the mortgage and meet the installments on the car, and settle the insurance, and pay school bills and coal bills, to remember that there ever was such a thing as a 'wild time,' or 'the club,' or 'the gay, free life'!"

"Lost—lost—lost!" wailed the Bachelor, "in the mazes of domesticity."

"Made—made—MADE!" retorted the Widow, "from a useless bit of human driftwood into a substantial citizen. From a lump of clay into a model husband! From a charming toy into a useful member of society. From a dabbler and a playboy into a producer! Making a husband out of a mere man—that's the noblest work of woman! But it isn't accomplished in a day or a week or a year. A 'happy marriage' isn't made in heaven; it is 'developed,' evolved, cultivated"——

"Like a bad habit!" scoffed the Bachelor.

"Like a GOOD habit!" declared the Widow. "Marriage IS a habit—the most salutary, profitable and self-improving habit that a man can acquire!"

WIDOW-CISMS.

A plutocrat in these days is a woman who can afford to serve real cream and lump sugar at her teas.

Perhaps the reason why so few invite one out to tea, now, is because "tea" has become SO literal!

Woman will wear anything that the fashion makers thrust upon her, from a tattooed back to a nose ring—but just let them try to put pink satin evening clothes and puffed sleeves on men, as they threaten!

When Mme. December marries young May she doesn't need anybody to "give her away." All the world, her friends and the newspapers will joyously do it for her.

One of the high spots in a brilliant man's life is that in which the sweet young thing next him at dinner bubbles: "Now DO say something clever, Mr. Jones!"

A man's heart, like an automobile, is always apt to skid and ditch him just at the psychological moment, when he thinks he has it under perfect control.

I'll Have a Hand-Picked Cabinet---If Elected

By RING W. LARDNER.

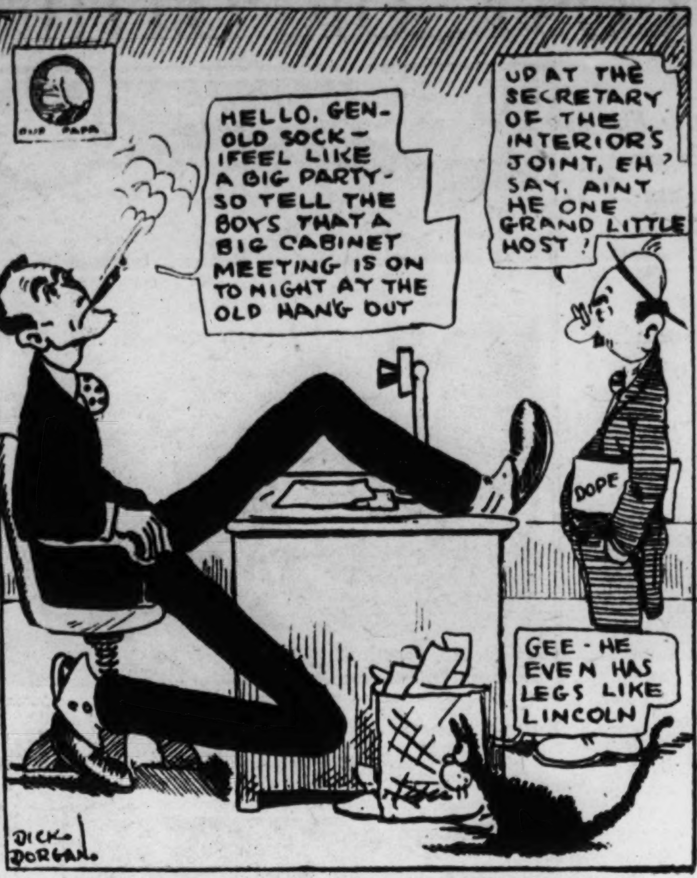
TO THE EDITOR:

On acct. of recent developments a great many of my admirers has asked me to come out and exclaim what I will do in regards to a cabinet if I am elected President at the different polls next November. It seems that the present incumbrance has had a kind of run in with the Sec. of state who is from Watertown where the geese comes from whereas what the President wanted in that position was a Long Island duckling.

Well when the letters begin poreing in about what I would do in regards to a cabinet and etc. I though I maybe better look it up and see what was the laws in regards to the U. S. cabinet and I looked in the cyclopedia and it says the cabinet is appointed by the President and made up of the Post master Gen. and the Attorney Gen. and the Sec. of state and War and the Navy and Treasury and Commerce and labor and the interior and agriculture. It says in the book that in the old days they was 1 Sec. of war witch included the navy but afterwards they must of found out that the navy didn't have nothing to do with war so they made it sepurate.

Well if I am elected I have got some idears in regards to my cabinet and I will exclaim them so as they won't be no mistake witch my oppts. could come out and say I said 1 thing and done another. My first idear is that maybe I might appt. Mr. Lodge as the head of my cabinet and when I say Mr. Lodge I don't mean Mr. Lodge from Mass. with the whiskers but I mean Sir Oliver Lodge, and the rest of the cabinet would be dead people that he could consult with them so as we could get some brains into the cabinet like Lincoln and Washington and Jess Willard and Maeterlinck. This idear would work out O. K. whether spiritualism is on the square or whether it isn't because if it is on the square Sir Oliver could ask Lincoln what he thought about this or that or any big problem and on the other hand if spiritualism is what I seen of it why all the spirits would say would be hello mamma and hello papa and etc. and the nation certainly couldn't get into no international troubles on that basis.



OUR PAPA
UP AT THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR'S JOINT, EH? SAY, AINT HE ONE GRAND LITTLE HOST!
DOPE
GEE - HE EVEN HAS LEGS LIKE LINCOLN
DICK DORGAN.

"Gen. how are the stamps selling today?"

Well, if this idear don't meet with the approval of my admirers I will appt. a non partisan cabinet all Republicans witch each one would be appointed with regards to their fitness for the office. For inst. for Post Master Gen. I would have a clerk in some post office that knowed the business so that if I wanted to call him in some A. M. and say "Gen. how are the stamps selling today?" he could tell me without consulting no underlings. It looks to me like the biggest mistake the present incumbrance has made was haveing a Postmaster Gen. that cut down the price of stamps when everything else was going up and ruined a whole lot of people like myself for inst. as our family had decided to live in a suburb and shop in N. Y. city on the grounds that on the 1st. of the month the merchants might hesitate to send you a bill if it cost 3 cents to mail it whereas they would and do send them for 2 cts.

For Sec. of the Navy I have in mind a friend of mine in Chi named Charley Zeller that manufactures medals and if appointed would let the govt. have them at cost. I wouldn't need no Sec. of war because as I have said repeatedly that in the case I am elected they will be no war with Mexico and Europe can do whatever they feel like and I will pay no tension to them. The Sec. of the Interior would half to be a man like Bud Fisher with a well stocked cellar and the cabinet meetings would all be held at his house and I want to say right here that it would be vs. the constitution to hold a meeting without inviteing the President. In place of the other Secs. I would appt. a Sec. of Golf wth full powers to count my strokes and the privilege of asking for his resignation and for Sec. of state I would have a man that would follow my mind so closely that sometimes he would half to stop and let me catch up.

So much for the cabinet question and in regards to who do I want for 2d. place on the ticket witch many of my admirers has asked me about. Well the Vice President hasn't importants unless the President dies and if elected I will promise to take good care of myself and not go out and watch the Washington ball club so far as I am conserned they can name who ever they choose to run on the ticket and if elected I won't pay no more tension to him than if he was Sec. of state.

In closeing I would like to bring it to the tension of voters that I am the man who made Hoover quit and I will do the same to any other nonpartisan Democrat that thinks they have got a chance to make a monkey out of me. RING W. LARDNER.

POMMES DE TERRE SOUFFLE

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

ALWAYS we have admired the amateur chef, whose creations are the joy of evening parties.

Give him a chafing dish, a small school of oysters, a little cheese, some condiments and a hunk of bacon, and in half an hour he will set before you a dish the restaurants sell for $4 a portion plus the luxury tax.

We have seen this person work at home and in public. We ourselves have hurried to and fro between the dining room and kitchen bringing butter, salt, pepper and chutney at his demand.

And we have eaten our heart out with envy as his perfect work was applauded and fair women and brave men told him he was a bear.

Sometimes, of course, he overplays, and then it is embarrassing to be along.

One of the chafing dish sharks found fault with the food at a restaurant one night, where the crowd of us had gone to help keep up prices.

He said the only thing to eat for dessert in such a place was French pancakes, and that he knew how to make them.

When he called for a chafing dish the waiter objected on the ground that vacant chafing dishes were not served to customers.

The expert sent for the head waiter, who backed up the underwaiter. Then the proprietor was sent for. It took half an hour to convince him that the police wouldn't raid the place if he allowed any cooking to be done by a guest, but when we all talked at once, and promised to pay his fine in the event of any unpleasantness, he yielded.

Our friend got his implements and his groceries. They were brought by a train of waiters, all in a rebellious and an ugly mood. He took the flour and the butter and glucose and the other ingredients and began mixing them in the chafing dish.

And just as he had got a gelatinous mass stirring round and round, closing time came and we all had to get out.

The dinner was a Dutch treat, and we were all stuck for our pro rata, which figured at about six each. At that we were probably lucky.

If he had been a little speedier with the spoon we might have had to eat the stuff, and what with flu and coughs and colds there was plenty the matter with us as it was.

Our own comet-like career as a culinary demonstrator began—and ended—shortly after this episode.

Before dinner one evening we heard somebody who had been to France singing the praises of pommes de terre souffle, and regretting the fact that they were not to be had in the U. S. A.

Now we know all about pommes de terre souffle. They were served to us in Newark, to our surprise, by a little Frenchman who kept a place called "Pierre's." After consuming a bushel of these glorious golden bubbles we went back into the kitchen and inquired how they were made.

"Eet is nossing—nossing at all," said the proprietor. "You pick up ze potato, so, you drop him in ze ice water, so, you let him cool, so, you slice him very much svelte, so, and when he enter in ze hot fat he blow up like ze balon, so!"

His fingers flew as he talked. When he made an end he inserted a spoon in the boiling fat, and, lo! a diaphanous globe of potato swam into our ken.

With this in mind, we announced casually that if anybody in the present company wanted pommes de terre souffle, we would go into the kitchen and make them. What was the use of travel if the things one learned thereby couldn't be placed at the service of our friends?

There was an argument with the cook before we were permitted to enter the kitchen. Dinner was nearly ready to serve, and the cook feared that no good would come of outside interference.

But the hostess was persuasive and we at length donned an apron and went joyfully about our work, a volunteer watcher's committee coming out to assist us.

We went through all the motions that the Frenchman had showed us. But something went wrong every time.

The first pommes de terre that we dropped into the fat sank like lead to the bottom, and when we dredged them up lay limp on our fork like scraps of calico.

We decided that the fire wasn't hot enough, and stepped it up a bit.

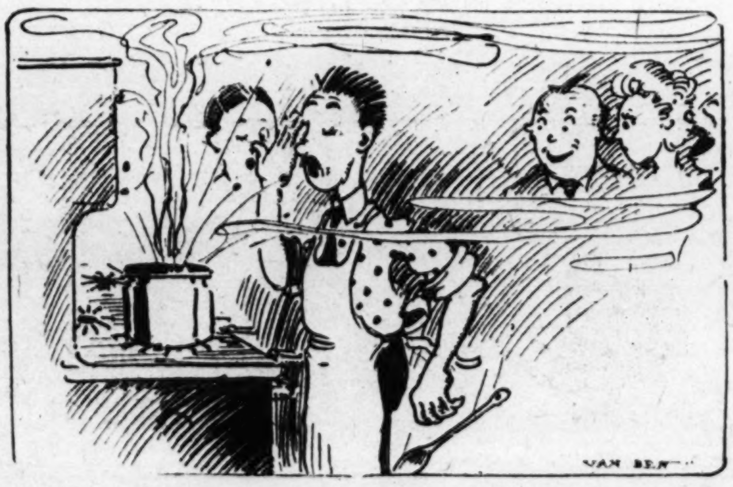
When sparks appeared to be flying from the bubbles we fished a few more pommes de terre out of the ice water and dropped them in. They floated on the surface for an instant, and our bosom began to swell as they swelled.

Then, without any warning, three of them blew up like hand grenades.

Here the cook, who had been watching us suspiciously till she received a skin wound from one of the splinters, interfered.

"Yez should put them all in to wanst," she said. We did. And instead of three explosions there were a hundred.

The committee of watchers escaped, and we tried to. But unhappily the fat which was blown out of the kettle with the explosion alighted in the fire, and, having started the trouble, we had to stay and extinguish the flames. We didn't have pommes de terre souffle that evening, or any other dinner worth mentioning, for when I got the fire out it had burned all the cook had prepared.



"Then without any warning, three of them blew up like hand grenades."

me before. I know the whole air gang. I know them all, I tell you, and if you big bugs will get up the purse, I can get you any of the fancy fliers of the world down here for an exhibition flight."

"But, Miss Kessler"——

* * * * * * * *

"I know a man's got a biplane in his back shed right now that will focus the eyes of the world on Cadillac Springs over night, if we can get him down here for his first exhibition flight. If he can't give you a night flight, loop the double loop four times and volplane down for you, I guarantee, ladies and gentlemen, every cent of your purse back to you. What would you say if I could get him down here on a moderate purse, for the first exhibition flight of a machine that's going to put flying forward a quarter of a century, for you? This is the kind of a field he needs to prove that he's done that little thing! Ask any aviator the value of a flat country. Why, I've got so much faith, ladies and gentlemen, in that Meyer biplane and in her new stabilizer that I—I'd stake a million dollars on it, if I had it. I'd bank my soul on that machine."

"Loog, how egzited she gets. Ain't it a treat, Riley, to see her!"

"It's because I've seen her parts, Mr. Hirkhimer. I've seen her in test flight after dark, doing a snake dance against the sky and then volplane down like a gull scooting for water. If I can get that machine down here, Mr. Riley, for a night exhibition, with a fireworks stunt attached, take it from me, it'll give this country a crick in the neck."

"But"——

"Start the ball rolling! Who'll start her? Who? Mr. Ganz, you're a successful business man who told me not more than 10 minutes ago that my smile was worth five thousand. Prove it. Look at it now. Is it still worth the money? Start the purse with that five thousand, Mr. Ganz, and if she don't loop the double loop four times and write each loop in fire, purse refunded like promised. Start her with five thousand, Mr. Ganz. Are you a gentleman of your word, Mr. Ganz, and game enough to start her with five thousand?"

"Miss Della, you—you're only fooling. Such a little cut-up!"

"Fooling! If I was any more in earnest I'd break a blood vessel."

"Dot's ride, Miss Gezzler, mage him bay."

"Start her with five thousand, Mr. Ganz. Come in on your share, Mr. Riley. It's your enterprise, after all, and you go him a couple of thousand better. It's cheap at the price, Mr. Riley. Bjorstedt got twenty thousand for his last flight and came down in 10 minutes with a broken rudder, but just the same he put Great Neck on the map. Don't be a bunch of pikers. You, Mr. Lobenz, if you're the good sport I think you are, what's a few thousand to you? Come on in it, Mr. Chalmers, and I'll make you forget what ails you; you, too, Mrs. Van Ritz. If you're a gentleman of your word, Mr. Ganz, you'll start the ball rolling with that five thousand."

"But, Miss Della, $5000 for a man like me to put in airships is—is a lunatic business, Miss Della, I tell you."

"Lunatic business, Mr. Ganz, if you are helping to pull off one of the greatest stunts in the history of the airplane? Do you think it will do the Ninety-Eight-Cent store any harm if its owner, Max Ganz of Chicago, is a pioneer in the history of aviation?"

"But"——

"In the 10 days before you're ready to leave these springs, you can go home famous. We can stage and pull off this thing in a week's time. The machine is ready now. He was varnishing the planes when I left. Quick work is what we need. Excursion rates from all over the country to the springs, Mr. Riley. From New York, St. Louis Chicago, Louisville, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Dubuque—everywhere! Mr. Leeds, the railroad magnate who sits across from us in the dining room, can manage that. Mr. Lobenz over there with his string of newspapers is going to be our little press agent. Start her with five thousand dollars, Mr. Ganz. Start her, if you're a man of your word!"

"Twenty—twenty-five hundred, Miss Kessler, is all I—I"——

"Good! Twenty-five hundred for a starter. Mr. Max Ganz of Chicago starts the ball rolling with twenty-five hundred. Am I bid more? Am I bid more? It's your enterprise down here, Mr. Riley, and the net results will be yours. The proprietor of the Hotel Cadillac must head the list. Am I bid more? Five thousand, if you're a good business man and know a good thing when you see it. Five thousand for a hundred thousand worth of publicity! Five thousand?"

"Five thousand!"

"Hurrah! Five thousand from Mr. Riley, and don't let them leave you at the post, Mr. Hirkhimer."

"A tousand doolar, Miss Gezzler, but I want from way up in the air he should drop 1000 packages Minto chewing gum when he reaches 2000 feet."

"No sooner said than done! One thousand from Mr. Hirkhimer, and now you, Mr. Lobenz. How much?"

"You can't expect a man in the automobile business, Miss Kessler, to subscribe to aviation."

"Why not? The biggest automobile man in the world started out manufacturing one-horse shays. How much, Mr. Lobenz? Mr. Mange? Mr. Chalmers? Good! Let me put you down for one thousand each, and now you, over there, Mrs. Van Ritz? Let's have health, wealth and beauty on our list, and it's up to you to supply the last. How much, Mrs. Van Ritz? How much?"

"Two thousand." Spoken coldly as through a wet blanket and the yellow head still held in profile.

"Catch me, darlings, while I faint. Eleven thousand five hundred, and before the day is over it'll be twice that. Ladies and gentlemen, you are helping to make the history of the air. In these pioneer days, every flight is a boost. It's the fancy fliers like this boy Meyer, who are going to prove to the world that aviation is practicable. By doing the double-loop for you four times over, Arch Meyer is going to prove the tilting power of the flying machine. If he don't, purse back like I promised. Ladies and gentlemen, you're helping to make the history of the air, and I'm proud of you!"

She jumped lightly down without the proffered aid of Mr. Riley and Mr. Ganz and darted into the shaded track leading up toward the hotel.

"But, Miss Kessler"——

"I'm off to the hotel to send off telegrams before you change your minds. Hold my hat, Mr. Ganz, until I come back. Wait!"

And she was off, her vivid face thrust forward and her elbows laid back against her slim sides.

In the bay of the veranda, plying her placid needle and the rose growing in her pattern, Mrs. Kessler glanced up at the rush of her daughter's approach.

"Della!"

"Mommy."

"Why, Della, baby—what excitement you got! Della, you got news for mamma?"

"Yes, dear! Yes, dear!"

"In your face I can see it. Della! Ganz! Della, you got news for mamma?"

"Yes, mommy, dear—but"——

"Gott in Himmel!" cried Mrs. Kessler, rising, her voice running high and her crochet falling to the floor.

"Great news, mommy, dear, only let me pass; I must hurry! Great news!"

"Della, did he"——

"An exhibition flight down here, mommy. The longest purse and the biggest flight of the year. The biggest flight of the year, mommy, dear. Let me go. Let me go!"

"Gott in Himmel!" repeated Mrs. Kessler, reseating herself and as if her vocal chords had suddenly rusted.

* * * * * * * *

On the night of the exhibition flight of the Meyer biplane at Cadillac Springs, the air of Indian summer hung heavy with the smooth ingratiating quality of milk. Stars, so close that each seemed to be cut in facets to enhance its brilliancy, gleamed down into the mammoth tureen of quiet which night creates in lonely places.

Off the vast lowlands beyond the Hotel Cadillac, and like bees swarming upward in anger, rose the hum of men's voices and the thrum of men's feet moving in quickstep to the pace of quick pulses.

September night lay on the stubble fields but grilled into by a series of white arclights swung from temporary poles and pouring, as hot steel is poured, their light upon an improvised grandstand and an adjoining section of roped-off space for the standing throng; upon a temporary shed erected at the opposite end of the field and upon the doughy outstanding spectators, mortared into a wall five breasts deep around the roped-in section.

In the overflowing grandstand and beneath the boring arclights the guests of the Hotel Cadillac, the jaundiced and the pallid of complexion under the carbon glare, leaned their whitely eager faces toward the remote shed.

In the front row, her crimson sweater pushed half back from her shoulders and her small hands gripping the splintery handrail until the knuckles sprang up white, Miss Della Kessler drove her dark gaze down the length of the field.

"Why, oh, why don't he start?"

"I wonder if his engine would be balking, Minna? It was working so perfectly this morning."

"It ain't like brother to delay!"

"I'll run down again to the field and"——

"Della, I want you should sit right in this box by your papa and Mr. Ganz and Minna and me. I don't seen no girls down there, only men around. Minna, his own sister, can sit quiet here until he goes up, and so should you."

Miss Minna Meyer, snug to her literal teeth in a gray wool jacket and a gray wool muffler wound high and revealing only her eyes and her high-pitched cheek bones, turned in her swaddlings toward Mrs. Kessler, her voice percolating through wool.

"Mrs. Kessler, if I was to have stuck around on the damp ground every time brother made a trial flight of his machine, I'd be in my grave now from sciatic pleurisy."

Mr. Ganz looped himself further across the back of Miss Meyer's chair.

"From what, Miss Meyer?"

"Sciatic pleurisy, Mr. Ganz. I'm a great sufferer from it."

"I wonder, Miss Meyer, if that could be what I sometimes feel in my left hip."

"Certainly it is, Mr. Ganz. It's a condition of the sockets."

"That's it, then. Sciatic—what?"

"Pleurisy."

"Pleurisy. I can tell you, Miss Meyer, in the three days you've been here at the Springs, you've told me more about myself than the doctors in six diagnoses could. It was worth the twenty-five hundred, Miss Meyer, just to—to have you come here. The minute I'm out in the night air like now, right away in my left thigh I get such a twinge that"——

"Could it be that his valves are hindering his flight, Minna? Could it?"

"I don't know, Della. You're getting me all worked up, too. Chills and fever in my legs—limbs—all at once."

"Now, now, Miss Minna, just don't you let our little firecracker, Miss Della, get you all worked up."

"Right this minute I'm in a terrible chill, Mr. Ganz; please excuse how I'm trembling. I wonder, Della, if—if anything's wrong! Oh! Oh!"

"I tell you, Kessler," said Mr. Ganz, leaning across the dim, shivering silhouette of Miss Meyer, "you got a daughter that is born to be a General in the army. Some girls are born to run people and to run homes and some to be Generals in armies. She's a General, I tell you. Just look how she got the whole hotel of us out here in the night air where we don't belong."

"How she engineered it all, though! Eh, Ganz? Fifteen thousand dollars she raised like it was 15 cents Overnight she makes a rich man out of a poor boy. Like Tom Riley says himself, Napoleon couldn't do so well. My little girl, she's a good one, eh, Ganz? Better as her old papa."

"A General in the army, I tell you, Kessler."

With her full back turned to the patter of conversation and oblivious to it, Miss Kessler swayed suddenly farther from the group.

"Look, papa, there's a new batch of people coming in from the station. There's 14,000 here tonight, if there's a soul, not counting the Louisville Tech. School Fourteen thousand, if there's a soul."

"Hirkhimer says fifteen."

"Did you see, pa, the lineup of excursion trains waiting down the tracks? There'll be three miles of special trains pull out of here tonight after this flight It's a knockout, I tell you, a knockout."

"Oh, my poor hands, how cold! Whenever my brother flies, it's just like all my circulation had slowed down. Needle prick in my arms and"——

"Needle pricks, did you say, Miss Meyer? Right this minute my left side feels like a teakettle singing It ain't the circulation worries me, Miss Minna, only the doctor says"——

"Well, let me tell you, Mr. Ganz, that poor circulation should worry you. Any book on health hints will tell you that poor circulation is first cousin to paralysis."

"Papa! Minna! Mommy! Look, they're pulling out the machine. See!"

The roped-off crowd swayed suddenly forward, scattering ejaculations.

"Is that it? Is that him? Is that he? Raugh! Raugh! Cut it out. That ain't him. Th[illegible] is! Raugh!"

Miss Kessler's hand reached out to close tightly over her parent's.

"Oh, pa, that's Arch. See! The tall, thin fellow pu[illegible]ing down his cap."

"Yes, that's brother. See, Mr. Ganz. That's hi[illegible] Oh, my poor hands!"

"Poor little hands!"

"They're strapping him in!"

"It's the fireworks I'm afraid of. Suppose it should catch! He's never used them in trial flights. Oh, my poor hands!"

"Raugh! Raugh!" A light cheer rose, but from furry throats wrapped in the husk of conservatism.

"Raugh! Che-e-e!" And it died. But the breathing sides of the great human rectangle swayed forward into a rhomboid.

Into the flare of three arc lights a huge winged skeleton ran forward on wheels, pushed by three lunging attendants, head first. Then she stood with her beetle-like wings flung wide and the inners of her thrumming to be off.

"Oh, my brother! Oh-h-h!"

"Now, now, Miss Minna!"

"I tell you, Mr. Ganz, I—I'd rather we had to live in a tenement all our lives than to see him risk his life like that. What's a $15,000 purse, if—if he didn't win it and gets killed trying to do the double loop four times? A helpless girl like me that's never been strong"——

"Now, now, Miss Minna!"

"I never wanted him to fly, Mr. Ganz. 'Let the other boys take the risk, Arch,' I always said, but"——

"I guess you're a little like me, Miss Minna. As I tell

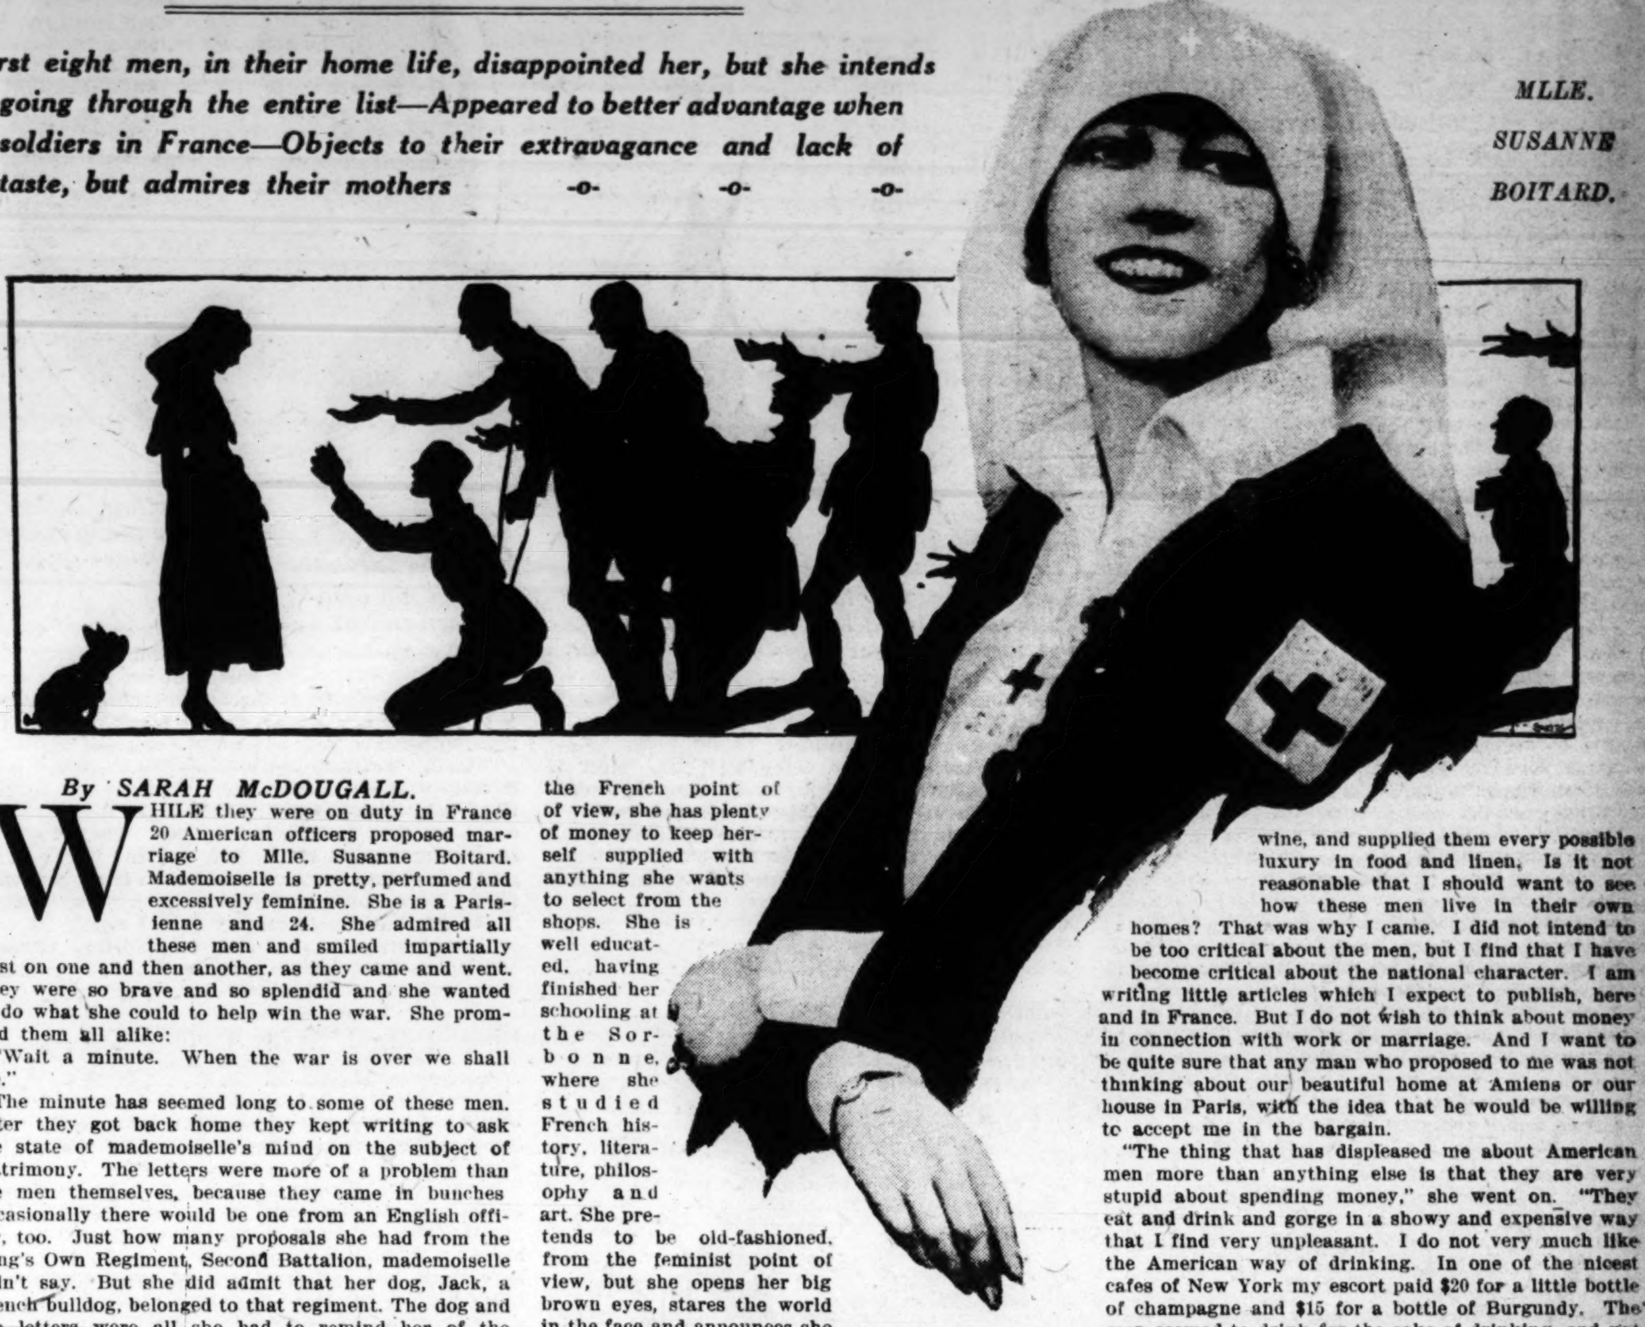
French Maid, With Twenty Proposals From Americans, Now on Tour to "Look 'Em Over"

First eight men, in their home life, disappointed her, but she intends going through the entire list—Appeared to better advantage when soldiers in France—Objects to their extravagance and lack of taste, but admires their mothers -o- -o- -o-



MLLE. SUSANNE BOITARD.

By SARAH McDOUGALL.

WHILE they were on duty in France 20 American officers proposed marriage to Mlle. Susanne Boitard. Mademoiselle is pretty, perfumed and excessively feminine. She is a Parisienne and 24. She admired all these men and smiled impartially first on one and then another, as they came and went. They were so brave and so splendid and she wanted to do what she could to help win the war. She promised them all alike:

"Wait a minute. When the war is over we shall see."

The minute has seemed long to some of these men. After they got back home they kept writing to ask the state of mademoiselle's mind on the subject of matrimony. The letters were more of a problem than the men themselves, because they came in bunches Occasionally there would be one from an English officer, too. Just how many proposals she had from the King's Own Regiment, Second Battalion, mademoiselle didn't say. But she did admit that her dog, Jack, a French bulldog, belonged to that regiment. The dog and the letters were all she had to remind her of the thrilling days that were. Life looked bleak in France without one of these wonderful men to look into the depths of her brown eyes and say extravagant and nonsensical things. To use her own words:

"I did not know what to do. I thought maybe I will go to England, maybe America. I remembered that the American man has the reputation to treat his wife better than he treats any other woman. So I came to America."

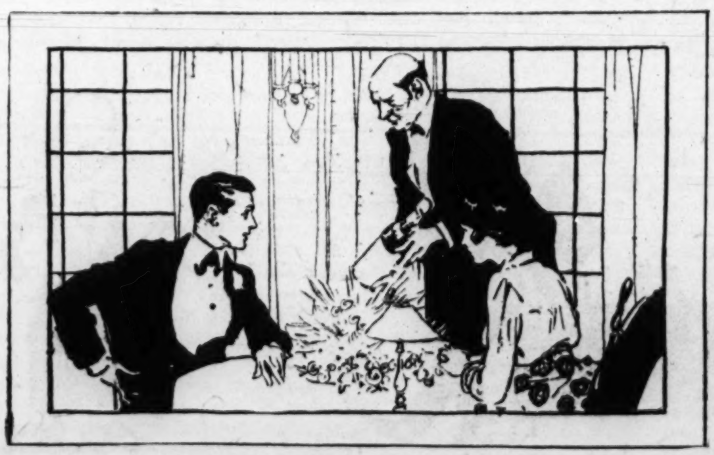
When I met mademoiselle she was on the second lap of her trip of inspection to the homes and haunts of these 20 prospective husbands. She was back in New York and resting at the Park Avenue Hotel, after visiting Chicago, French Lick Springs and Williamsburg, Pa. She had seen and discarded eight of the men who wanted to marry her. She seemed disillusioned and pensive and somewhat critical. She was spending the day in bed because she was going to the opera that night and she wanted to look her best. One of the remaining 12 of her "boys" was to be inspected that night.

"I had always been under the impression that people were at their best in their own natural environment," Mlle. Boitard confided.

"But from what I have seen of men in America I think they were at their best in France. I am trying not to become discouraged too soon. From here I am going to Atlantic City, then to Palm Beach, then to Louisville and St. Louis. I have been told that Southern men are more cultured and refined and have more of the Old World graces than the Northern men. I hope I shall not be disappointed."

Mademoiselle might be said to symbolize the orthodox charms of marriageable maidenhood. She is very good looking, and very merry. She is a connoisseur of beautiful clothes, and, what is very important from the French point of view, she has plenty of money to keep herself supplied with anything she wants to select from the shops. She is well educated, having finished her schooling at the Sorbonne, where she studied French history, literature, philosophy and art. She pretends to be old-fashioned, from the feminist point of view, but she opens her big brown eyes, stares the world in the face and announces she is here hunting a husband. She declares that the only destiny worth a minute's thought from any woman is to make a brilliant marriage. She is going about it studiously and shrewdly. Choice needs energy. The day I saw her she admitted that perhaps the search would send her round the world. She had even gone so far as to make inquiries through the French High Commission about passage to India, in the hope that she could find some nice family to chaperon her on her way.

"Why should I not come to America to look for a husband?" mademoiselle demanded. "All the men who proposed to me have lived in my mother's country house near Amiens. Our house was taken over by the Government as headquarters for officers, and we lived there most of the time and served them our very best wine, and supplied them every possible luxury in food and linen. Is it not reasonable that I should want to see how these men live in their own homes? That was why I came. I did not intend to be too critical about the men, but I find that I have become critical about the national character. I am writing little articles which I expect to publish, here and in France. But I do not wish to think about money in connection with work or marriage. And I want to be quite sure that any man who proposed to me was not thinking about our beautiful home at Amiens or our house in Paris, with the idea that he would be willing to accept me in the bargain.



"With one of them I am sure it would have been all the same whether he was drinking denatured alcohol or eau de cologne."

"The thing that has displeased me about American men more than anything else is that they are very stupid about spending money," she went on. "They eat and drink and gorge in a showy and expensive way that I find very unpleasant. I do not very much like the American way of drinking. In one of the nicest cafes of New York my escort paid $20 for a little bottle of champagne and $15 for a bottle of Burgundy. The men seemed to drink for the sake of drinking, and not because they appreciated good wine. With one of them I am sure it would have been all the same whether he was drinking denatured alcohol or eau de cologne. And then they give such foolish tips. They want to appear millionaires, though I do not know why anyone should. Spending money like that is very stupid. I was surprised and disappointed.

"In Chicago I was invited to a box party at the opera. The atmosphere was so cold it chilled me. Instead of being merry the people seemed afraid of each other. Women were wearing fortunes in pearls and gowns and such ugly corsage bouquets. They seem to think that everyone must wear orchids because orchids are expensive.

"I have discovered that the American business man works too hard. I should like my husband to work, but I also wish him to have leisure for horses and art exhibitions and charity affairs. I wish him to live a complete life. I think it is very unpleasant for a man to be harnessed to his job and to believe that life should be lived that way, and that pleasure and success can be measured with money. I will not have it so in my life. I do not want anything that represents dollars, whether it is furniture or flowers or a box at the opera or a fur coat. And I have never yet had enough money to buy a fur coat, although I do live very comfortably.

"Their homes seem so new," she complained. "I felt suffocated with new furniture all about. It would seem as if none of these families had any grandparents. In France we love our old things, and we keep them for generations. I could not live the quiet, uneventful life of any of the American women whose homes I have visited. But I must say that some of my boys have adorable mothers. And they have been charming to aren't you, Miss Della?"

"Restless! Well, rather! Me down here in the alimentary canal zone, when it's aero week and the motor cup races at home!"

"To think of a little Cutey like you being so crazy over airships. Aren't you afraid, Miss Della, to"——

"Afraid! Why, I've taken two flights already. I was among those present in Revillon's famous plane the time he carried passengers at the Chicago meet. I went up with Arch Meyer the first time he tried out his old monoplane. I"——

"Just full of pep, ain't you?"

"Why, there's not an airman ever dropped in at the office while I was stenoging that I didn't invite myself up with. Afraid! Gee, I can taste a flight now. Cloud in my mouth and rain before it's rain in my face! A feeling like all of a sudden my feet are cut from the asphalt and the world has slid out from under me. Up-up-up! With this warty old planet dropping away like a pebble off a cliff. Scooting on wings through the middle of a million years! That's the way it feels to you, Mr. Ganz, to go flying through space, if your rudder is vertical and the air gusts let the planes alone."

"Well, if—if you ain't just full of high jinks. I tell you, a fellow like me, who lets himself get close up to 40 with his nose and eyes to the grindstone, sometimes just keeps them there from habit unless something like you comes along to wake him up."

"You self-made men, Mr. Ganz, are sometimes like home-made flying machines. After you get wings, you don't know how to use 'em."

"You bet I've been sleeping, Miss Della, but I'm awake now and—and you woke me."

"Flying, Mr. Ganz, is like any other principle where" ——

"Now, just don't you begin to get right away from the subject of—you and me like you did last night, Miss Della, when you wouldn't let me say what I've got in my heart to."

"It's you who change the subject, Mr. Ganz. We were talking about airplanes and I was trying to tell you that we were standing on the edge of the air age. We've finished with the stone age and the iron age and all the other ages and now we are ready for the" ——

"But, Miss Della, what I got in my heart to tell you is more important"——

"There are no limits to the airplane, Mr. Ganz; that's what makes it the greatest of all inventions Mountains, seas, valleys and rivers won't be any more of an obstacle to men hereafter than a relief map is to you, if you wave your hand over it."

"But"——

"I worked in an aero office for six months, Mr. Ganz. I've heard them talk first-hand and have seen what the boys with big ideas and the nerve are doing. Why, I know a boy right this minute who is putting the finishing touches to a biplane out in his back shed that not only is going to do the fanciest flying this world has ever seen, but if ever he can get it before the public, is going to give the Government the thrill of its life in national defense. I know another fellow, too, Ed Waller of Dayton, is"——

"Man wasn't made for flying, Miss Della, or the Almighty would have give him wings, just like he wasn't made for water or he'd have fins."

"And he wasn't made for roller skating or the Almighty would have given him casters; is that your idea, Mr. Ganz?"

"Where I'd like to see you, Miss Della, is in a little nest right down here close to earth in a little elegantly furnished, steam-heat-and-janitor-service-flat-for-two on the south side of Chicago."

"You're like mommy and papa; you haven't the vision of an owl in the sun. That's what's the matter with all of you. All your noses are worn off at the end from the grindstone. You've never dreamed a dream. You've never sat in an airplane and felt it give that little pulling lift that clears the ground and suddenly felt yourself skimming up past the swallows to the sky. Oh! Oh! Oh!"

"But, Miss Della, I know a young man got consumption from such high air as that. He"——

"It's the boys with the dreams and the imagination and the fifth dimension in thinking, Mr. Granz, not the grindstoners, who have given the world the jolts and the modern conveniences. Take Bjorn Bjorstedt, the first man to volplane in the great exhibit flights at Great Neck. There's a fellow who slept on park benches and ate from door to door, so he could put every cent in perfecting that engine of his. Take Arch Meyer, the fellow I was telling you about. That boy could make easy money in any business he made up his mind to, but what does he do, give up his dream? He does not. He's going to demonstrate by fancy flying and double looping the loop four times his first exhibit, that his heavy machine is the most practical"——

"But to get back, little Cutey, to that nest for two. Don't think, Miss Della, this pain in my left side is sciatica. It's just like, Miss Della, you had a little arrow and stabbed me right to the heart."

* * * * * * * *

"What I was trying to show you, Mr. Ganz, is that you're wrong about flying. If you were to get yourself interested in the greatest invention of all time and put up a purse now and then for fancy flying, to help along the boys who are grinning back at death and making the history of the airplane, you'd get so wrapped up in the vitals that make a heavier-than-air machine fly, and—that maybe you'd forget your own vitals, Mr. Ganz."

"Why, I'd rather put up a purse just to see you smile at me like that, Miss Della. I'd rather spend $5000 on a smile like that than on two airships."

"Just try to imagine yourself flying at night, Mr. Ganz, with the air like ink around you, and"——

"The night air is bad for me, Miss Della; my joints" ——

"Night air!" cried Miss Della, thrusting her face forward as if she would drink in aerial champagne. "Why, the day they shut in my sleeping porch at home and I've got to stop smelling the stars all night, then let me die, say I, let me die!"

"There was a time, Miss Della, I was just like you; nothing could get the best of me. There's nothing the matter with me now, Miss Della, except all that's ailing me since my mother died is—I—I need a home, Miss Della; regular meals again and—and somebody to—to care one way or another about me, little Cutey, somebody to"——

"Please, Mr. Ganz, don't"——

"It's living around without a home has done it, Miss Della. When I had a regular living I had my health, and—and when I got my health, Miss Della, I—I'm as chipper as they come."

"Of course you are."

"Home cooking is all I need, Miss Della. My doctor says if I stick to my diet and keep out of the night air until the swelling gets out of my joints"——

"You remind me of Minna Meyer and the night air, Mr. Ganz. The first time her brother, Arch, made a night flight to test his new biplane, just a trial flight, with four or five of us there, she ran under the grandstand because our cheers jarred the neuralgia side of her face and the ground was damp."

"Jarring noises are mighty bad for neuralgia. I'm subject to it myself and I can sympathize with her."

"Look," cried Miss Kessler, suddenly throwing back her head to sniff the fumes of autumn, "why it's just like coming out of twilight into high noon, isn't it? Look at those links and the flat country beyond staring back at the sun. Gee!"

* * * * * * * *

They had emerged from the leafy shade of the woods into the white light of a sun-drenched morning. In the middle distance on the close-cropped links, a woman buoyantly poised for stroke let fly her brassie, In the distance the village of Cadillac, modest of steeple and spire, interrupted for a moment the fertile sweep of country, then it took up again, pouring on into the horizon.

"Look down there by De Leon, Miss Della, all of them at their sun baths. I tell you there's nothing like warm rays for getting the rheumatism out of you."

"Why—why—gee!"

"What, Miss Della?"

"Gee whiz!"

"Miss Della!"

"I must have been dreaming! Look, will you! It never struck me before. Look out there. What a field for a flight!"

"A flight?"

"What a rise a biplane could get off land like this. What a rise!"

"Just look over there in the sun, will you? Tom Riley himself; Hirkhimer, them two big guns from New York and the whole crowd of them. I tell you, it's a pleasure to be down here with all those big names, eh, Miss Della?"

On benches dragged from the shade trees and put out into the white morning a group of Hotel Cadillac guests spread themselves to the sun, the running line of their conversation as insistent as the up and down run of a bagpipe. Upon the knot of them, vapidly spread out there as if grouped by Watteau for a conceit in oil, Miss Kessler flashed her inspired eyes.

"Mr. Riley!" she cried and clapped her hands.

The proprietor of the Hotel Cadillac raised 200 pounds of democracy and affability from a slat bench and executed an ambitious bow.

"Good-morning to you, little lady, and if you aren't as chipper as a chipmunk, as usual."

The light patter of polite greeting passed around. Three men rose and two women sitting off remotely on cushioned chairs let their blonde marceled heads drop slightly forward, as if shoved from the rear.

Toward Mr. Ganz the proprietor of the Hotel Cadillac extended a heavy, hearty arm.

"Well, Ganz, how are my springs treating you?"

"Great, Mr. Riley, except somehow my joints"——

"Mr. Riley, I've got an idea!"

"You've got an idea, little Miss Della? That's nothing new for you."

"It just hit me bing!—in the eyes. It—it's immense, Mr. Riley."

"What is it now, little one, a dance in the grill or a long-distance water-drinking contest?"

"I want you to look, Mr. Riley; you, Mr. Ganz and Mr. Hirkhimer; you, Mr. Chalmers and Mr. Mange and Mr. Lobenz. Look, Mrs. Van Ritz, out there over the fields, and what do you see? Look!"

"I see ride in vrondt of me, Miss Gezzler, one preddy little gur-rl."

"Oh, oh, look again, Mr. Hirkhimer; you, Mr. Riley, Mr. Lobenz. All of you! Don't you see?"

The two blonde coiffures on the remote chairs turned slowly. Mr. Percival Chalmers of Boston leaned forward, his hands clasped over the top of his cane.

"Beg pardon, where did you say?"

"There! There!" cried Miss Kessler, and sprang at a bound to a bench, standing aloft there with her arm outflung full stretch.

"Where, Miss Kessler?"

"There, Mr. Mange. Out there before you, ladies and gentlemen, is the greatest natural aviation field in this great and glorious country of ours."

"Natural what?"

"Aviation field. Get me? Why, with a field like that drawn right up alongside the Hotel Cadillac, we can get all the airmen in the world here. Why, it—it's immense!"

"That's right, little missy, give us a recitation. Wake us up around here. Put some pep into us, eh? Play up!"

"Play up nothing, Mr. Riley, and if you're the good hotel man I think you are, you'll sit up and take notice of what I'm telling you. Out there in that flat country, with nothing but anthills for obstacles, you've got the making of a record-breaking aero meet, with nothing but Class A exhibits flying, and the biggest crowd down here that these springs ever dreamed of having in a million years. Just look! No water, no hills, no treacherous currents. Nothing but country flat as sky. An exhibition flight down here will be a riot. I tell you. A riot!"

"By golly, she's right! By golly, a man lige you, Riley, with such a following lige you got in Indiana could mage for your springs here a sensation."

"But, Hirkhimer"——

"Sure, I'm right. See, Mr. Riley, that's why Mr. Hirkhimer was able to make a million dollars out of chewing gum. It took vision to see a million dollars in a penny stick of wax. It took vision to catch on to my idea so quickly. He's got imagination! He's got vision!"

"She's right, Riley."

"Sure, I'm right. Let me start you off on the biggest piece of publicity you ever heard of, Mr. Riley. Low cost. Tremendous results. Now's the time, while the American tourist and seekers after health are locked at home, for the American sport to come into its own. Why carry our dyspepsia across the seas? Patronize home industries. Advertise!"

"By golly, she's right!"

"Get the crowds down here. You've got the whole Middle West to draw on and the East and the South, too, for that matter. I tell you, it's a great scheme, Mr. Riley. Aviation's the great question of peace and war. Let's have a flight! I just wonder it didn't hit

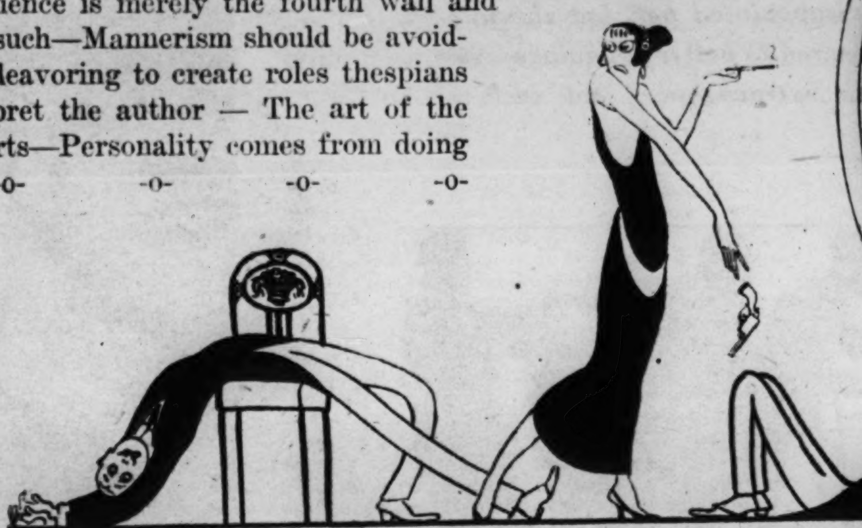
"One thousand from Mr. Hirkhimer, and now you, Mr. Lobenz. How much?"

JULIA ARTHUR'S ADVICE TO STAGE ASPIRANTS

Noted actress says audience is merely the fourth wall and should be treated as such—Mannerism should be avoided and instead of endeavoring to create roles thespians should seek to interpret the author — The art of the stage comprises all arts—Personality comes from doing a thing well -0- -0- -0- -0-

Julia Arthur Cheney, who won many laurels in her stage days.



"And it is all very well for a player to have distinct personality, but in my opinion more of our really promising actresses—and actors, too—have been ruined by their affected mannerisms and assumed poses than anything else."

MISS JULIA ARTHUR, the distinguished actress, recently gave a talk to the girls of the Three Arts Club of New York, many of whom are studying for the stage. Her advice to budding actresses was so sound and comprehensive that a writer for this magazine asked her to give her views to the general public.

"First and foremost, be natural," she said. "Do not permit yourself to have mannerisms—either natural or acquired. Do not affect a pose. A pose is a confession of weakness. The truly great actress is one who can submerge her personality in whatever role she is called upon to play. Yet how many of our leading players are the same in every role they undertake to portray. The sad truth about them is that they have such unmistakable mannerisms that it is next to impossible for them to submerge their so-called personalities.

"When I began my stage career someone advised me to affect a certain pose and stick to it, in order to differentiate myself from my colleagues. Having been born in Canada, it was suggested that I affect an ultra-English pose. I tried it for three days and was an absolute failure. I decided to be my real self and not affect any pose or mannerisms to attract attention. And it was very fortunate that I did so, for if I had cultivated an ultra-English pose it would have stamped every role I undertook and ruined most of them.

"We hear a great deal about the personalities of players. And it is all very well for a player to have a distinct personality, but in my opinion more of our really promising actresses—and actors, too—have been ruined by their affected mannerisms and assumed poses than by anything else. The very best advice I can give you is to be your natural self.

"Forget your audience. A theater audience is the fourth wall. If you are acting a role, never address them. Address your remarks to the other player or players on the stage. And when they address you keep your eyes on them. The best actors are always the best listeners. One of the commonest faults of our players is to allow their eyes to wander while they are waiting for their cues. Acting a part is very different from making a speech. When one makes a speech one is obliged to take the audience into one's confidence and talk straight to them. In playing a part one must always remember that the audience is merely the fourth wall and treat it as such.

"Remember that the author creates—the actor merely interprets. As Shakspeare said, 'The play's the thing,' despite the opinions of some of our illiterate managers to the contrary. It is a very common error for an actor or actress to say: 'I created that role last season!' The playwright creates a role, the actor merely interprets. Sometimes the actor analyzes a role, sometimes he adds to it and rounds it out, but he never creates it unless he is also the author of the play. Give the author a little consideration. Too many actors today regard the playwright simply as a necessary evil. Remember, if it were not for the playwright there would be no acting.

"Forget the classics are classics. By this I mean do not approach Shakspeare's plays with a spirit of reverence. The great trouble with Shakspeare is that the vast majority of young actors and actresses are inclined to consider him not as a playwright, an actor-manager who produced entertainment because it paid him, and who wrote topical gags of the day to please the rabble who frequented his theater, but rather to look upon him as a sort of sacred cow—something to be reverenced and bowed down before with all the superstition of the heathen.

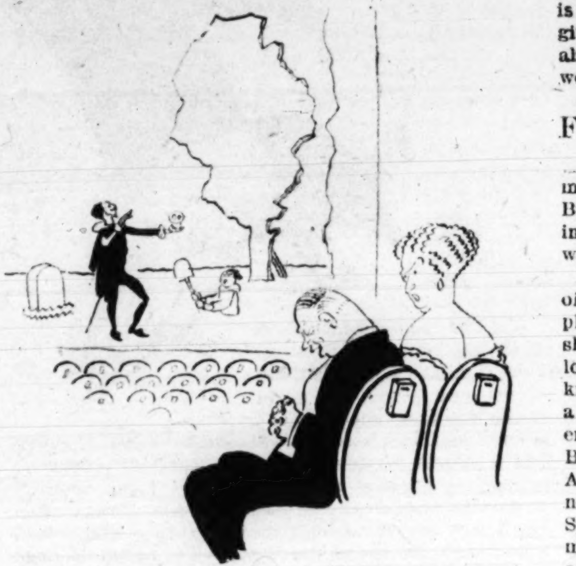
"Study Shakspeare, but enjoy his plays. Most of them are as up to date today as anything on Broadway, and, in my humble opinion, quite as good.

"The stage is simply a forum where all the ideas and problems of the day can be thrashed out in an interesting manner. The drama should never preach. But it should always entertain. That is the acid test of every play.

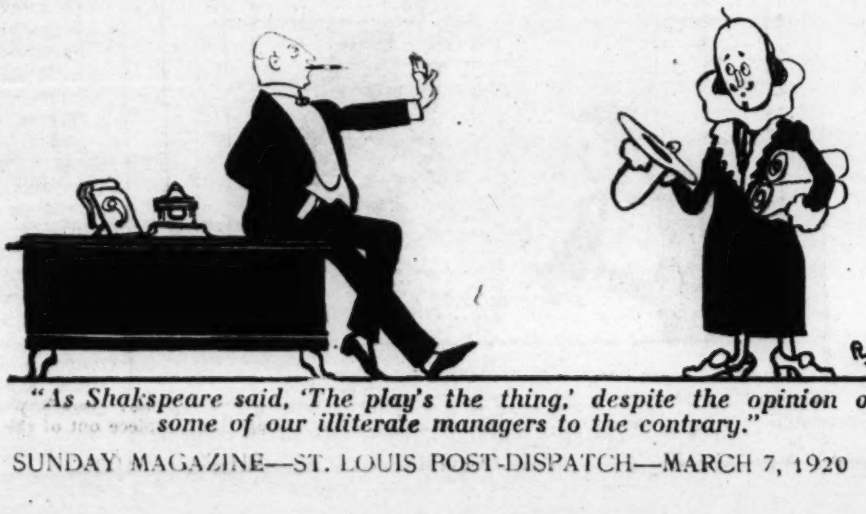
"If Shakspeare's plays are properly presented, they are entertaining. Too often they are presented as 'classics' and not in a simple lifelike manner.

"Start in a stock company. A season or two in stock is the best possible training for a young actor or actress. I had a very fine training in stock. When I first started I learned 21 roles in a single month. Most of them were very small roles, but they gave me the right training. It is said that there are only 50 stock companies now active in the United States. My advice is to join one of them as soon as possible and to remain with one of them at least two seasons.

"Finally, 'To thine own self be true.' Always bear in mind what Shakspeare said: 'To thine own self be true. And it must follow, as the night the day, thou can'st not then be false to any man.' The art of the stage comprises all of the arts, and the best way to get the best out of any art is to have a big, wholesome ideal. Make your country your ideal. Our country is the greatest, finest country in the world. It can give you everything, if you are only worthy. Personality comes from doing a thing well. If you do your work well you can't go very far wrong."



"Forget your audience. A theater audience is the fourth wall. If you are acting a role, never address them."



"As Shakspeare said, 'The play's the thing,' despite the opinion of some of our illiterate managers to the contrary."

French Maid, With Twenty Proposals,

me. In Chicago I went to fashionable clubs and homes. But it just seemed I could not get away from the feeling that there were dollars all about me wherever I went."

It was while she was at French Lick that madamoiselle began to despair of America being able to supply the kind of husband she wants. And being a shrewd and courageous young woman, she began to look ahead. She is an only child. Her father was killed fighting for France in 1915. She regards it as a daughter's duty that her quest for a husband should end successfully. She recalled that a couple of the British officers who proposed marriage to her at Amiens, and who were told to "wait a minute," are now stationed in India. A family she met at the Springs will sail from San Francisco in April, and if madamoiselle would join them, with her maid, Nanette, and her dog, Jack, they would be very glad.

The girl in search of a husband would need a lot of new clothes for a trip to the Orient. After scurrying through New York shops and doing some figuring, she compiled a list of little things such as gowns of silver cloth and other gowns of cloth of gold, lingerie of a kind she cannot find here, silk stockings at $20 a pair, and perfume that comes from only one shop in Paris, she sent Nanette and the dog back home with the list. When they return from their shopping jaunt in Paris this thrifty young woman expects to be several hundred dollars richer than if she had saved steamship fare and done her shopping in New York. Besides, she will have just what she wants. And she doesn't like to compromise on ideals in clothes any more than in a husband.

"There is one chance in particular, and perhaps one or two others, that I may yet be able to marry an American man," she speculated, with a faraway look in the dreamy depths of her soft brown eyes. "I am thinking of an officer from Louisville, Ky. He was very fine. But if he has to be in an office all day long I do not think I could marry him. I could not live with a man who would always be worried about business. From Louisville I shall go to St. Louis.. I visit only in the cities where live the officers I knew in France. They were such wonderful soldiers."

ler, ask my husband if I didn't right away say, 'Boys' pants.' "

"All by herself one day, Mrs. Washauer, that child went down and, without one word, gets herself a position with the Peoria Aero Club, a concern that makes flying machines and flies for prizes."

"Gott in Himmel."

"That's what we needed yet, I said, on top of her papa's sickness. Flying machines in the family! Twice she went flying up in one, Mrs. Washauer, till her papa put his foot down."

"Say, that's a trouble for you! We had a case, too, in Chicago. A grand boy, well-off family, on the South Side, didn't he go up in one and break his neck coming down in one!"

"Don't I know! At home we got such a boy, too, right in our block. Archie Meyer, Mrs. Washauer, what everybody says has got brains to make good in any legitimate business what he wants to. What does he do? For five years, Mrs. Washauer, with a young lady sister to support since his father died, has the boy fooled around building a flying machine in his back shed. A boy like that who, with a five or ten thousand dollar start, could make himself one of the catches of Peoria."

"That's a trouble for some mother."

"No, for his sister. I tell you, I feel sorry enough for Minna Meyer. No such flying-machine ideas has she got in her head as her brother. And like I always say, they pull each other down. Without a sister to support, Archie Meyer could have any girl he wanted. With a husband instead of a brother to support her, Minna Meyer could hold up her head and have something to think of except her ailing and sickness."

"Flying machines yet! Like automobiles ain't dangerous enough. Just for fun, Mrs. Kessler, ask my husband how he begs we should get an automobile, and how I am too afraid."

"My Della is"——

"There she comes now. Say, don't she look sweet in that pink shirtwaist! How cute for her to dress that way all the time in stiff collars like a little boy. Don't she look sweet!"

Around the elbow of the veranda, ardently, the slim feet of her too light to linger long where they touched, danced Miss Della Kessler into her parent's vision, bending daintily, as a bird to drink, for the maternal kiss.

"Morning, mommy, dear! Morning Mrs. Washauer! Where's papa?"

"Down by the spring already for his second glass."

"Then he feels better?"

"Cross like a bear, that's how good he feels. Such a grand night he had, Della! Fix your hair smoother, baby, so curly it looks."

"Let her alone, she looks fine that way, Mrs. Kessler. Fine enough to grab all the beaus, don't you, Miss Della? Ach, there goes my husband after his last glass. I see you later down by the spring, Mrs. Kessler. Here, wait for me, Laz—Laz!" And she waddled off, the rocker released of her weight swaying violently.

Miss Kessler perched herself on the arm of a chair and sighed audibly, as if the siphon of her patience had been exhausted.

"Mommy, dear, haven't I just begged you not to sit around with that old gossip pot?"

"I guess, Della, you want I should sit around with Mrs. Van Ritz and her crowd from New York, with their crimped yellow heads and their noses so high they must be smelling heaven. I know my place, Della, at a place like this. Such swells as always sit down at the other end of the porch by themselves, ain't got no time for me, or me for them."

"But, mommy"——

"The swell crowd, she thinks I can mix with yet! Mrs. Washauer is a plain woman, like me, Della. We talk the same language. Them gay swells"——

"Sh-h-h, mommy, you don't need to tell the whole hotel!"

"Mrs. Washauer ain't good enough, yet! Just let me tell you, Della Kessler, Laz Washauer can buy and sell your papa twice over. The pork business maybe ain't so high sounding, but"——

"Is that papa down there by the spring now, mommy?"

"Yes, talking with Max Ganz. I just wish, Della, you could have heard what Mrs. Washauer had to say about Max Ganz. The catch of Chicago, she says. Go down to the spring by papa a while, Della."

"The catch of Chicago! If Max Ganz had only one leg and that one in the grave, you'd still say he was a catch, as long as he owned the Ninety-Eight-Cent Store."

"It ain't only his money, Della, but"——

"Nothing else! I could take any one of the boys at home you're so down on, Teddy Solomon or"——

"Loafer! With his inventions what ain't worth the money he spends copyrighting them."

"Or Arch Meyer"——

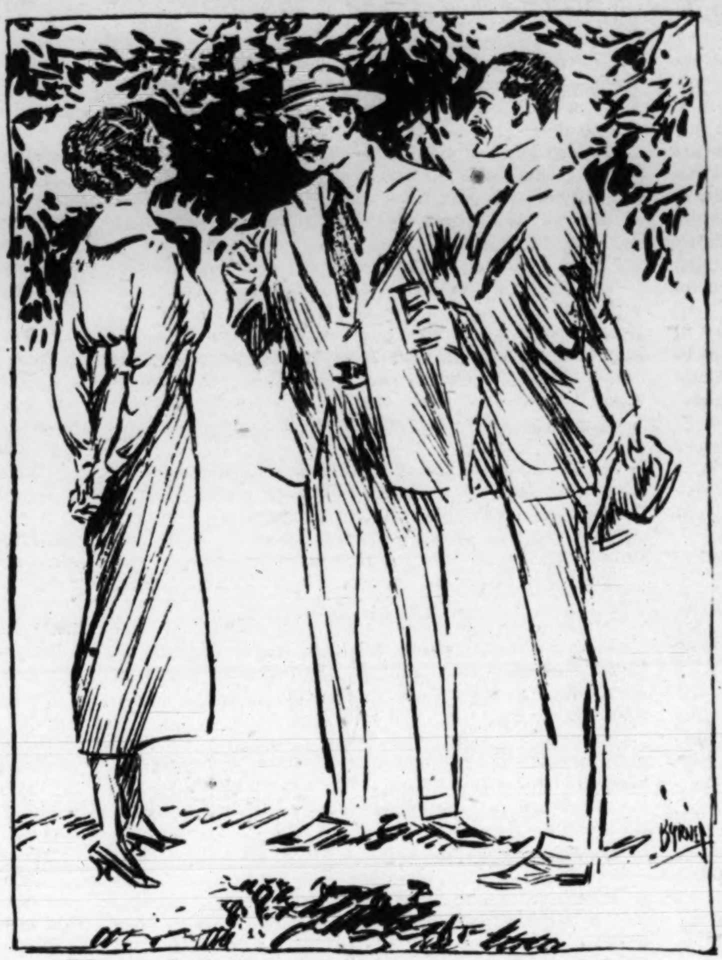
"Oser, he can't take up our front porch room any more with his yellow hair so slick and his white pants and his airship what never flies."

"Just the same, let one of those boys add ten or fifteen thousand to his bank account and see how quick he'll become a good catch."

"Lucky, one of that crowd would be, with ten thousand cents. If Max Ganz, though, is worth one cent, Della, Mrs. Washauer says he is worth"——

"Mommy, please!"

"Della, is it a crime when it makes me happy for our little girl to move to a big city like Chicago and only four hours from home, where she can have her automobile and"——



"Come, Della, let papa give you a glass and see how good it is for you."

"I'd rather have an airplane, mommy. Say, if he'd buy me a biplane and build me a hangar on the lake front, and"——

"Two hangouts you could have on the lake front, baby."

"Yes, I could not! Last night about 11 o'clock he looked scared enough to faint when I asked him if"——

"Ach, baby, when you came tiptoeing up in the rooms so late last night from sitting so long with him on the porch, baby, I—I thought maybe you had news, Della. Not once did I close my eyes waiting."

"Oh, mommy, even if you are my own mother, you—you're the limit, dearie."

"I did think it, baby. I—I couldn't help it; ask papa if I didn't."

"You—you just make me ashamed."

"Every time what you come running up to me these days, baby, with so much red in your cheeks and him always at your heels, my heart jumps up, maybe it's news you're bringing me. Run down by the spring now, Della. There's papa and Ganz drinking. Go, baby!"

"What do I want to go down there and listen to them swapping blood pressure and diet lists for?"

"All that's the matter with Ganz, Della, is since his mother died he ain't had the right kind of"——

"Sh-h-h, mamma, here comes Mrs. Blumenthal! Sh-h-h!"

"Good-morning, Mrs. Blumenthal! How you feel this morning?"

"Not so well, Mrs. Kessler; just this minute I come from my doctor. Twice he took my blood pressure"——

"Mommy, dear, I'll see you at breakfast in an hour. I'm going down by the spring, dear, to—to papa."

When Mr. Max Ganz, glancing over Mr. Kessler's shoulder into the showy aisle of poplar trees which led from the hotel toward the spring, and in its dappled shadows and coming toward them, beheld Miss Della Kessler in all her fluent motion, a smile full of short square teeth spread in great width across his face.

"Mr. Kessler, here comes your daughter.

Mr. Kessler drained the last drop of his last glass, dry distaste puckering his features, so that his nose seemed to dip down into the stubble of his mossy beard, but smiled even through a shudder.

"Well, my little Della-sha, you'm up for all day?"

"Every single minute of it, pa. Morning, Mr. Ganz!"

"Good-morning, Miss Della; just fresh as a flower you look."

"But, say, can't you two find a better place to moon around than this smelly old spring? Ugh, that water smells like boiled junk!"

"Come, Della, let papa give you a glass and see how good it is for you."

"That stuff! I'd rather suck a cold storage egg through a mouthful of rusty nails."

"It'll make those bright eyes of yours even brighter, Miss Kessler."

"Thanks, Mr. Ganz, but if I had any more health I wouldn't know what to do with it."

He regarded her with the kit of his emotions wide; a certain wistful wonder at her buoyancy, joy in her quick graces and a depth of delight in her fuddled gaze only half reflected.

She should pass some of that extra health on to you and me, eh, Ganz?"

"I can tell you, Kessler, that when I look at Miss Della's rosy cheeks and the way she dances around, like she was playing tag all day with the sunshine and the wind, it does me more good than nine glasses a day."

"Hark!" cried Miss Kessler, in a burlesque attitude of tilting forward the small shell of her ear. "Hark, how the man loves me!"

"Many a true word, Miss Kessler, that is spoken in jest."

Between the blades of Mr. Ganz's slightly curved back, Mr. Kessler deposited a sounding whack.

"She'm a good one, not, Ganz? Like that you don't see 'em every day, eh?"

"I should say not, Mr. Kessler?"

"Eh, papa's little jump-up-Jack!"

"Where do you get your bright eyes so early in the morning, Miss Della? I tell you, Kessler, those are the things money can't buy."

"Fee, le, foe, fum! They're so I can see. So I can see, Mr. Ganz."

Mr. Kessler wagged an argumentative finger in proximity to Mr. Ganz's nose, eyes and mouth.

"Like I was just telling you, Ganz, with your dull eyes and bad color, I wouldn't be surprised if you got a little jaundice. For years, Ganz, I doctored for yellow color and"——

"Pa, please.. Please! Quit swapping symptoms and let's trot to the links and join the crowd down there for a sun bath before breakfast."

"You, Della, go with Ganz so far you like. I go up now by mamma on the porch. Before breakfast I got yet to breathe in 100 hundred deep breaths like the doctor says for my circulation. That pain in your left side, Ganz, ain't your heart, it's nothing but poor circula"——

"It ain't exactly a pain, Kessler. Just like needle points up and down my"——

"Good-by, pa! Come, come, Mr. Ganz, let's go down past the De Leon Spring. If you wash your face in it, they say it makes you beautiful."

"Then I take right away a bath in it, Miss Kessler.

"I see that New York swell, with her yellow hair in ripples and her last name in two pieces like a mattress, sitting down there in the sun every morning, and nights sending her maid down on the sly for buckets of it. Like there was any help for her!"

He quick-stepped his gait to hers. His timidity had suddenly rushed up in a wave of color above his collar line, in his quickly withdrawn elbow when it brushed hers, in his hitching shoulders.

"You—you don't need no beauty spring like the rest of us, Miss Della. You—you're just beautiful without it."

"Whenever I fish hard for compliments like that, Mr. Ganz, there's a fellow at home always says to me, he says, 'Cutey, you're a hard-working girl.' "

"Cutey! That's a mighty fine little name for you. That's just what you are, Cutey."

They were in the green twilight of woods, the sun barely flickering through except at the remote end of the tanbark walk. Along that shaded tan-bark walk men and women in quest of a panacea for that tired feeling and that run-down look strode from spring to spring.

"Look," cried Miss Kessler, quickening her companion's pace to hers, "just look at them all over there by De Leon trading symptoms before sun up."

"You're right restless down here at the springs,

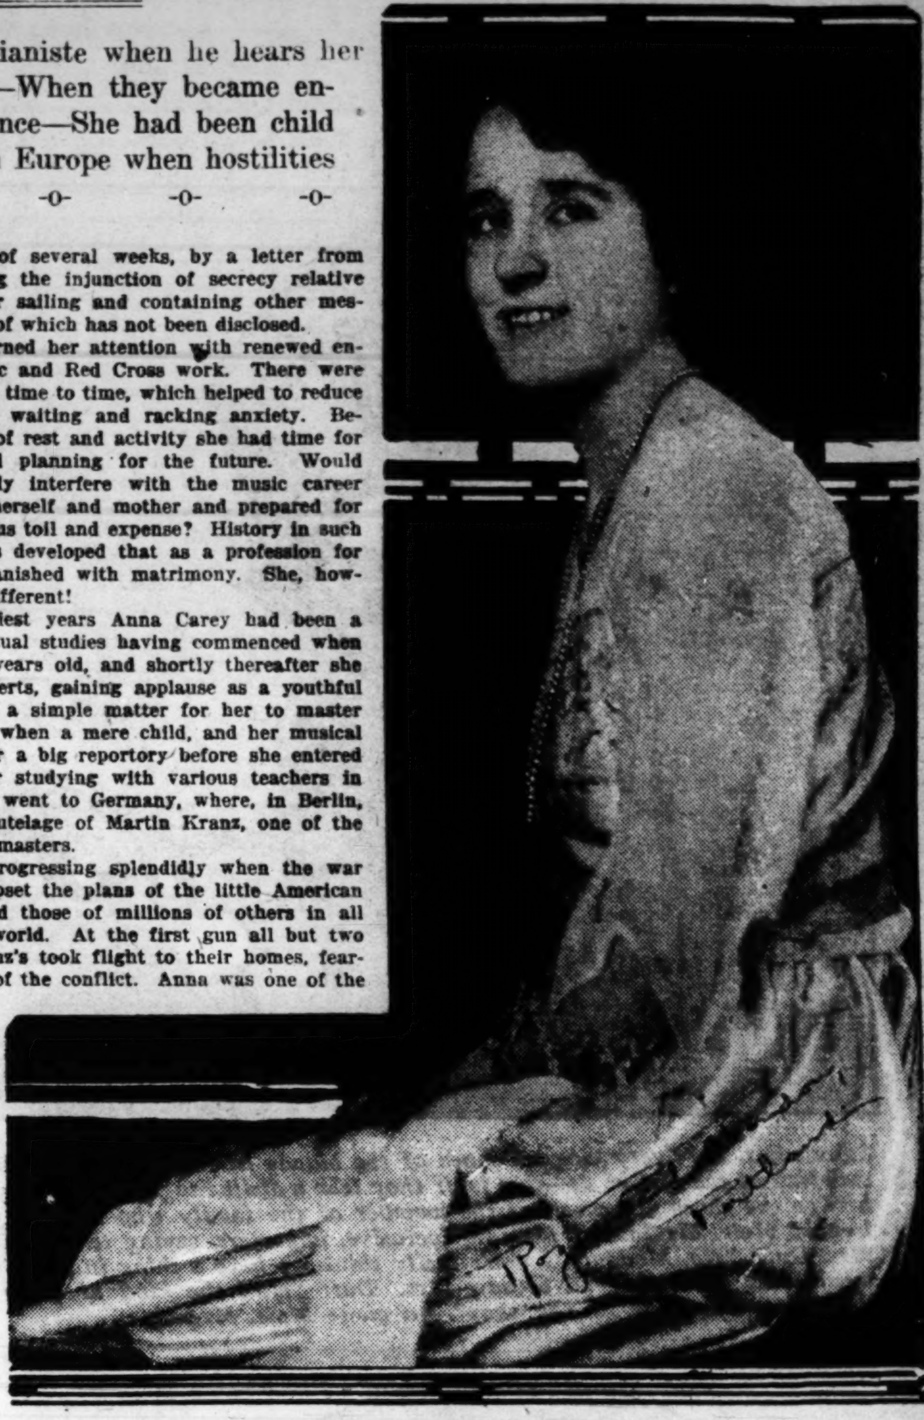
WAR ROMANCE REVEALED BY A CHOPIN NOCTURNE AT THE LIEDERKRANZ CLUB

St. Louis Captain falls in love with talented young pianiste when he hears her play to entertain soldiers at Fort Williams, Maine—When they became engaged he was hurried off to the battlefields of France—She had been child prodigy and was completing her music education in Europe when hostilities commenced -0- -0- -0- -0- -0- -0- -0-



Mrs. Anna Cecilia Carey Bock.

AT THE midwinter concert of the St. Louis Liederkranz Club there appeared as soloist a slip of a girl, attractively gowned and with engaging stage presence. Her name had never figured on any other music program here, and her debut was unheralded. Nothing much, therefore, was expected in the way of wonders from her performance. But the unexpected happened. She played a Liszt rhapsodie and two Chopin compositions with the virtuosity of a piano celebrity, and stirred an inert audience to a demonstration of noisy applause.

Her name, as printed on the program, was Anna Carey Bock, but this told little, and members of the audience started an investigation to satisfy their curiosity. The facts developed in this search uncovered a war romance and a story of unusual interest in the category of musical prodigies. The young artist proved to be the wife of Dr. L. H. Bock of St. Louis, formerly a Captain in the medical corps of the American expeditionary forces, who served with distinction in France.

Mrs. Bock is a bride of only a few months, she having married Dr. Bock after his return from Europe in August, 1919. The romance which culminated in the marriage began at Fort Williams, just outside of Portland, Me. Capt. Bock was stationed there with the Seventy-second Artillery, awaiting orders to move to the front. Garrison life on the rock-bound coast was monotonous and would have been much more so had not the people of Portland taken pity and an active hand in entertaining and ministering to the wants of the soldiers.

Engaged in work for the Red Cross organization of Portland was Miss Anna Cecilia Carey, who in addition to rolling bandages and making wound dressings, figured in concerts and entertainments at the post as a pianiste. Of all the girls who contributed to this section of the work, her popularity and reputation was the most noted. Uncle Sam's troopers recognized good music when they heard it, and when the little artist was on the program the hall was invariably crowded.

According to the story told one of the curious Liederkranz members, it chanced one magnificent evening, such as are found in no greater perfection anywhere in the world than in summer on the Maine coast, that Capt. Bock was returning to his quarters, his path laying beside the entertainment hall. Through the open windows came the final notes of a Chopin nocturne. He was arrested and electrified by the beauty of the tones, and stood by the open window to listen. His interest when seeing the player was deeper than when he heard her music, and he decided that he was in no hurry to get back to the barracks, after all.

On the contrary, he lingered until the concert was over and determined to make the acquaintance of the fair performer. This he succeeded in doing next day, and the first meeting sealed the fate of both.

Clearly, it was a case of love at first sight, and from thence on the Maine coast lost its bleak aspect and became an oasis of indescribable beauty. The days slipped by for the pair with lightning swiftness, and rumors that the regiment was soon to sail for the battlefields of France was the only damper on an otherwise perfect summer.

Finally Capt. Bock was advised that secret orders had arrived which might start his contingent forward without an hour's notice. Thus far there had been no actual plighting of troth, but the news brought things to a crisis, and the soldier presented his case in fervent terms, begging that they marry at once, before he set sail. This neither the maid nor her family would agree to, but prompted by patriotism, and doubtless something more compelling, she compromised by becoming engaged to the Captain, their marriage to take place immediately upon his return from the war.

In this status matters stood for just one week, when Miss Carey, going to the fort one morning, found that the Seventy-second had folded its tents and vanished in the night. Far out at sea could be seen a small cloud of smoke, issuing from the funnel of a transport, and this was the only visible sign left of the departing regiment. The maid was up in arms, but not against the enemy of her country, but against her Captain and the system which carried him off without a word at parting. Why had he not told her? Rebellion was fierce and bitter, but it was quelled after running its course of several weeks, by a letter from France explaining the injunction of secrecy relative to the orders for sailing and containing other messages the import of which has not been disclosed.

The fiancee turned her attention with renewed energy to her music and Red Cross work. There were more letters from time to time, which helped to reduce the weariness of waiting and racking anxiety. Between the hours of rest and activity she had time for introspection and planning for the future. Would marriage seriously interfere with the music career mapped out by herself and mother and prepared for at such tremendous toil and expense? History in such cases usually has developed that as a profession for women, music vanished with matrimony. She, however, would be different!

From her earliest years Anna Carey had been a musician, her actual studies having commenced when she was only 6 years old, and shortly thereafter she appeared in concerts, gaining applause as a youthful prodigy. It was a simple matter for her to master a fine technique when a mere child, and her musical memory gave her a big reportory before she entered her teens. After studying with various teachers in this country she went to Germany, where, in Berlin, she was under tutelage of Martin Kranz, one of the greatest German masters.

Things were progressing splendidly when the war came along to upset the plans of the little American student, as it did those of millions of others in all sections of the world. At the first gun all but two members of Kranz's took flight to their homes, fearing the hazards of the conflict. Anna was one of the two remaining, and later, with the old professor, she went to the Austrian Tyrol to pursue her studies. Even in the mountain fastnesses it was impossible to get away from war, and the notes of the piano were frequently punctuated with the roll of drums of passing troops on their way to the Italian front.

The United States had not then entered the struggle, however, and as the little girl from Maine was not considered dangerous to the Teutonic cause, she met with no untoward adventure. Early in 1915, however, Mrs. Carey became alarmed for the safety of her daughter and urged that she return home. This was easier said than done, and as Anna was making satisfying strides in her studies, and rather enjoyed the excitement of the early stages of the war, she kept putting off her departure.

Finally, however, upon urgent solicitation of her parent, she determined to return to America, and got out through Holland late in 1915. But meantime she had done much to perfect herself in music. With Kranz she had laid a foundation with the works of Bach, Mozart, Beethoven and other early classics. In a short period of study with Joseph Lhevinne she had been able to delve into Chopin, her favorite composer, and the one in whom she determined to specialize. Then in the moderns she was able to do some work with Rudolph Ganz, so that her equipment was such that with future hours of practice and study she would be able to continue upward.

Incidentally, it was while playing Chopin's Etude, No. 12, Opus 10, which is familiarly known as the "Revolutionary," that Capt. Bock first came into her life. The final bars of this were the ones he heard on the fateful night at Fort Williams. Mrs. Bock loves the "Revolutionary" above all other things written for the piano. The mighty chords with which it opens, and the rumbling somberness pervading the composition, interpreted the great Franco-Polish composer's impressions of the fall of Warsaw, in which he knew not whether the members of his family lived or were done to death with the thousand of others killed in the historic assault. Next to Chopin stands the American, Edward Alexander MacDowell, in the list of her favorite composers.

But war, like everything else evil in the world, finally came to an end, and, unscathed, but with a record of splendid service rendered his country, Capt. Bock returned to the United States in August, 1919, just one year after the transport had borne him from the Maine coast. Needless to relate, he posted with all haste to Portland to claim his portion of the victory. The opposition to the marriage on the part of Mrs. Carey was based solely on the wish for her daughter to pursue her musical career and some religious differences. Capt. Bock she admired, and if she was to have a son-in-law she was as pleased with him as any other.

The opposition was smoothed out, as how otherwise could it have been in the case of a soldier returning from the wars? The marriage was solemnized in the little Portland church where the bride had frequently displayed her abilities as a musician at the organ, when still a child. After a short wedding tour the couple came to St. Louis to make their home.

CAR TRACKS WEAR TIRES.

THE severest wear on solid tires is caused by driving on the car tracks, according to an official of a rubber company, quoted by the Scientific American. He says that when on the tracks most of the load is concentrated on a limited portion of the tread, so that it is overloaded and quickly worn away, besides, a sharp-pointed frog may actually cut a piece out of the tire, just as a knife would.

A BIRDIE IN THE HOUSE

:: By FANNIE HURST ::

AFTER several generations of the hot biscuit that several generations of mothers used to make, and after a Broadway chef with a salary twice that of a college president had put the Newburg in lobster, an entire nation took to talking in its sleep and showed a coated tongue. Gluten bread, beefsteak cubes, predigested tablets and painless pastries began to figure largely in street car advertising.

That dark-brown taste began to assume national proportions.

Dietetics became a college elective.

The old Cadillac Springs House, just ready to peter out in favor of appendicitis hospitals and neurasthenia sanitariums, was suddenly bought up by an Indianapolis promoting company and an $800,000, 800-room hotel, with three miles of veranda and a golf course rose from the wood ashes of the former frame hostelry.

Cadillac Springs water, which had probably, for odiferous and sodium-sulphatic eons gushed up and seeped back into the floor of the mild old Indiana flatlands, was suddenly piped, analyzed and advertised to the last decillion of iron oxide and magnesium carbonate. In the great landscaped park surrounding the new Hotel Cadillac, it gurgled now at even intervals along the dyspeptic's and rheumatic's morning stroll, up into white tiled reservoirs, Roman in effect.

Men who had long since ceased to approach breakfast except as a spirited horse is led blind-folded past a steam roller, with quivering lips and ready to take fright at a broken yolk of the poached-on-toast or a tiny brown stain beside the percolator, learned here to linger over eggy dishes and market quotations.

Thanks to the liver, life became once more worth living, and the great American porterhouse swam back into favor on a sea of best cooking butter.

Marcus Kessler of Peoria, upon whom a corn flake lay none too lightly, retired fearlessly after three portions of pudding a la Cadillac and a very black demitasse. For the first time in half a year of months, Mrs. Kessler slept as sweetly as a night nurse on duty.

In the wide light of a September morning she showed the resuscitation, too, in the fagged profile which was less fagged, even in her throat, the flabbiness of which was drawn up because her head was high.

In a great elbow of the great veranda she rocked, with her back to the sun and her face to the quiet lobby.

The Hotel Cadillac was not yet ready for the luxury of the long row of empty veranda chairs. It was turning over in bed; taking its Nauheim, Aix and Vichy baths; its salt rubs and needle showers, drinking in shudders three glasses of hot concentrated before breakfast; stretching rheumatic legs in the park.

As Mrs. Kessler rocked, her fingers flashed busily through the intricacies of crochet, sunlight teasing at her needle. A smile came out on her lips and a rose grew in her pattern, and presently a shadow lay across the lace and she glanced up, still smiling.

"Good-morning, Mrs. Washauer!"

"Good-morning, Mrs. Kessler! I thought I was the only early bird."

"Indeed, no! Since 7 I been up and downstairs with my crochet. That's what a good night my husband had. Sit down by me, Mrs. Washauer, and be sociable."

"I see, Mrs. Kessler, you do the rose pattern, too." She screwed herself with a rustling of black taffeta into a porch chair, laying her short arms out full along the side; fell to rocking rhythmically, her small, wide feet leaving the floor with each tilt.

"Yes, my husband feels so much better, I got the heart right away to take up my fancy work again. Lace edging for Della a shirtwaist I make."

"I never, Mrs. Kessler, seen a man improve more than your husband."

"When I tell you, Mrs. Washauer, that when we came here little more as a week ago, every time what I looked at that man I busted right out crying, you can know how he looked."

"Say, wasn't my own husband for two years such a yellow in color we didn't expect him to live? For 21 months, Mrs. Kessler, to sit down to a funeral, on such a diet he was."

"Don't I know, Mrs. Washauer! My own husband, what never in his life gave his daughter or me a cross word, hollered so at me I was ashamed for the neighbors, when one night at supper we wouldn't pass him the sauerbraten like the doctor forbid."

"Just ask my husband for fun some time how every years we used to run to Carlsbad and Wiesbaden, and ask him now how he swears by this cure instead."

"I can tell you if I had an ailment, God forbid, right away I would bring it here, too."

"Say, you can see for yourself, Mrs. Kessler, how even the big millionaires from New York come here for the cure."

"I should say so! Right next to our table in the dining room sits that Mrs. Van Ritz out of the newspapers, with her yellow hair so marcelled, and eyes like she was always looking through her lorgnettes, even when she ain't."

"But how plain them big bugs are, ain't it? At breakfast this morning not so much as a diamond bracelet did Mrs. Van Ritz have on."

"Always at night she makes up for it."

"When you come right down to it, I can tell you there's a few million dollars sleeps every night under this roof. Tom Riley, himself, to begin with. And they say, Mrs. Kessler, this hotel ain't one-third his holdings."

"You don't say so! Like to own such a gorgeous hotel ain't enough in itself."

"I wonder if you know, Mrs. Kessler, that my brother-in-law, the one in the commission business in St. Louis, for 10 years has sold Tom Riley every bit of poultry what he uses on his table down here at the Springs?"

"No! But ask my husband, Mrs. Washauer, if I didn't say to him last night, 'Marc, don't this chicken melt in your mouth?' "

A large ruminative sigh escaped Mrs. Washauer somwhere from the deep recesses of her. She was tilting violently, her head pat back against the rocker back.

"Yes, yes, Mrs. Kessler, a few milloinaires lay their heads down under this roof every night: Tom Riley, Herman Hirkhimer, Percival Chalmers, Isadore Mange, L. Lobenz—when such men come all from the East, there's a reason."

"Oser!"

"The biggest names you find here. Why, two years ago, right at these springs, Mrs. Kessler, came the Secretary of State and his wife. Such a plain little woman, not twice would you look at her. Always she used to say good-morning to me, just like—just like I was an old shoe, so unassuming she was. And how that man improved of rheumatic gout, Mrs. Kessler, it was a pleasure to watch."

"Say, like I can't see it in my own husband. Just look at him down there in the park now. See, standing by Spring Two, talking with Max Ganz. I can tell you when we left Peoria, oser, such color he had."

"Just look at Max Ganz, too. There's a boy could afford if he wanted it to go twice to Carlsbad, but every time instead he comes here. When I met him at home in State street two weeks ago, yellow as your gold ring he looks."

"Ach, I always forget! You know Max Ganz from Chicago, don't you?"

Mrs. Washauer threw a wide gesture of hands and eyes.

"Do I know Max Ganz! Ask him, Mrs. Kessler, just for fun, when you see him, how many times he comes to Yendla Washauer's Friday night for penuchle and rinderbrust. 'Do I know Max Ganz?' she asks me! I know him this well, that if I had a daughter, twice over he could have her."

"Ain't it so? I always say a young man like that, who, they say, never sowed any wild oats and was so good to his mother while she lived, and on top of it all to have built up all alone such a good business is"——

"Good business! I can tell you, if I had a son, right away would I put him in just such 98-cent store business. Never I put my foot in the Ganz Ninety-Eight-Cent Emporium that it ain't packed like sardines."

"It's so funny the way we met him here at the Springs for the first time, and right away, I should find out his uncle, Jake Spitz, of Spitz & Spitz—feathers—married my sister-in-law's sister, Rena Dindabaum."

"I know, nice people, too. I can only say about Max Ganz, maybe his digestion ain't so good; but, say, like he said himself last night, a good wife can make it better. Eh, Mrs. Kessler, eh?"

"Ach, Mrs. Washauer, you—you're a great one to make fun! My Della ain't got such thoughts yet. Like I say to her papa, she's so full of life, that girl, it's a shame she should ever got to settle down."

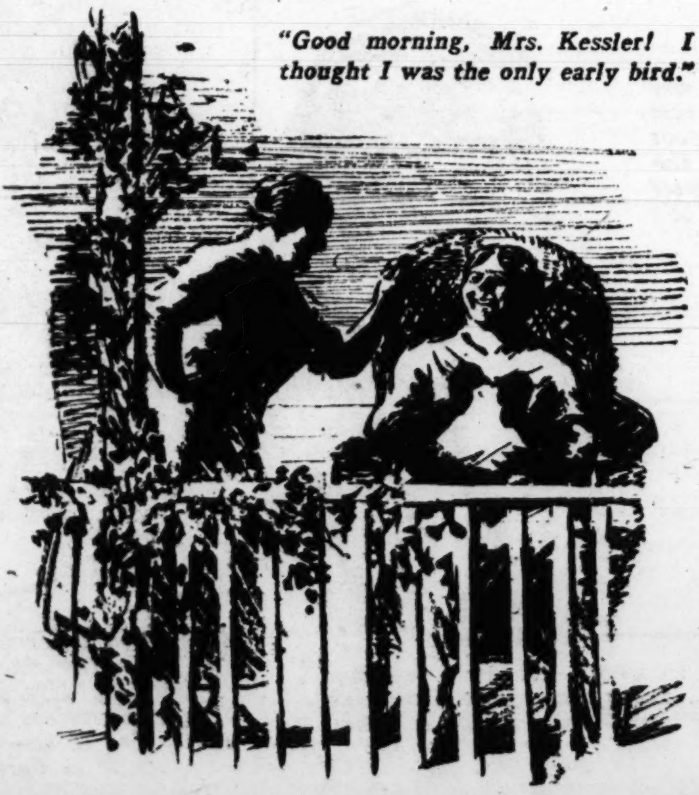
"Believe me, with such a match she so could set herself down in soft feathers. I can tell you there ain't a mother in Chicago wouldn't pick herself out to be his mother-in-law."

"I don't say, Mrs. Washauer, when Mr. Right comes along, that I ain't like every other mother, glad when her daughter makes a good marriage."

"It's just a pleasure to see that girl, Mrs. Kessler, hardly her feet touch the ground when she walks."

"It ain't nothing the way she is here now. So many people around, she says, who think they are sick, give her the blues. But at home, if I do say it, Mrs. Washauer, that girl is like a birdie in the house, singing and singing. Dancing around, so that even when her papa was too sick to hold up his head, didn't the doctor make her stay in the room to make him laugh."

"Say, don't I see for myself how in the dining room Max Ganz can't take his eyes off of her. Don't old Herman Hirkhimer, twice a great-grandfather, say how it does his cardiac heart good just to look at her?"



"Good morning, Mrs. Kessler! I thought I was the only early bird."

"I guess I told you, Mrs. Washauer, the time, though, we had to make her come along to the Springs with us. All of a sudden, Mrs. Washauer, a girl that don't got to turn her hand, except always I learnt her to make her own bed on washday, all of a sudden that girl makes up her mind a business woman she wants to be."

"It's all the style now, Mrs. Kessler, for girls to learn business or kill their time in the social settlement work."

"Stenography and shorthand that girl had to learn, and I can tell you her papa was mad enough."

"I always say it don't hurt a girl to know how to make her own living, even if she don't need it. God forbid anything should ever happen she ain't so helpless, God forbid!"

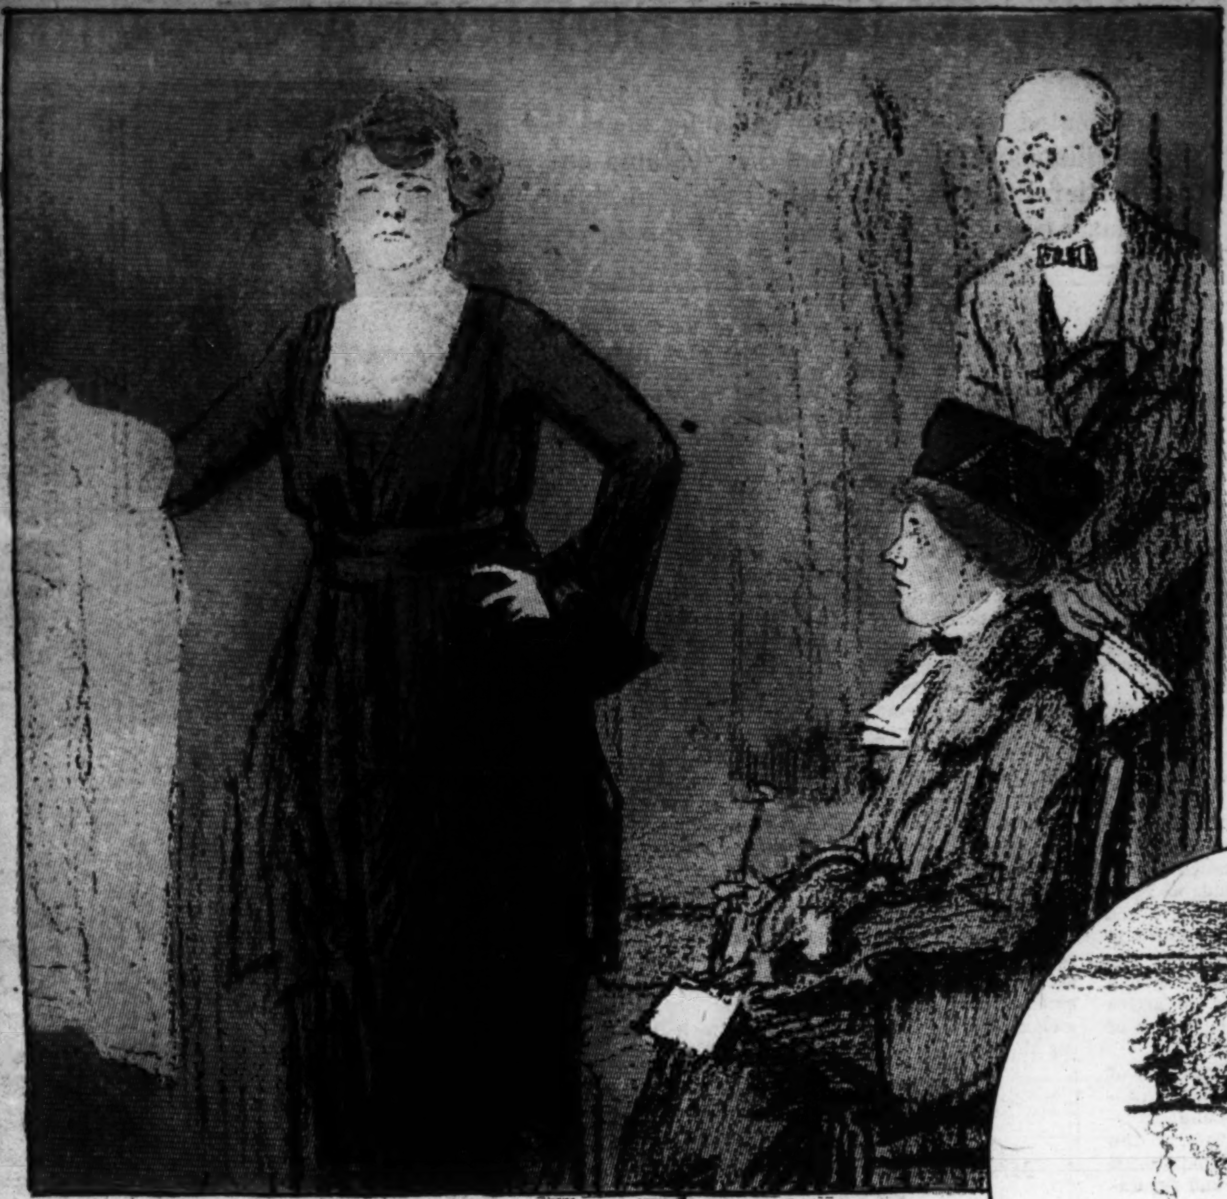
"But for why, I ask you, Mrs. Washauer, should our Della work? I don't say her papa is such a rich man, Mrs. Washauer, but—but"——

"Don't I know Marcus Kessler's daughter don't got to work for her living unless she wants it?"

"And how we had to beg until she would give up that position to come here with us. Only her father's sickness done it. Gott sei Dank, Mrs. Washauer, while I don't say her papa's a rich man, he can afford his daughter don't have to"——

"I should say so! Say, I ain't got no sons myself, but right away I heard the name Kess-

SNOBBISH PEOPLE



Salesladies, the "very elegant" ones of the blonde in black type, are just as snobbish as the rest of us—that is, if they take a dislike to your face, or your hat, or the shoes you wear, or the member of the family who is with you. Behold Mme. Maginn, of Maginn, inclusive, importers, saying to poor little Mrs. Duff, "No, Moddom, I don't really think we have a thing in stock that would suit you." And all because Mrs. Duff "ain't the kind of trade we want in the shop"—to quote Mme. Maginn.

Mr. and Mrs. Bab and Mr. and Mrs. Deughie have just been introduced by a mutual acquaintance in the hotel lobby. A hotel lobby is such an impersonal sort of background that neither couple can quite place the other in the social scale of things. Naturally, it is exceedingly difficult for Mr. and Mrs. Bab, and equally so for Mr. and Mrs. Deughie, to know just how much cordiality one ought to show under the circumstances.

The craters are much larger than anything on this planet. In one of them (Eratosthenes, near bottom of picture,) certain peculiarities are observed which suggest that possibly vegetation exists there.

"THAT WELL-DRESSED LOOK"

THE GLENCOE:

There's something particularly dashing about this little "cut-away" tailormade with its debonair one-button fastening. The back is straight with buttons and stitching; that double shawl collar (with cuffs trimmed to match) is most effective, and the diagonal pockets are smart. The skirt is full in back with a centre plait, and the pockets match the coat. The material is Homespun Twill, in Light Green, Tan and Gray mixtures.

At the right—

THE WHEATON:

This breezy little suit is quite different from most things you've seen. The Tuxedo collar is faced with contrasting satin. The coat has just enough stitching to be effective and in just the right places. The belt can be "all-round" or you can leave the front open to display your favorite vestee. Stitching forms a yoke on the skirt which is really slenderizing. It comes in Black, Navy, French Blue and Hemp Tricotine.

IF YOUR MIRROR WERE A CRYSTAL BALL!

HAVEN'T you often wished it were? Wished that instead of seeing yourself today, trim and smart in your spickly span new coat or suit, you could see yourself in that attire a month from now?

As one charming little cynic puts it, "I always keep my fingers crossed until I've worn my coats and suits for several weeks. You can't tell what you've bought until then."

She's not far from right; lines that are "tailored in" look no different to you from those that are "pressed in." But, oh, the difference after sun and rain have glared upon and drenched you alternately!

There's only one way to know that those snug shoulders will keep their perfect lines, that the collar will never forsake your neck in back, that the hem will not pucker nor the seams draw and that every little detail will be just as "finished" looking after months of wear, and that is to have in that tailormade the signature of a reliable firm of tailors!

The Wooltex Tailors are far too vain of their reputation for giving one "that well-dressed look" ever to sign a tailormade that isn't a thoroughbred from the topmost button to the pure silk thread that hems it.

When you are looking for yours, ask the salesperson for that interesting little fashion magazine, "The Tailored Woman." If you'd rather we send it to you, write us for it.

THE BELMONT:

Tucked inserts are a striking feature of this little Innovation Coat. You see how they look in back, but you've no idea how effective that same tucking is in front. The cuffs and the convertible collar also carry tucks. It's a coat of many uses, this little Suede Velour, and you may choose from Sparrow, Black, Navy, French Blue and Dove.

THE DELAMERE:

Fair or cloudy weather, in town or in the open, you'll wear this coat more often than you can imagine. It's so simple and yet so smart! The sides are semi-fitted, the pockets vertical slots, the collar convertible. Stitching of contrasting silk and a few bone buttons are a pleasing trimming. Full lining of figured Pussy Willow. Tricotine in French Blue, Black, Navy and Tan.

Wooltex

Tailor-mades

The signature on its bit of white satin appears in every genuine Wooltex Tailormade. It is the promise of your tailors that your "Well-Dressed Look" is not for a week or a month, but for the life of the tailormade.

Wooltex Tailormades are priced at $45, $55, $65, $75 up to $125.

"The Tailored Woman," Fifth Avenue at Fiftieth Street, is the exclusive shop in New York showing Wooltex Tailormades. For the shop nearest your home, write us.

Your complexion tells a story to the world

NOTHING so quickly creates an impression of your personality as your skin. Don't let it tell of unhygienic or thoughtless habits.

If it lacks clearness—if it is marred by disfiguring little blackheads—give it the special treatment that will overcome this defect.

Blackheads are a confession that you are using the wrong method of cleansing for your type of skin. To keep your skin free from this trouble, use this treatment every night:

Apply hot cloths to the face until the skin is reddened. Then with a rough washcloth, work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with clear hot water, then with cold. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a lump of ice. To remove the blackheads already formed, substitute a flesh brush for the washcloth in the treatment given above. Then protect the fingers with a handkerchief and press out the blackheads.

Special treatments for each different skin need are given in the famous booklet of treatments that is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap. Get a cake today—begin using your treatment tonight.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is on sale at any drug store or toilet goods counter in the United States or Canada. A 25 cent cake lasts for a month or six weeks of any treatment or for general cleansing use.

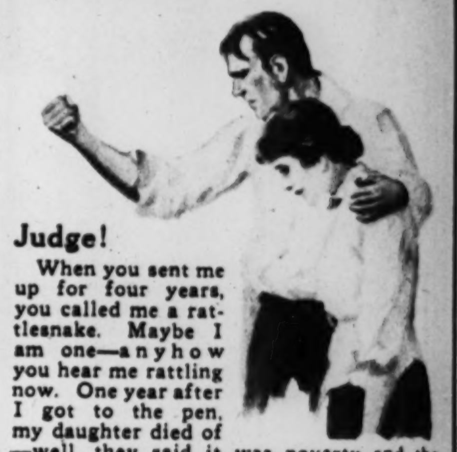
274 Complete Short Stories. One Long Novel

Each and every story in the set of books is new and different—each with a new beginning—a new plot—a new ending—and so human—so full of fun—of pathos—of laughter—of tears.

He finds romance everywhere—in the department store—in the shop—in the gutter—in the street car. He laughs when he preaches, and preaches when he laughs. He sees what no one else sees—but he sees what we have all subconsciously seen and makes us wonder why we never thought of it before.

O. Henry has made another record. More volumes of his works have been sold than any other short stories in the history of the world. Up to the day this page goes to press 3,784,000 volumes have been sold—in England and Australia, Canada and South Africa—throughout the world—over two million in the United States alone. So many editions have been printed that the old plates were entirely worn out and we had to make brand-new plates for this edition. So you will get the very best impressions from these new plates—clear, clean print.



Judge!

When you sent me up for four years, you called me a rattlesnake. Maybe I am one—anyhow you hear me rattling now. One year after I got to the pen, my daughter died of—well, they said it was poverty and the disgrace together. You've got a daughter, Judge, and I am going to make you know how it feels to lose one. I'm free now, and I guess I've turned rattlesnake all right. Look out when I strike. Yours respectfully, RATTLESNAKE.

This is the beginning of one of the stories by O. HENRY.

New York had seemed so wonderful—art had seemed so big—but New York turned a cold shoulder—art proved hard and bitter. Alone in the big city, at the end of her resources, she was too weary to cry. This special day she went out to seek—not glory or fame—but just for something to eat. She found—but let the story be told by

O. HENRY

Love on the Mexican Border

Sweetly she smiled into the eyes of both, kisses she took from both—the ruddy American and the dark-skinned Mexican. And in the strong arms of the man of the North, was it any wonder that for the moment she forget that Pedro would soon be there? Her punishment? Men of the North laugh coldly and pass on, but the Southern brother below the Rio Grande loves, as he hates, with a singleness that knows no mercy. On this erring woman, going so gayly to her fate, O. Henry could look with excuse and pity, as he did on the weaknesses of women always, everywhere, for he knew their small shoulders bear burdens that would break the backs of men.
